While discussing their school day, Cindy Schatzel and John Lochner experience a view all their own as they overlook the school lobby.

The area outside of the Activities Center is a popular meeting place to express a view about the schools programs.

The cafeteria is a place for students to get together and talk about the day's events. The senior ad drive slogan "support your view in 82" reminds students that their opinions are stated in the 1982 Spectrum.

A unique view of the high school building and its surroundings can be seen as one stands on top of a hill opposite the school. Students, who attend Beattie Technical School, rush to their buses that stand waiting.

Student representatives, Linda Napolitano and Mike Munson sit in on school board meetings.

Our Own View

Approaching the high school from Wible Run Road, one seemed to be entering his own little community away from it all. Standing on a hill opposite the high school, there was a unique view of the school building surrounded by grassy hills, sports facilities and a huge parking lot. However, upon entering the building, one realized it was not just these features that made the school special. "The building is beautiful, but it's the people that make it special."

Comments heard frequently included, "i like the new high school." "Going to school here isn't so bad, even though there aren't any windows in my classrooms." Air conditioning, what a great idea." How do I know what time it is, there aren't any clocks in this school."

Outside the school, some members of the community asked why tax money needed to be spent to build a new school while parents questioned why the school had not been built sooner. But it was time to know the opinion of the students who attended classes here. Many students asked, "Does anybody really care about our opinion?" Because of comments made early in the year by many students, an idea was originated. The idea was developed into an attitude and finally revised into a theme. This theme gave students an opportunity to express A View All Their Own about life at Shaler Area High School.

Discussing the day's activities before school begins are Bob Rebel, Jeff Nauer, Dave Braun and Nick Panza.

Before Kim Harold and Jill Kohler go to lunch they exchange a few amusing words in the hall.

Different Views

It may have seemed that Shaler Area students had a very similar opinion on what occurred around school. However, as one took a closer look, it became clear that the student body was made up of individuals with different outlooks on life, activities, academics, and sports programs of the high school.

Many different views could be heard about life at Shaler. "Why aren't sports more important here?", Is that all anybody thinks about around here is sports?" I really didn't want to do this term paper, but I'll have to learn how for college." "Term papers, who needs them anyway." School wouldn't be as nice if we didn't have that smoking area." "What would I do, if I couldn't buy a snickers bar for a lunch snack in the Titan Shop."

Every student, faculty member, administrator, and guest was able to learn a little more about the school and himself by listening to the opinion of others.

Overlooking the front of the building, students patiently wait for a ride home.

Putting off their class work until later, Rick Peluso and Sue Trgovic decide to have a little chat.

Reactions differed as Mr. Cochrane announced the first parents night in three years.

Students can be found talking behind the school, whether it is a sunny, or rainy day.

Parent and student groups manned booths for fund raising to make the Homecoming picnic a success.

During a football game at the Junior High School, the crowd comes together to cheer their team on to victory.

On Homecoming day the Titan Band and marching units display their school spirit as they work together to perform during halftime Show.

The Homecoming parade is made a success because of the tireless efforts of the Homecoming committee members.

Patently waiting for their chance to play, many members of the football team cheer their teammates on.

Merged Views

Individual opinions and ways of doing things were important to any project in the high school, be it Homecoming, plays, sports or classroom activities.

Often it was necessary to blend one's own ideas with others in order to produce a more successful project. "I think we should use blue flowers for the skirts, but if everyone else wants white, we'll use white." "I wanted to play another position, but if I'm needed somewhere else I'll do my best at my new position." "So what if I don't get to march in the front. I'm still a part of the team" "You mean there's not a senior play alone this year. Well, that's O.K. we'll work together with the juniors to create an even better school play."

Students pulled together many of their ideas and efforts in order to make school projects successful. Both the girls' volleyball and tennis teams won their section, as the girls worked together to end up with a winning season. Homecoming, was also a big success, as members of the committee strived to bring enjoyment to the whole community. For the first time in the history of Shaler Area High School, the juniors and seniors had combined their efforts to produce not two school plays but an all school play. With this starting of a second decade of the Shaler Area merger, students are still coming together to express, "A View All Their Own."

Three individual members of a physical education class, Dave Griffith, Ray Spraw, and Ed Carney work as a team to set up strategies to score points in handball.

At an all-night float meeting Theresa Price, Debbie Wagner, and other seniors work together to finish their homecoming float.

Although these students have different expressions, they are all a part of one class moving towards a more complete knowledge of Economics.

School Support

We've Found Our Own Way

What do knocking on doors, painting signs, and making rainbows have in common? They are all ways in which students helped support activities in school. Hours were spent after school to bring more to education than reading, writing and arithmetic.

Instead of taking a back seat to Homecoming events twenty-five people became actively involved on the committee. As a result of their involvement everyone looked forward to Homecoming.

As some people worked on Homecoming, lights were burned in the Activities Center as others prepared to kick off the yearbook ad drive. To help the class of '82 show that they were the best, yearbook staff members created the lively slogan; "Support your View in '82", and designed displays relative to that slogan. On September 18, the ad drive was kicked off with an informative yet entertaining senior assembly.

In the comedy skits, who could forget Rick Peluso and Rob Corry, dressed as Miss America, or Linda Turner greeting guests with a cheer?

The juniors had their chance on October 22 when the magazine drive took off. Eager students sold over $4,000 worth of subscriptions the first weekend in hopes of winning many prizes. Without the support and involvement for "the other half of education" school would be nothing more than a place to study.

A variety of activities are represented by seniors in the Spectrum senior assembly.

JoAlyce Kopinski and Ron Carter introduce a skit at the drive assembly. Ron and JoAlyce are involved in functions including the stage, live senior, all school play and musical.

The Titan Shop is a place where students can stop in and buy a snack during the day. Tina Gianfrancesco and Karen Slean give up one of their study halls to work at the store.

A picnic in front of Shaler Jr. High School is one of the events enjoyed by Shaler students and residents during Homecoming '81.

The winning homeroom in ads members are Shawn Crobsy, Anna Dashner, Chris Clark, Veronica Cunningham, Jeanne Conrad, Debbie Dibucci, Gary Cooper, Bill Coates, Peggy Claus, Chris Cubellic, Brian Crane, and Mr. Knaebel.

The junior class broke all records by selling over $15,000 in their ad drive and their magazine captains pose here with the drive's prizes.

A football game would not be complete without popcorn and coke and Shaler's concessions stand provides these necessities for Titan fans.

Morning

Of a New Day

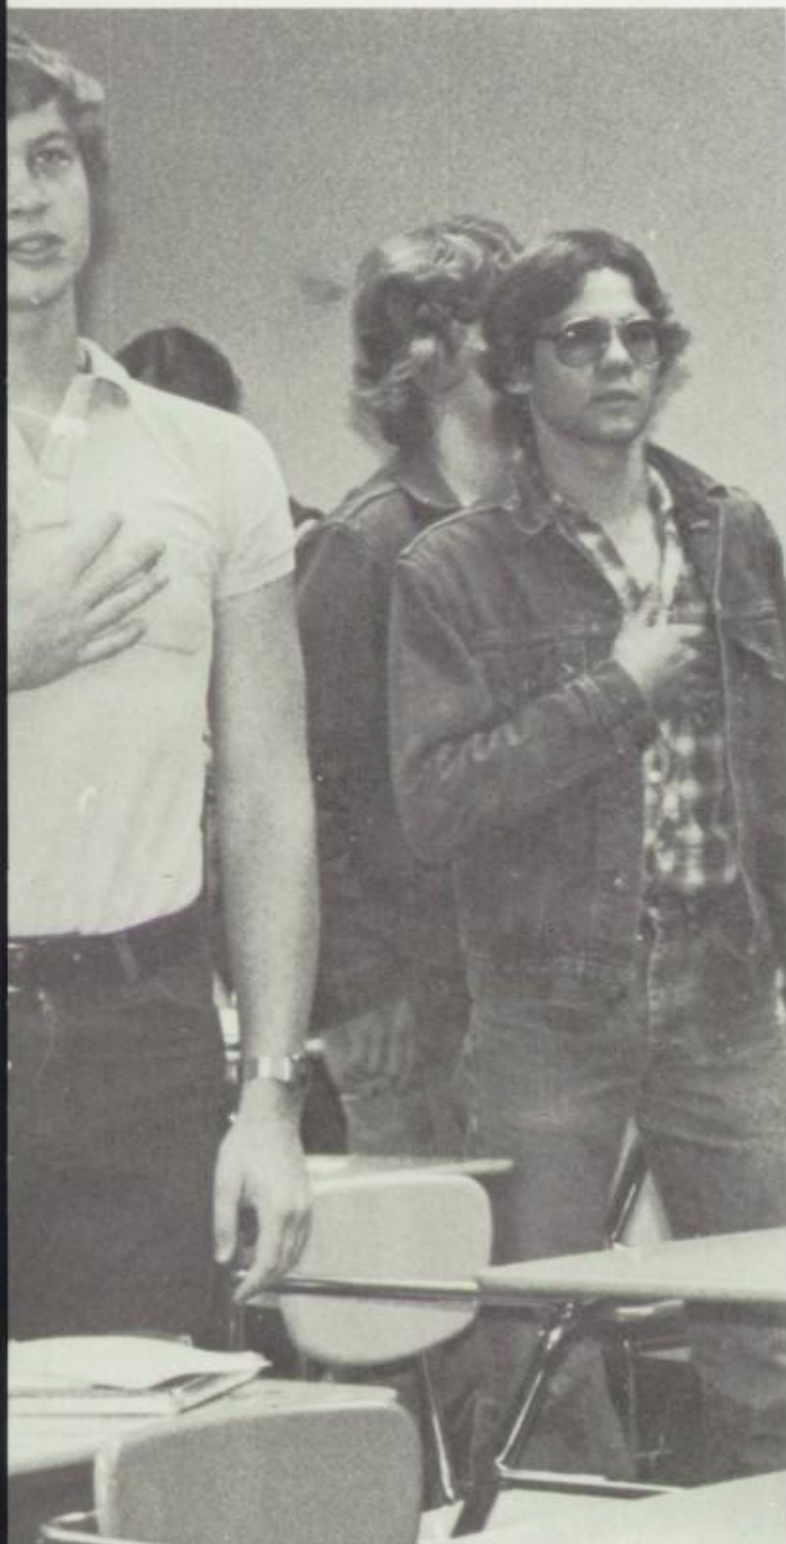

Morning. A word that many students dreaded. It meant getting up at an ungodly hour, gobbling down breakfast, and racing out the door.

After a quick snooze on a smoke filled bus, students, from as far away as Burchfield, and as near as Wible Run Road, arrived at school anywhere from 7:00 a.m. to 7:45 a.m. Clicks from combination locks were heard as everyone rushed to meet friends. The Titan Shop was always jumping with students wanting doughnuts, Snickers, gum, and crackers, and the activities center always was a hub of activity.

For some students though, the atmosphere wasn't quite what they would have liked it to be. Many were seen rushing about trying to finish a physics lab write up, or a last minute reading of Canterbury Tales. "It seems like every morning I have homework that didn't get done last night," said Heidi Schonauer. And then there was always Mr. Jack Banks' breakfasts for anyone needing help.

All in all the morning was fun time of the day which went too fast for too many students. Soon the bell rang, and everyone started moving toward their homerooms, trying not to think about a day filled with funsheets, The Crucible, or an economic lecture.

Before the beginning of school students rise for the pledge of allegiance.

Chris Clark's voice is clearly heard over the P.A. system during the morning announcements. Up-dated information is read every morning and afternoon.

On a dreary morning Jerry Allen steps off his school bus to start another day of school.

Just hanging around Amy Rost, Barb Schofield, Chris Solema, and Cindy Wirth enjoy a moment of free time in the halls before homeroom, as many students do.

Bob Rebel, Maryann Walsh, and Linda Kuntz get together to share laughs while waiting for the bus

Often various clubs and organizations hold meetings in the auditorium before the 8:00 a.m. bell rings for class to start.

Special Places

Pittsburgh and Shaler Area

"Mommy, Mommy, look at the big bird!" "Do you think we won?" "Wow, that float is really super." Children screamed, bands played and balloons sailed away. These were the sights and sounds at St. Bonaventure's parking lot at the start of the Homecoming celebration; while, for the first time in four years, the sun shined.

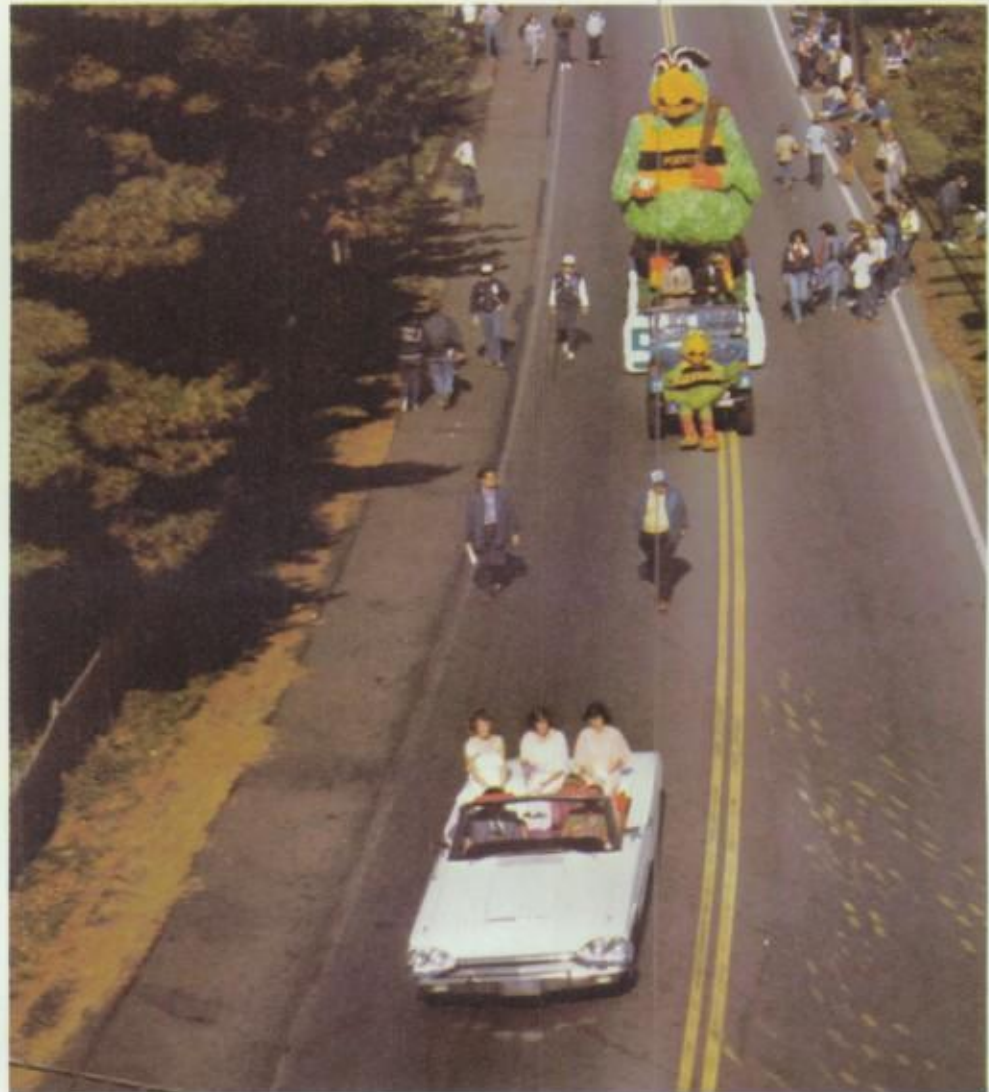

The cheerleader's pom poms sparkled, and the trumpets glared in the sunlight as everyone stepped in tune to "Washington Post." With the 1980 Homecoming queen, Tammy Dolby, leading the long line of floats, four wheel drive trucks replaced the almost extinct convertibles. Excited grade school children proudly displayed their banners before the North Hill Marching Band ended the parade at the junior high school, and the floats passed before the judges' stand.

Even the Pirate Parrot made it after one of his eyes had fallen into the palm of his hand; and a detour was taken to get him under the telephone wires.

People can get awfully hungry at a parade. Especially those who participated; so there wasn't a better time for a picnic. Parent groups and school clubs offered everything from tacos to baked goods. The yearbook staff even sold maps of the North Hills area. If a lost boyfriend needed to be found, or just a break from all the activity needed to be taken, this was the chance. The Homecoming committee dressed up as clowns and sold programs for the game. Titan hats, pom poms, and Homecoming buttons could all be bought for 50¢ or $1.00. The success of the picnic and all the other sights and sounds of that unforgettable Saturday in October helped make Homecoming a memorable festival of "Pittsburgh: Some Place Special."

Mt. Royal Boulevard is the setting of Shaler Area's 11th annual Homecoming Day Parade.

Placed in the middle of the parade are banners created by elementary school children. Leading the parade is the Homecoming Committee with a banner displaying the theme.

1. Choir: Iron City Beer; Beth Wilhelm, Jane Fingal and Chris Blanyer. 2. Senior Class: Pittsburgh Zoo; Debbie DiBucci, Kim Shord and Sandy Carr. 3. Band: Pirate Parrot; Joan Baker, LeAnn Staub, Denise McFadden and Julie Hoke. 4. Junior Class: Incline; Lori Alo, Vicki Dittrich and Joellen Nickel. 5. Sophomore Class: Heinz 57 Products; Amy Mackeness, Heather Powers and Ellen Peck. 6. Freshman Class: Kennywood Kangaroo; Sue Werth, Carol Dowling and Sue Kraus. 7. Beattle: Terrible Fan; Debbie Clothier, Lynn Britting and Kathi Krelsmaier. 8. French Club: Trolley Club; Tina Greiner, Renee Dimtroff, Tina Sutermaster and Karen Yates.

The Judges watch and score the floats as they come down Mt. Royal Blvd. They are chosen for their background in art and their impartiality.

At the Senior all night float meeting Lisa Greco, Sandy Letterle, Sandy Carr, and Debbie Franks work to finish their float.

Whose smiling faces appear over these homecoming T-shirts? The Homecoming Committee is responsible for organizing events and making them run smoothly.

While reviewing some details with Mr. Shutter, Molly McGinley, homecoming committee chairman, helps complete the decorations for the dance in the cafeteria.

Last minute touches are applied to the clowns and banners at Saint Bonaventure's parking lot, where floats gather before the parade.

The People That Make It Special

What if we run out of red crepe paper? What if there aren't enough blue flowers for the skirt? What if the "Pittsburgh: Someplace Special" buttons don't turn out? Although nobody liked to think about these things the doubts were there at one time or another during the preparation for Homecoming. And preparing was no easy task.

Choosing the theme "Pittsburgh: Someplace Special," the Homecoming committee began plans as early as July 15th. As soon as Molly McGinley was chosen as the chairperson, homecoming buttons were designed and ten posters were painted for the first day of school.

"This year we had twenty-five active members and there was a lot of unity among everyone," said Molly.

Homework came last for the members of nine clubs and organizations who worked on floats. With the theme "The Pittsburgh Zoo," the senior class came together at Debbie DiBucci's house to fluff endless blue and white napkins for the skirt. The Beattie Float even had the "Terrible Fan" himself march in the parade. The Band's "Pirate Parrot" was just a mesh of chicken wire until patches of green, black, and white showed up at 12:30 AM; from then on it was an all out effort to be ready at 10:00 AM the next morning at the St. Bonaventure parking lot.

And ready everyone was! It looked like the parade would start on time for once. But the judges still had to be greeted, the order of the floats arranged, and the boards stapled on the backs of all the grade school banners. Signs for all the booths at the picnic needed to be checked and programs counted for the game. But eventually the clock struck 11:00 AM and the parade pulled out to begin the festivities — ready or not.

The Homecoming picnic provided a chance for many organizations to raise money. Shown here, the Wrestling parents sell hot dogs to hungry customers.

A Day Of Memories From 11 to 11

Full bleachers, blue skies, and enthusiasm galore provided an optimistic atmosphere for the homecoming game. The terrible fan added spirit and life to the sidelines; kissing the cheerleaders and float queens. The Pirate Parrot also kept the crowds' enthusiasm high, by dancing to the music of the marching bands on the sidelines.

The football team did its best to hold the North Hills line back, but after the second quarter the scoreboard displayed Home 0 Visitors 14.

During halftime festivities roses were presented to the queens of the top floats: Band, Chorus, and Senior Class. The winning grade school banner from Rodger's was given a trophy, and Molly McGinley was honored for her fine job on the Homecoming preparations.

Then it was into the 2nd half and a strong Titan team was eager to take on the Indians. But the first place Titans were unable to score against first place North Hills. So, the final score stood 0-28.

That evening girls flocked into the high school cafeteria, for the dance with their favorite guy on their arm...and dancing began to the sounds of "Northbound."

But everyone was quiet when it came time to crown the queen. Mr. David Shutter announced the Band as the winning float. A small shriek was heard from the crowd, as LeAnn Staub rushed up to be crowned. The traditional queen's dance began before the lights were dimmed and everybody joined in.

October 10th will be remembered as a special day for everyone attending the parade, picnic, game, or dance as "Pittsburgh: Some Place Special" was celebrated by Shaler: Some Place Special.

Before the start of the game, Mr. Shutter pauses for a brief moment to chat with the Pirate Parrot and Terrible Fan.

As the band plays "A Pretty Girl" the queens of the nine floats stand in recognition for a job well done.

The drill team uses colored umbrellas to represent the colors of the rainbow during the halftime performance.

The co-host of "Pittsburgh 2-Day", John Wade, presents roses to Jane Fingal, queen of the Chorus float. Roses were given to the queens of the top three floats during the half-time show.

Pittsburghers

We Attend School Not Far Away

The school day began and ended at 381 Wible Run Road in the city of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. We lived in Shaler Area and yet we were still Pittsburghers in many ways, too.

As students in this area, only seven short miles outside of a large metropolitan area, it was evident that Pittsburgh proved many opportunities to live it up in the big city. There was always something going on. Whether it was a Steeler or Pirate game at Three Rivers Stadium, an appearance by "STYX" or "REO Speedwagon" at the Civic Arena, or a traveling Broadway company at Heinz Hall, this entertainment capital called to all students to come "downtown."

At Christmas, or some other special gift-giving time of the year, Kauf-mann's, Gimbles, Hornes, Sears or one of the many other national retail outlets, beckoned eager buyers to come and find that right item for that special friend or relative.

After or before the Prom, or some other special night out, there was no limit to the number of fine restaurants that students could choose for an impressive evening. And then a trip to Mt. Washington for a view of the city or a ride on the famous Duquesne Incline. What a perfect way to end an evening of fun and relaxation!

To those who grew up and attended school near the city so filled with entertainment opportunities, Pittsburgh really was someplace special.

Summer proves to be no time for relaxing as Mr. Gene Bles discusses some points of soccer with Jim Greenen.

It's Summer Enjoy it While You Can

During the eleven free weeks away from cafeteria food, English class, and homework, summer meant more than swimming or basking on a hot day. Far removed from term paper deadlines and chemistry labs, time had no restrictions.

"I relaxed all summer while swimming and camping," remarked Jean Vanasdale.

While some spent money at places like Ocean City, others made money.

"I worked fifteen to twenty hours each week all summer," said JoAlyce Kopinski.

Lifeguarding at Aspinwall Marina provided Nancy Storoz, Heidi Schnauer, Kathy Sawyer and Debbie Moraca with a few extra dollars for the fall.

Sweat, aching arms and ruined feet became painful realities during the summer break for some. As Danette DiMarco, a tennis player, put it, "It was tough." Sometimes working in ninety degree weather, the football, soccer, and cross country teams also practiced daily.

Members of the band, drill team, majorettes, flag team and cheerleaders ended their summer two weeks early with the start of band camp, while members of the yearbook staff prepared materials for their yearly projects.

No matter how the summer was spent: relaxing, working or practicing, it was a chance to forget schoolwork and live it up for awhile.

Senior Stars of '82

All Dressed in White And Blue

Tears, flowers, pride and accomplishment. These four words summed up Senior Night for students participating in fall sports and activities. Although their senior year was just two months old, a part of it was coming to an end. After spending hours of hard work for the past few years, the seniors' night of recognition was finally here.

At 6:30 everybody assembled in the junior high school cafeteria with their parents. Cheerleaders handed out mums as Mr. Paul Schweiger praised the class of '82 and their fine ad drive.

"It was the first time I realized I was truly a senior and this was the last time for everything," said Linda Etter. Although there was much more to come, it was the last time for football games, halftime dances, late night bus rides home from games and tennis practices.

Following the game everybody moved to the Junior High School gym to dance to T.B. Sound. The bleachers were packed when Mr.

David Shutter announced Lynn Schrieber and Matt Stennett as king and queen of fall sports and activities. Wearing their crowns and robes Lynn and Matt enjoyed a slow dance for a few moments before the gym floor filled with other couples.

For the 86 seniors recognized on Senior Night, October 26 would always bring a tear, as they recalled all the good times they enjoyed while participating in High School.

Places To Meet Often

We Find Our Friends Here, Too

"We come down here to relax, catch a smoke, and maybe frostbite. We're all trying to avoid the same things," said junior Tony Franz as he shivered in the concrete-cold sparseness of the smoking area. People milled about, talked during lunch, and met at any other free moment.

One of the favorite gathering places for groups of friends, the smoking area, was set in a secluded area away from well-traveled halls and classrooms.

This was not the case for those who met on the second or third floors. Lines of students mingled along stair and balcony railings, occasionally blocking traffic or shouting greetings to passing friend. Why these particular places? Because they provided a good vantage point to just watch others go about their daily business. Frequently those others glanced up and were concerned by the crowd above them. Do they try to make people nervous? — "Sure do!" asserted Pete Brown.

One of the most popular meeting places for those students involved in extra-curricular school activities was the Student Activities Center. This was the place to go to make payments on yearbooks or caps and gowns, buy a newspaper, or just make plans for the next club meeting. Daily, students from many projects and clubs were called to the center to prepare upcoming events.

One of the more casual meeting places was the large group instruction room better known as the LGI, the benches in front of the school, a friend's homeroom door, or the busy intersection leading to the social studies or english wings of the building. Any available space was a potential meeting spot for friends to just stand and talk. As Dave Braun put it, "We just like standing here."

World Scene

It Effects Us All

Current Events: Homecoming, Senior Night, parties, dates, ad campaign, school play and musical. But what about: The prime interest rate change, the Royal Wedding, the funeral of Sadat, Awacs or the price of gasoline?

When students get so involved in the programs and activities at school, they often forget about the larger world around them. But it is difficult to forget for long when radios and TV's remind them of the outside world. It becomes even more apparent as they read daily newspapers such as the Pittsburgh Press and Post Gazette or weekly magazines like "Time", "People" and "Newsweek".

Students activated by the media took a closer look at the world scene by taking Current Events class with Mr. Wesley Semple.

These current events included everything from the price of gasoline to favorite rock groups.

Returning from a Pittsburgh Concert of the favorite group "Journey" are Karen Lyle, Lynne Spychalski and Gail Yerkins. Journey's album, "Escape" was listed near the top of the album chart during September and October.

"But the comics are a part of the newspaper, too!" exclaims Kevin Klinvex and Bob Ochsenhirt. They find difficulty convincing Mr. Wesley Semple that Dennis the Menace and Andy Capp teach current events. He suggests Doonesbury.

The price of gasoline is a definite factor in the work day of Jeff Nauer.

"Time" magazine gives Bonnie Cavanaugh and Cathy Duffy an opportunity to catch up on the news of the week.

"Is organized crime a factor in society?"
The current events bulletin board might have an answer for Jeff Gierl.

Part of the Senior Assembly, is the skit showing how not to sell ads. Also included in the assembly are skits showing the proper way to sell them.

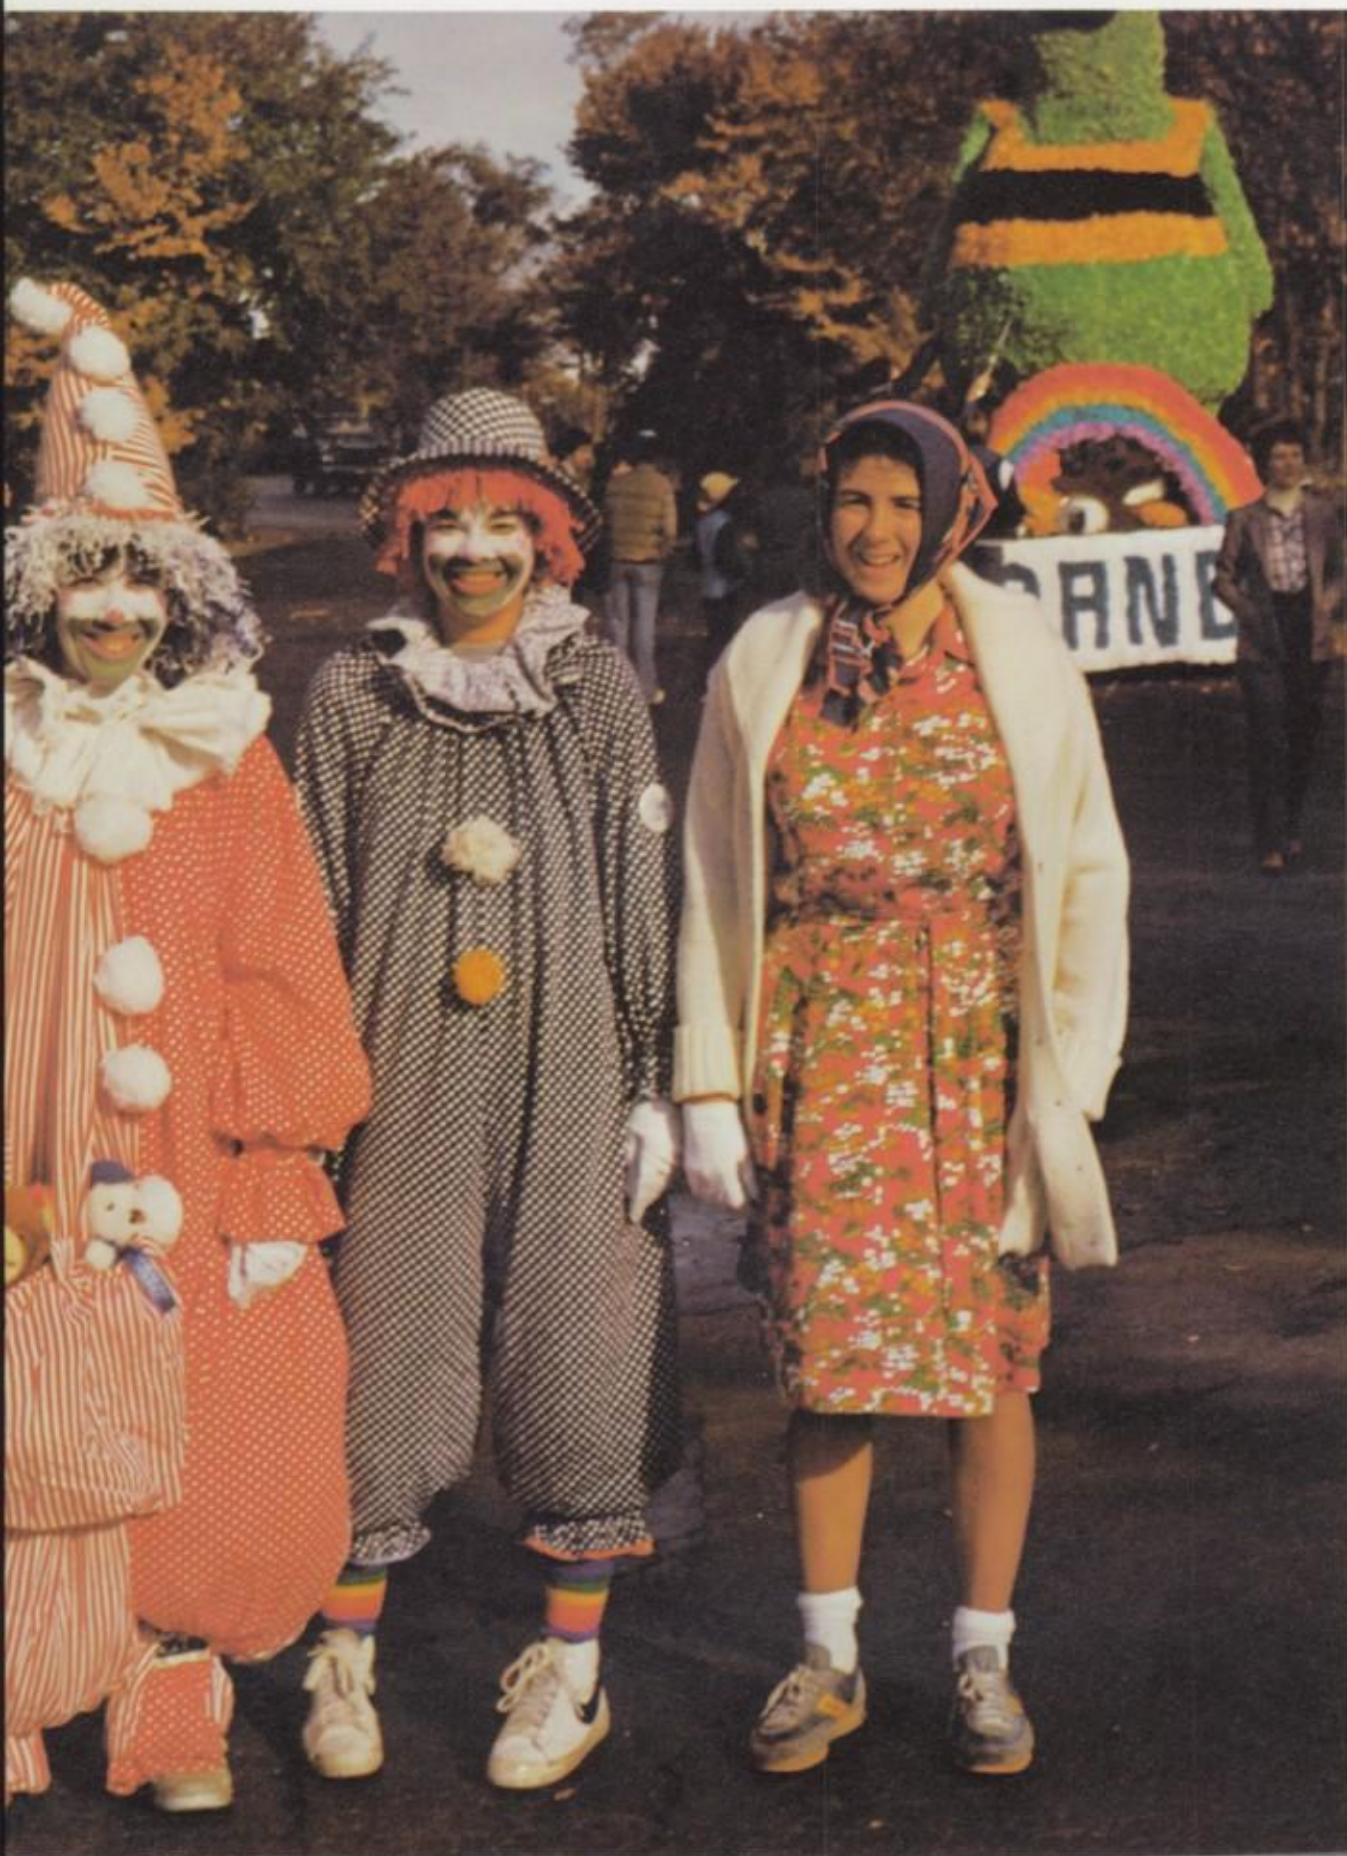

During the summer Sharon White and Mary Beth Weaver, members of the cheerleading squad, perfect routines which they will use during the year.

The halftime show for Homecoming was a delight to many. Members of the band get into a formation to add the finishing touches.

In the Spectrum senior assembly, Rick Peluso and Rob Corry dress up as future Miss America contestants while M.C., Al Secen, sings the theme song.

A Time To Be Crazy

Escaping Routine

Attending classes from 8:00 a.m. until 2:25 p.m. sometimes made us want to go crazy. Girls dressed as guys, guys dressed as girls, and everyone dressed as clowns.

The Homecoming parade, assembly skits, football games and parties gave us the opportunity to do things that normally wouldn't fit into the formal classroom. But this was just as much a part of school life. It reminded us that being ourselves was equally important.

We Have It All

A yearbook is supposed to cover one's high school years, which are in many ways considered to be the best years of life, and include everything from the first football game to the end of the year Senior Prom. But in order for a yearbook to be complete, the reason for coming to school in the first place cannot be ignored. And that is to learn. Whether it's to read the latest novel, to memorize a sine function chart or to analyze the parts of an engine, it's all the same thing — "academics."

Normally when the word "academics" is heard students think of being stuck in a class which they didn't even sign up for. This was not the case at Shaler. A student could practically make his own schedule. Even the required courses provided students with adequate choices.

If English Literature wasn't preferred, then Business English could be taken. And mini courses offered something for everyone. Physical Education had choices ranging from aerobics (Dancing) to street hockey.

With not as much emphasis placed upon channeling students into specific programs of study, there was a greater freedom to choose classes according to a need or interest. This gave rise to a good deal of mixing of schedules with classes in business, college preparatory and technical areas. In addition there were numerous elective class offerings like speed reading, chorus and advertising.

As Mona Stauber put it "I think I want to go to college, but I may end up going to a business school."

"I want to major in accounting in college, so I took Accounting II as well as Calculus this year," said Laurie Kozlowski.

Although activities and athletics were thought of most, "academics" was not so bad after all. Many times attending classes was fun, especially if that special guy or girl sat in the next row.

A Variety of Courses

Students work diligently to complete their assignments in Mrs. Janet Heberle's seventh period typing class.

In Spanish 4 class students not only learn how to speak Spanish but also about Spanish speaking countries. John Wagner points out a specific location on the map to Kelly Yaggi.

Democrats and conservatives are the topic of discussion in Mr. Karl Knaebel's 6th period Political Science class.

About The World

Let's take a tour of the world through the eyes of Shaler. This expedition covers many areas, but hopefully it won't be too confusing.

Now we are traveling through the countries of the Western Hemisphere while examining their people and histories. Interestingly, little is known of places so near as Venezuela and Brazil. "I didn't realize what the people were like and that they had such problems."

Before we go on we had better get a sense of direction as to where we are. Here's the place. Let's stop in for a visit in Mr. Semple's geography class — countries, mountains, rivers. Hopefully they are all intact in our minds and we can find our way through this confusing world.

To our left, is Current Events class keeping our tour up to date on the latest news. Coming up just past current events is Political Science where we learn how a political system is run.

Because of the current Reagan Government much concern has risen in the next section you are about to see. Here we are, Economics. Intense study of the financial workings of the system can be seen as people daily report to this area.

Well this ends the tour of Shaler's view of the world so stick around or come back again sometime.

From a Classroom View

The overhead is a very effective device for helping students to take notes in Mr. William Etter's class in Western Cultures.

Pointing out to Bob Kagle articles in the newspaper related to the current topic in class on San Francisco is Mr. Wesley Semple.

Molding a ball of clay into a bowl takes a lot of skill and patience as Bernie Stopera works on his class project.

Getting it all together means more than just drilling on the field for the marching band as they practice their parts in school.

Take A Break

No homework, no tests, no studying — sounds like a good class, right? That's what art, gym and music classes are like. Any student, academic, business, technical or general, could take these courses.

While some students felt that "art and music are for people who want to go into careers in those fields," others felt exactly the opposite. "I can't draw but I took art because I wanted a class I didn't have to study for." "I took crafts because I like to make things." "I took Band because I wanted to march, and it give me a break from books."

Other students wished they had more room in their schedule for art or music. "If we had an eight-period day I would've taken art." "If I had room I'd take another art course."

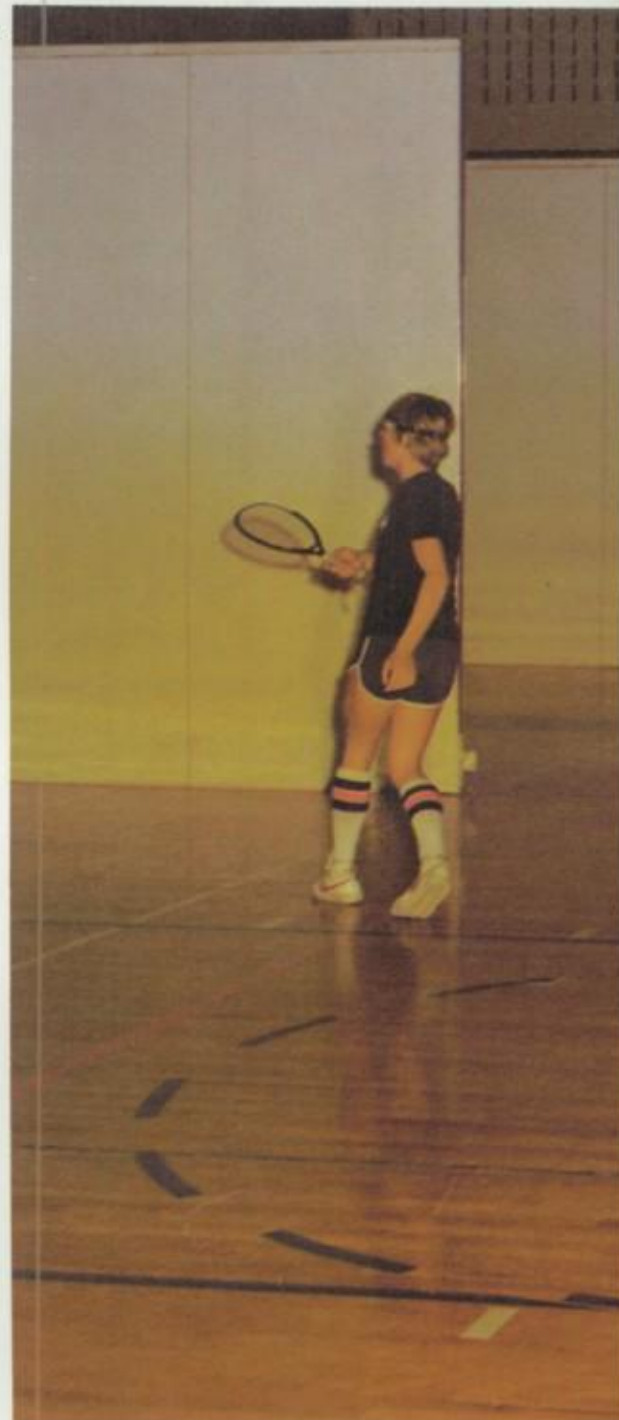

The gym program offers a lot of choices — racquetball, aerobics, conditioning, volleyball, and gymnastics to name a few. Some students think there are not enough choices; others say there is a good selection. And some students view gym as leisure time, but many agree that it's too much to ask some to move more than a few feet at a time.

Opinions of the gym classes vary as much as the students themselves: "Gym's fun." "Gym's boring." "Gym is too tiring." "It gives me a chance to do something besides sit in a chair all day." "I'm not very athletic — I can't stand gym!" "I like gym, especially when we do gymnastics." "It has good sports programs." "It's all right when you do something good." "It's the best class of my day."

Whether students liked art, music and gym or whether they disliked them, they all seemed to agree that those classes were ones that didn't require homework or studying. And everyone likes that!

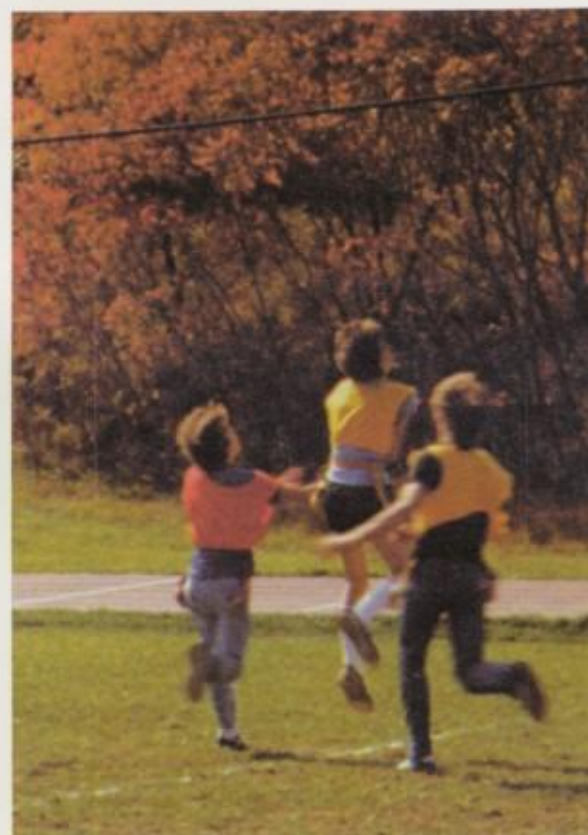

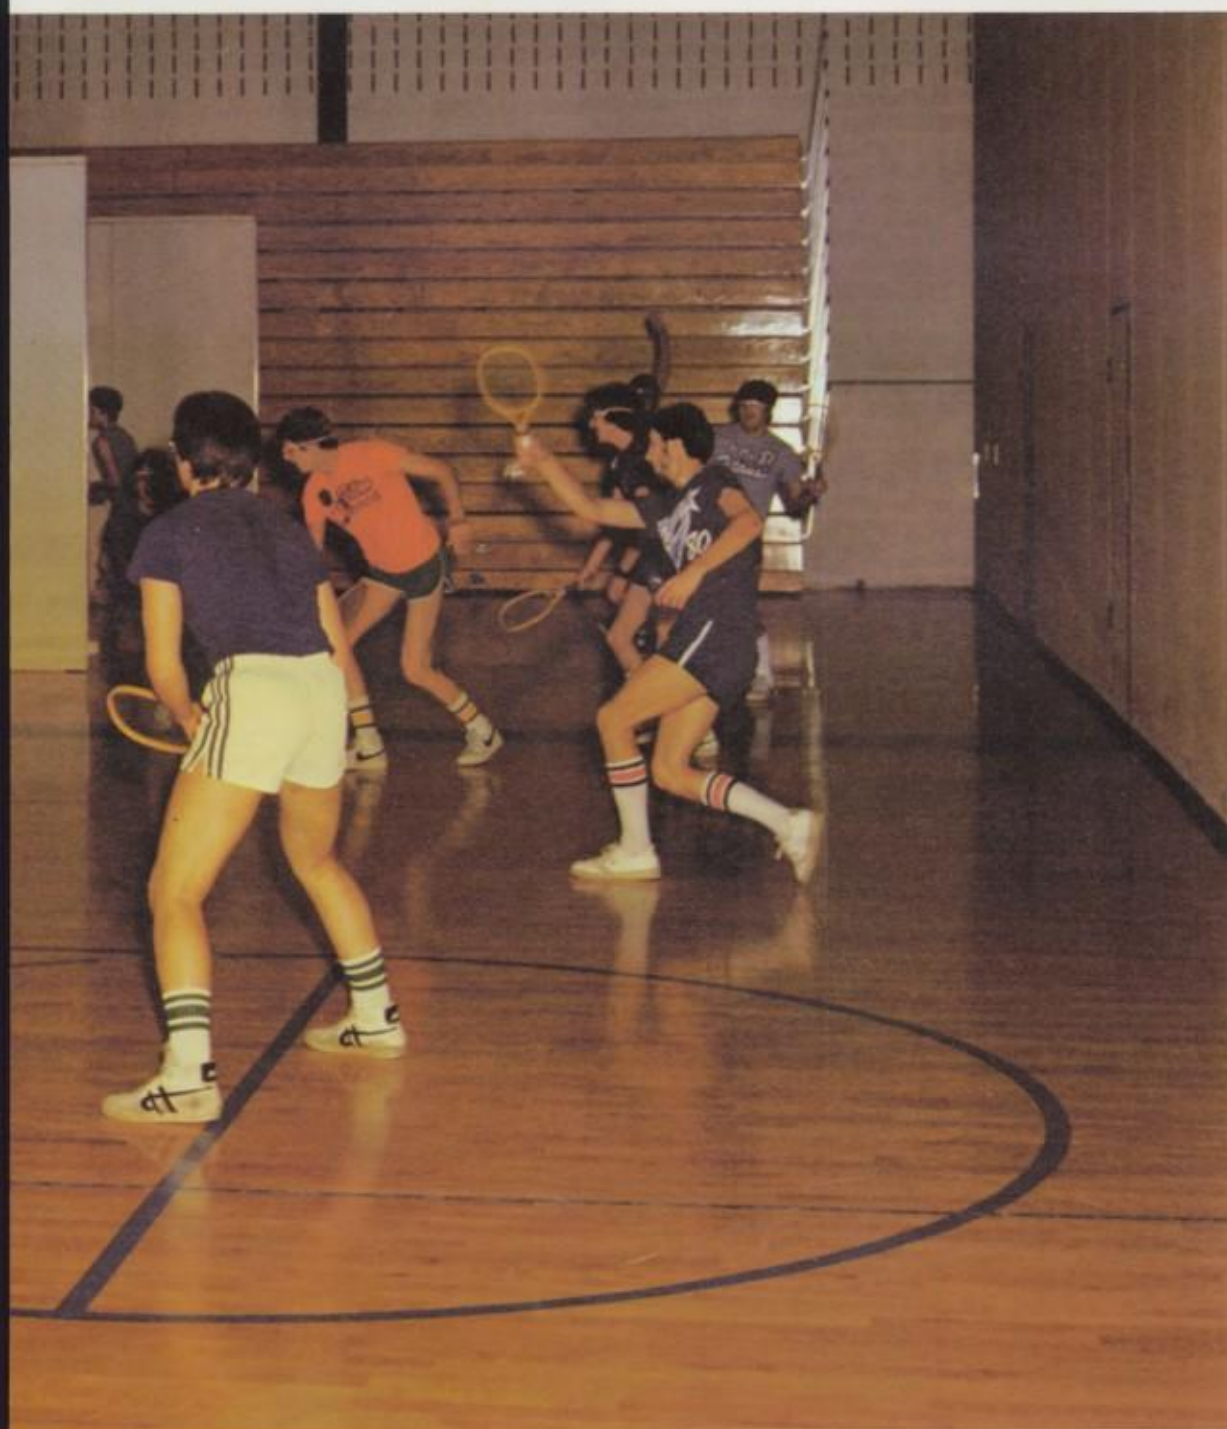

Learn To Enjoy Leisure

To make her ring smooth Linda Bisch uses a sanding machine in Mr. Frank Schmunk's sixth period jewelry class.

Sopranos and altos harmonize together in class in preparation for their upcoming Christmas concert.

A game of flag football in gym class gives students an opportunity to enjoy the outdoors while escaping the normal class routine.

Speed and agility are necessary skills needed to succeed in racquetball. Mr. Steve Park's seventh period gym class gets in shape working on these skills.

Communicating

The English department with a series of mini-courses offered at Shaler Area High School has occasionally come under criticism from those in and out of the school. Below is a simulated conversation between an outsider and a high school student.

Q: Did you see any advantages in the half-year courses?

A: Yes, I did. Teachers were able to maintain interest at a higher level than in a year-long class. Also, the mini-courses that followed provided more variety.

Q: What about the language department?

A: Not many schools had five-year programs like ours in Spanish and French. And, on top of that, we have a three-year program in German.

Q: And what was your overall opinion of the teachers in these departments?

A: The teachers impressed me as really knowing their materials. With such a variety of courses offered, that was a big surprise for me.

Q: Did your opinion of our English and language programs change during your visit?

A: Yes, I was pleased to see that Shaler had a strong commitment to make these departments work for their students.

Q: Would this program have interested you when you attended school?

A: At least I would never have been bored!

And Stating It Properly

Speed reading can be difficult, but the pacer exercise helps Jim Robick to acquire better reading ability.

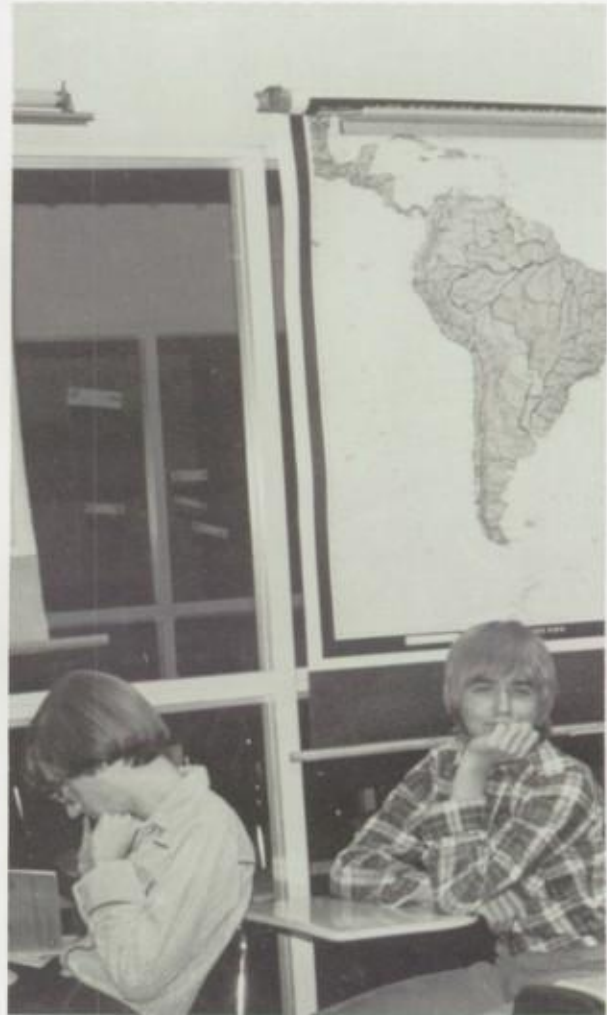

In order to write an effective article for his journalism class, Terry Klink enlists the aid of his teacher, Mr. John Petro.

A celebration of Saint Catherine's Day is a special occasion in a French 4 class. The students made their own hats and prizes were given for the best ones.

Study hall provides an opportunity for Craig McGarrah to study and Harry Welhrauch just to relax and take it easy.

Concentration on what Miss Alice Smolkovich has to say is shown on the face of Debbie Hudak as she participates in a committee meeting of the Spanish Honor Society.

In her Business English class, Mrs. Elizabeth Segina, explains a certain principle to Sandy Loncaric.

Using a Bunsen Burner, Mike Varley heats a test tube to make sure it is dry. Al. Secen, Dave Wagner and Craig Weber also work in the lab on the chemistry experiment.

Physics class requires a lot of concentration as Bill Meier, Bruce Wallace and Dan Knorr work on their experiment in lab.

Find Results

Purpose:

The faculty set out to present the basics of various levels of math and science. (For some students it was an opportunity to enjoy a double period nap.)

Procedure:

The departments used five periods per week plus two lab periods for some classes, gave plenty of long difficult homework assignments, and quizzes. (Some exciting movies that mom may have seen.)

Results:

The math and science department offered such classes as biology, chemistry, physics, nuclear science, algebra, trigonometry, calculus, and computer science. All of these classes taught students the basics necessary to prepare them for further education. (Some exercise was gained on dashes to Titan Shop during the double period break.)

Conclusion:

All the labs, homework and quizzes seemed tedious, but they forced students to learn not only facts and figures but how to think. (Even the unending pile of funsheets or lab write ups were worth it.)

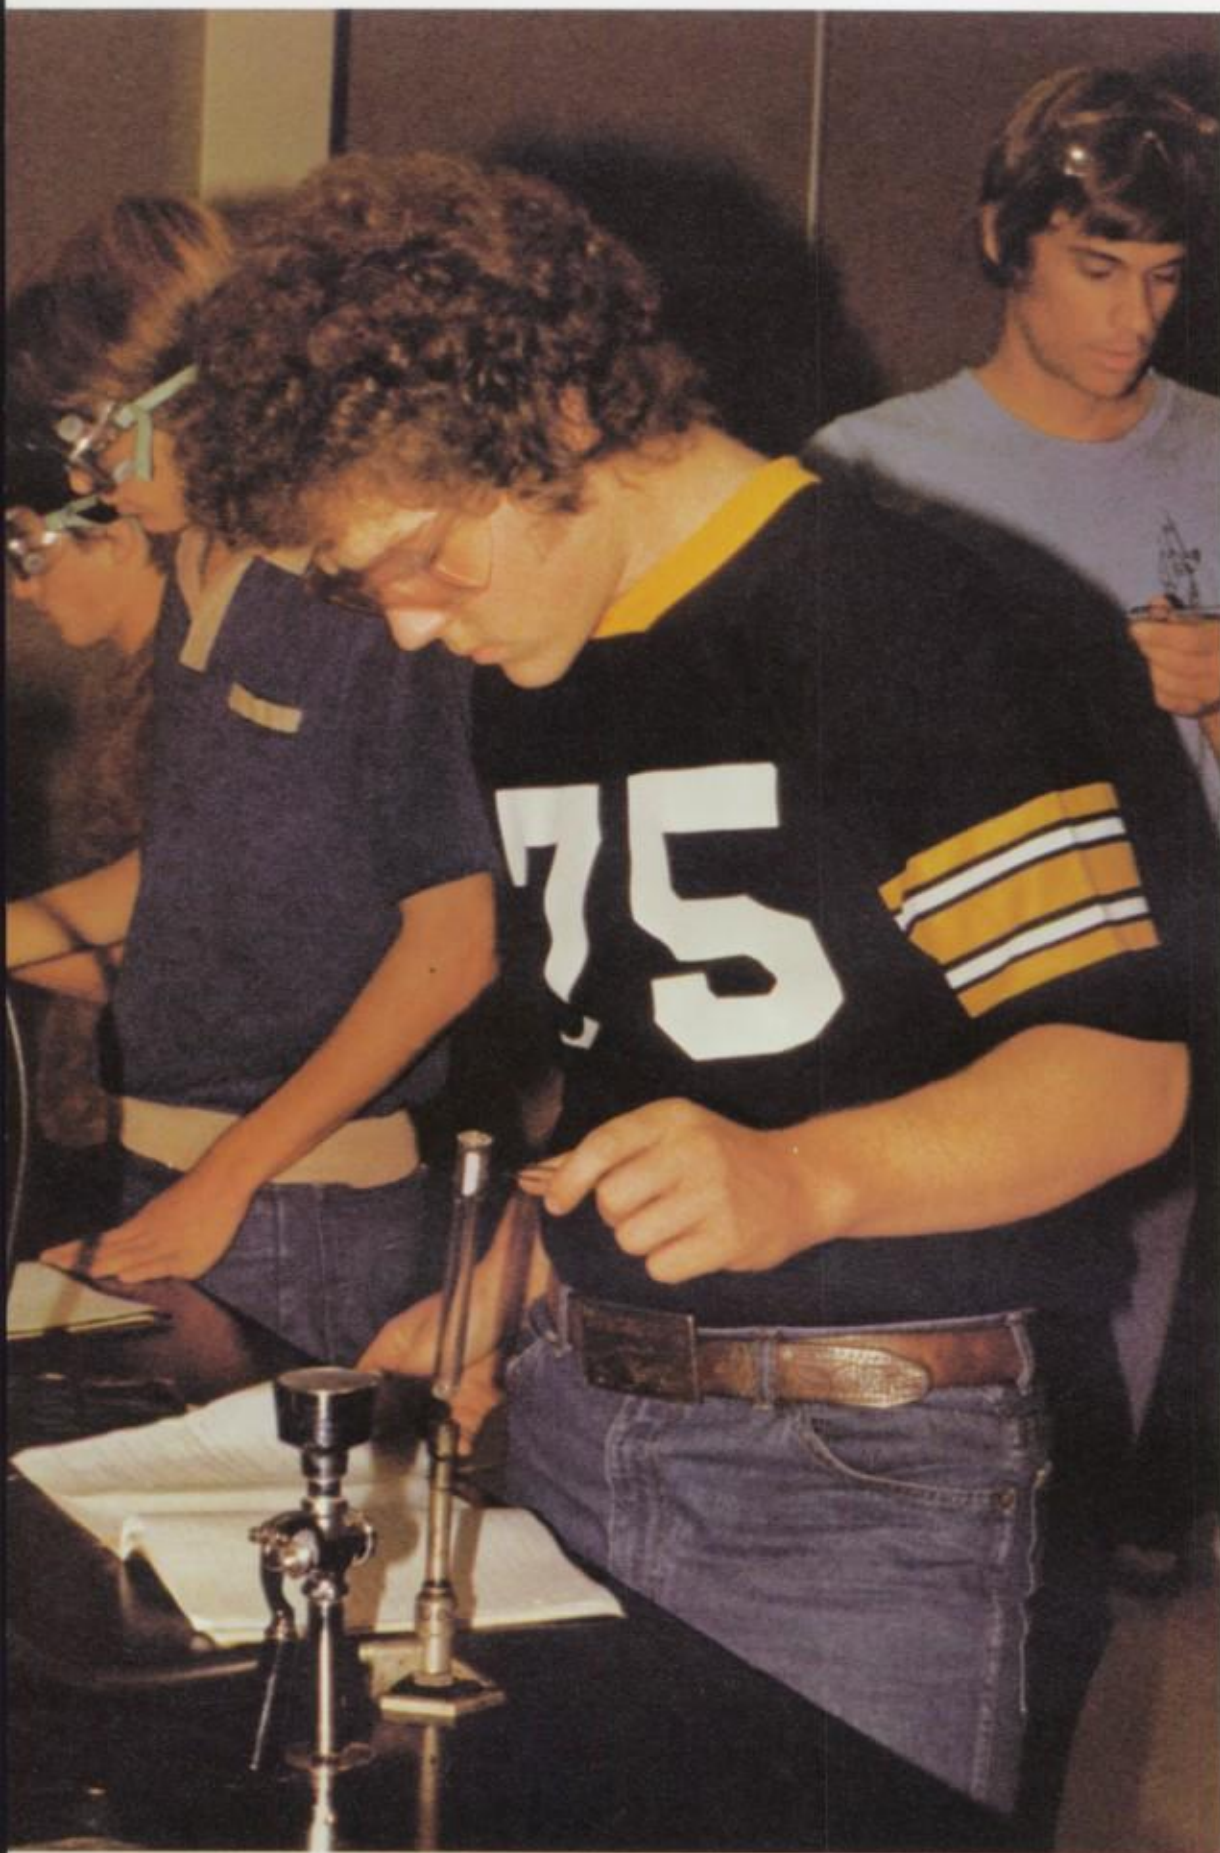

By Calculating The Difference

The concentration of Beth Sabat is evident as she types in a program during her computer science class. Scott Jackson provides encouragement and assistance to her.

Working with a microscope are Dave Markoff and Darlene McMarlin in their 1st period Biology class. Pat Burke and John Kuzemchak work on their own assignments.

Student medical assistants study the human skeleton in their Beattie class. Kelly Christian and Almee Duerstein are required to wear white smocks for the class.

Demonstrating how to do a computer program on balancing is Mr. John Banks. He gives Sharon Kania a little extra help during his 1st period class.

A notebook, pencil and a book are necessary materials for Alegbra II. Making use of these materials is Ron Nowack.

The large kitchen at Beattie enable many students to practice their cooking at one time. Jim Holland cooks on one of the stoves at the technical school.

An adding machine can be a useful device as Chris Kaib finds out as she is instructed to add a column of numbers in business class.

Putting the skills she has learned in her Beattie hair cutting class to the test on a real customer is Lori Cherry.

Labor Scene

It's a tough, competitive world out there, and that fact was almost enough to make one afraid to enter the working world. But the business courses offered at Beattie and Shaler provided the necessary education and confidence.

Some of the courses included Typing, Business English, Accounting, Data Processing and Cosmetology. These classes were designed to prepare students for job entry level.

"It's more than just reading out of a book; it's participating in all types of jobs in the field," commented Amy Hall, an accounting student at Beattie Tech. These classes gave a kind of "on the job training" and supplied useful training.

Students gained valuable experience that became useful when filling out a job application. Those in data processing operated various computers and cosmetology students actually worked on customer's hair. In clerical classes, such as typing and shorthand, students were able to concentrate on increasing speed and efficiency. "Skills really impress employers," noted Sandy Bernardi, "and they show you have ability and sensitivity."

These programs laid strong foundations for enterprising, young adults to build a successful future.

We Are Ready For The Job

"Food Service" is one of the courses offered at Beattie and Patti Dougherty sets tables as one of the requirements.

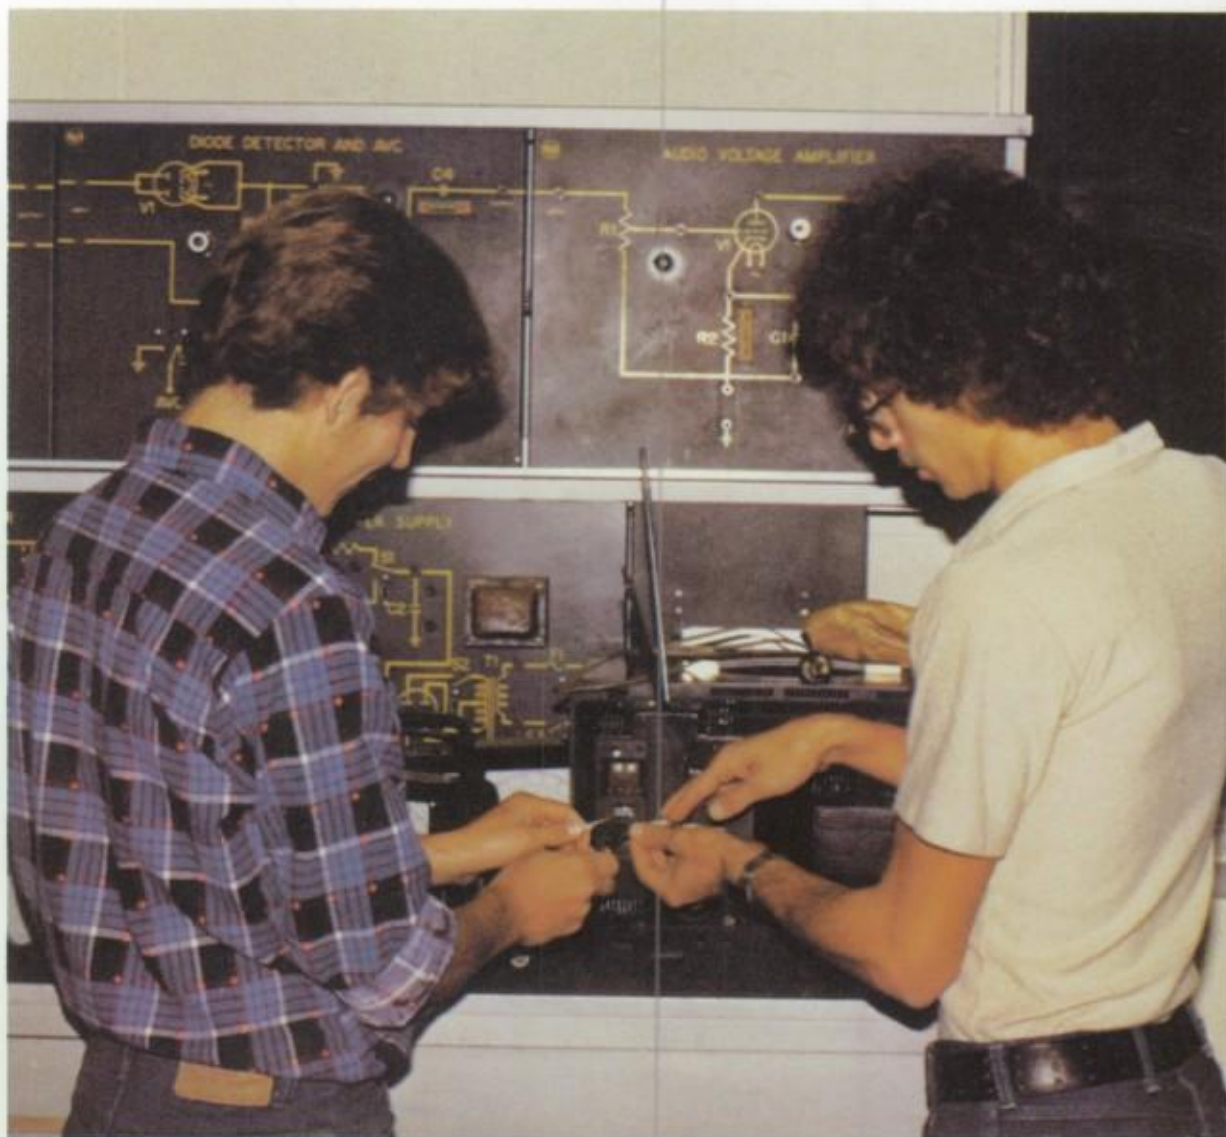

In Word Processing class Miss Lynn Mnex instructs her student on how to use a new office machine.

Satisfying their hunger by buying a candy bar at the Titan Shop is John Lochner and Nick Panza, while Donna Calderone and Chris Cubelic wait on them.

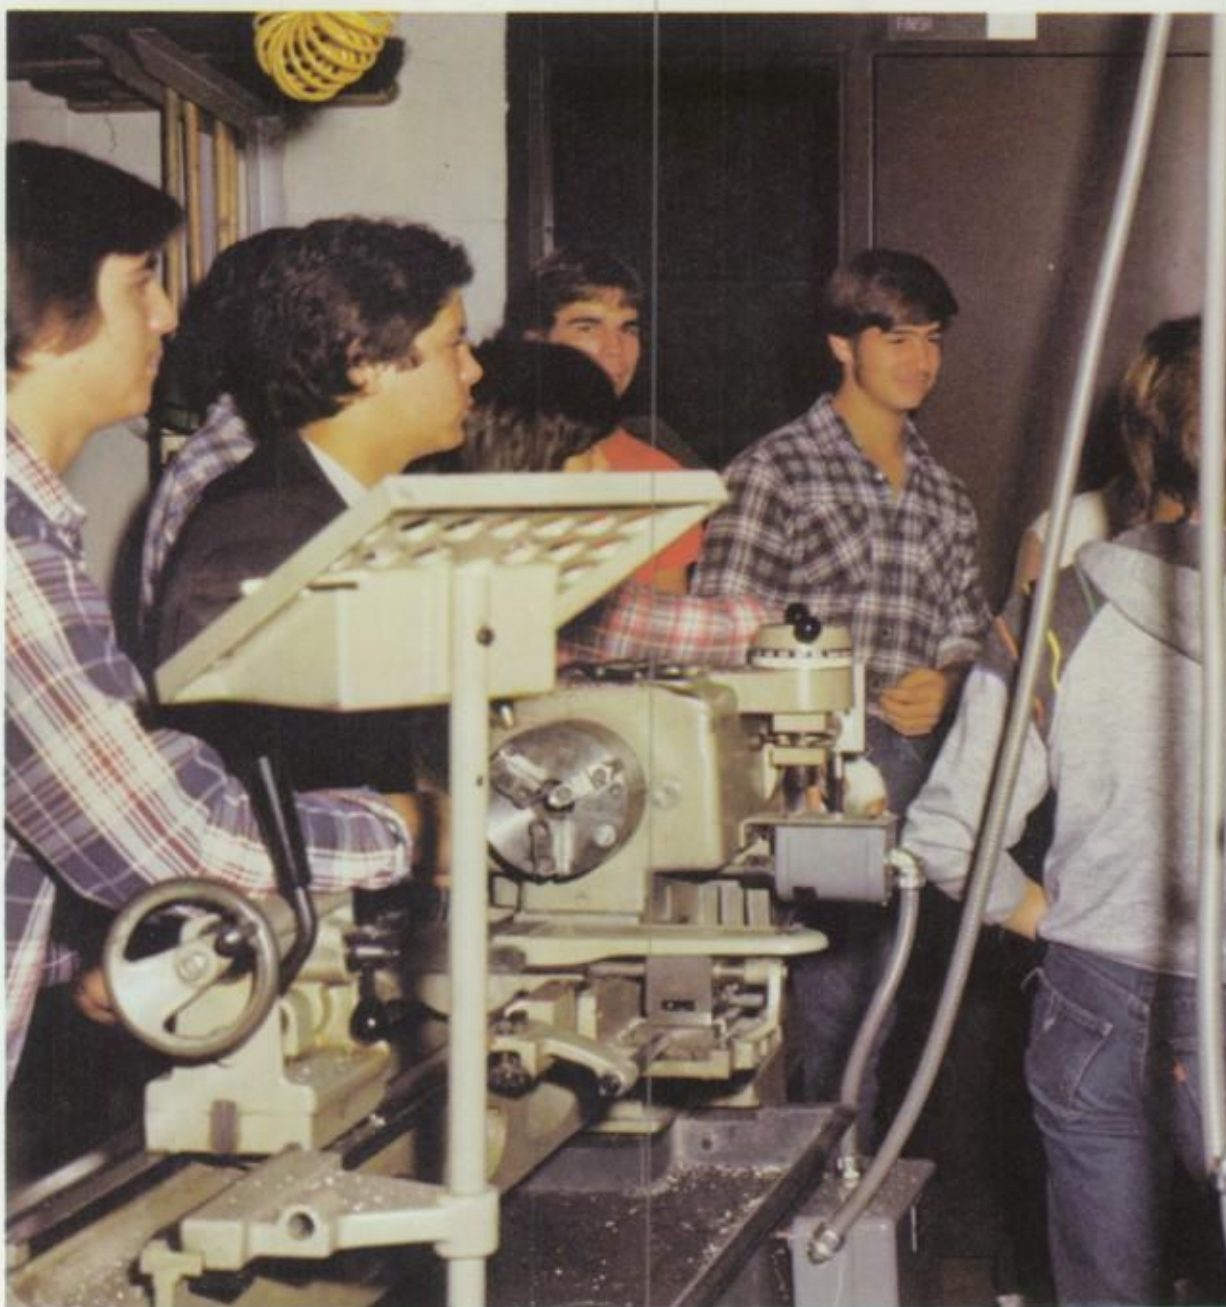

The learning process is not an easy road as Bob Kulbacki and Jeff Field learn when they work together on the complicated insides of a television.

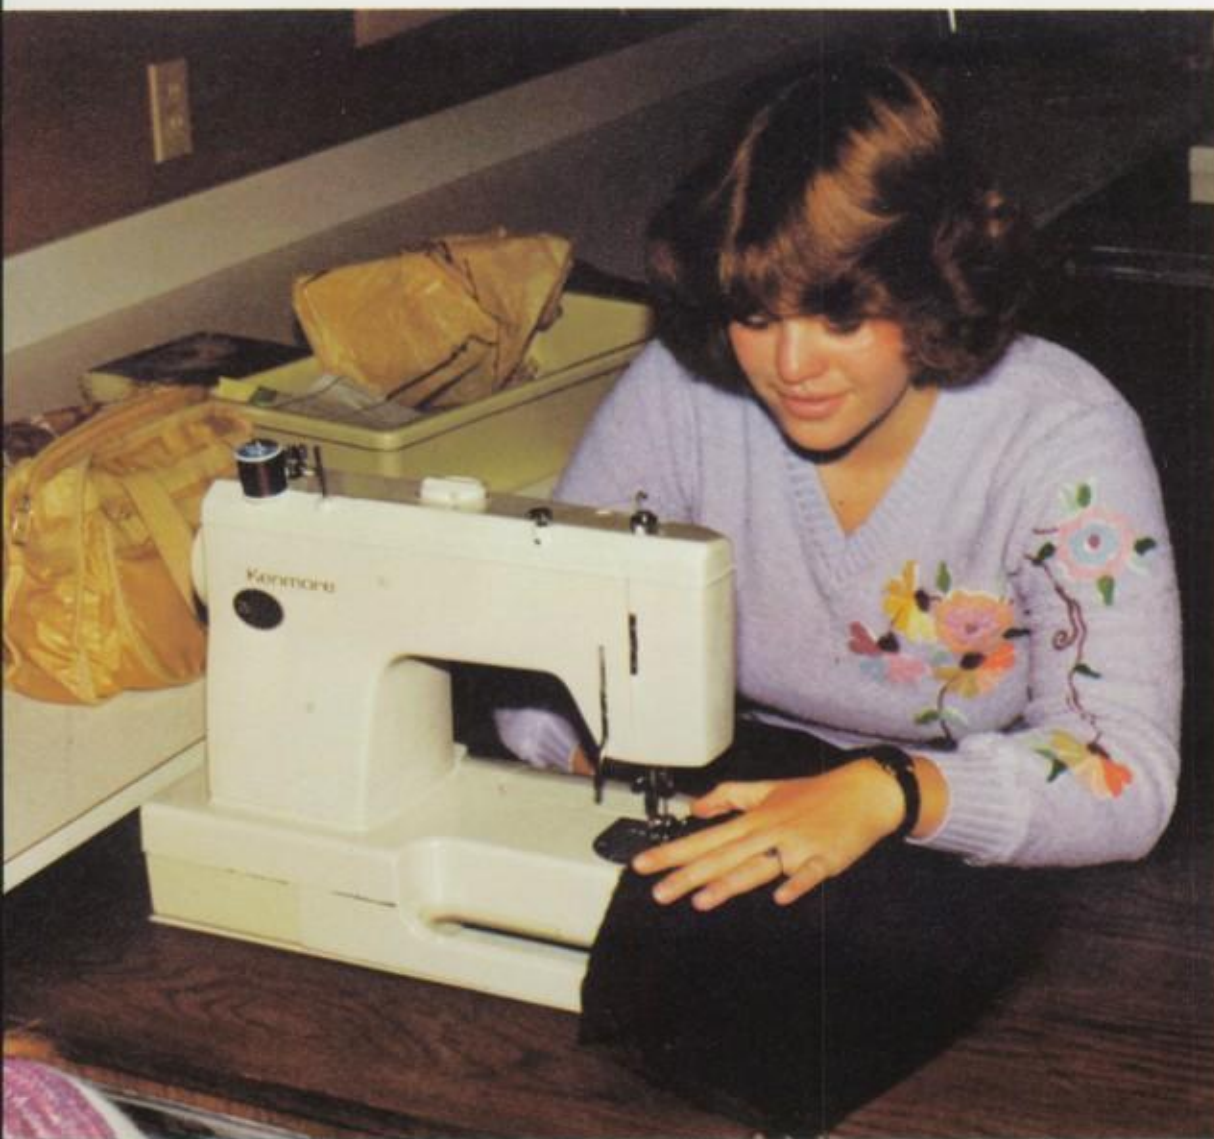

At Beattle, Jim Wagner learns how to fix a stove from his instructor Mr. Nicholas Mastandrea in his Appliance Repair class. The class learned and practiced how to fix all major appliances.

With a look of determination Shirl Saunders works on her project in her Wood Shop class.

A Metal Shop 2 class learns the technique of sharpening bits from Mr. Donald Gindelsberger during first period.

Making her project for Home Economics brings a smile to the face of Debbie Hoffman. Sewing was offered as an elective course to interested students, who were able to choose their own patterns.

Gaining experience in child care is valuable to those who take child care development and nursery lab. Parents leave their toddlers at the school everyday to provide this opportunity.

Be Practical

"Making your own saves money and you get the right size and fit," said Lynn Esswein, a clothing student. Bob Wimer, a woodshop student quipped, "In woodshop you have the opportunity to make things that you couldn't get otherwise." These comments were a result of students learning to be practical.

Courses offered at Shaler Area High School and Beattie Technical School encouraged students to get involved in what they could do themselves. These courses included foods, clothing, woodshop, and car maintenance. These gave students techniques and ideas that they could use in their own lives.

While fees for services rendered soared, students who had taken some practical courses at school found they did not have to pay quite as much. Their courses gave them the ability to get something done themselves. Instead of paying hard-earned money to get a car fixed, students saved their money, and did the job themselves.

Valuable knowledge for today's world

Aids To Ed

Who needed supplementary education? We did! Supplementary education included everybody from the guidance department to the nurse. Counselors helped us to choose colleges, to elect courses and to make intelligent decisions.

The library, another part of supplementary education, provided us with technical information, or free reading materials.

Mr. Deets, in charge of the audio-visual room did research of a different sort, in lending out instructional media materials and the equipment to utilize these materials.

Special classes were offered to students with learning disabilities or who needed additional help with reading skills under the supervision of teachers with specialized training and a great deal of understanding.

Medical care through the nurse's office was also necessary. If a student became ill, he or she went to see Mrs. Wilma Sedlak, hoping to be sent home. She always managed to make us feel better.

All of the administrators really participated in the supplemental education process. Teachers were always helpful if we had questions. They often stayed after school to help students in need of extra time.

We Really Do Need Them

Taking time out to hand out lunch tickets to students like Bonnie Peindl is Mr. Edward Cochrane.

In order to aid Rich Sees develop his vocabulary Mr. Edward Stotsky introduces him to the electronic word scrabble board.

Late slips are necessary to get into class. Mrs. Wilma Sedlak writes a late slip for Joyce McCusker to prove she was in the nurse's office.

As a guest speaker in a business law class, Mr. Condeluci, discusses the laws of attendance in reference to minors.

Research work can sometimes be difficult, but Greg Schmitt finds Mrs. Dorothy Baker very helpful.

Aiding students like Debbie Wagner in finding colleges appropriate for their interests is the GIS operated by Mrs. Barbara Folino.

The system of fines for text books and library materials is explained to Dean Mackey by Mr. Robert Stotsky.

A Snow "Ball"

for the Christmas Season

With Christmas just around the corner, what could get someone into the Christmas spirit better than a Christmas dance? For the first time ever, the winter event was not a Junior-Senior Prom. Instead, it was an evening of fun and dancing enjoyed by both singles and couples in their own high school cafeteria. For girls the dress ranged from long gowns to knickers, while most guys wore sports jackets or suits.

With a blanket of snow and ice surrounding the school, entering the building may not have been easy, yet it was certainly worth the effort.

With a variety of songs one could fast dance to the sounds of the high school group "Dynasty."

"It really got me into the Christmas spirit with all the decorations and window paintings," said Sue Plant. The dance committee, headed by Bonnie Santucci and Vickie Dittrich, spent numerous hours after school making plans and preparing for the upcoming event until the final decorations were hung Friday before the dance. All the work was worth the effort when the memorable moment came and senior Linda Etter was crowned as Queen, and her escort, Tom McConnell, a guest from North Catholic High School, became King.

Although term papers and assignments may have been on the minds of many when they came to the dance, this evening's excitement made all who attended forget for a while things that needed to be done and think only of Christmas and good friends.

Many couples enjoy dancing to the slow songs played by Dynasty. Everyone enjoyed dancing to fast songs also.

March To A Beat They Provide

Just what is a band? According to the dictionary, it is a musical assemblage that employs brass, percussion and woodwind instruments. Now, what is a Titan band? It is a group of talented, fun-loving musicians with one common interest — making music.

The band was an essential part of many school activities. For instance, no football game was complete without the marching band to add to the fun and excitement of the whole Evening. During half-time, such memorable performances as "The New York Hat Dance" and the "We Are Family" routines delighted and entertained the spectators.

There was not only the marching band, but also the concert stage ensemble and the symphony band. All were conducted by Mr. Woodring, who was in his first full year of teaching at the high school.

Attending band practice wasn't all that a responsible band member was obligated to do; selling was also one of the member's tasks. The students sold candy bars and hoagies to finance a trip to Ocean City, Maryland. Although being a member of the band was an awful lot of involved hard work, each student was rewarded with the special friendship and closeness that results from being part of a group.

To be queen for a day is every girl's dream and Lee Ann Staub, representing the Band Float was given this opportunity along with her attendants, Joan Baker, Denise McFadden, and Julie Hoak.

A blast of brass livens up the half-time show as members of the marching Band entertain the crowd.

To learn to play the piano is not an easy task. Neither is composing your own song, but Jackie Brockhoff accomplishes both and entertains her audience.

Sing In Class

Not long ago, in a land not far from here, there existed students who belonged to a Chorus. They enjoyed it and had a good time while doing it.

The tinkling of a piano and the blending of voices in four-part harmony were heard daily. All of this, including the scheduling of performances, were part of the practices of this chorus.

Then one day, a new instructor, Miss Slowik arrived. Things seemed different and the members of the Chorus had to get used to her. Events though, carried on as usual. An Iron City Beermug was created as a float for Homecoming and plans were made for the second annual trip to New York City. Preparations also materialized for a Christmas show.

There were some small problems for a while, but things took a turn for the better and the show worked out fine. "Once we got the show together it turned out well," said Chorus member Drew Martier. And so these Chorus members realized that the program was different, but the fun that came from singing together still prevailed.

Keeping score is an important part of bowling as Rich Glass and Jeff Smith take time to complete this job.

A look of concentration is shown on the face of Lisa Eicher as she begins her approach.

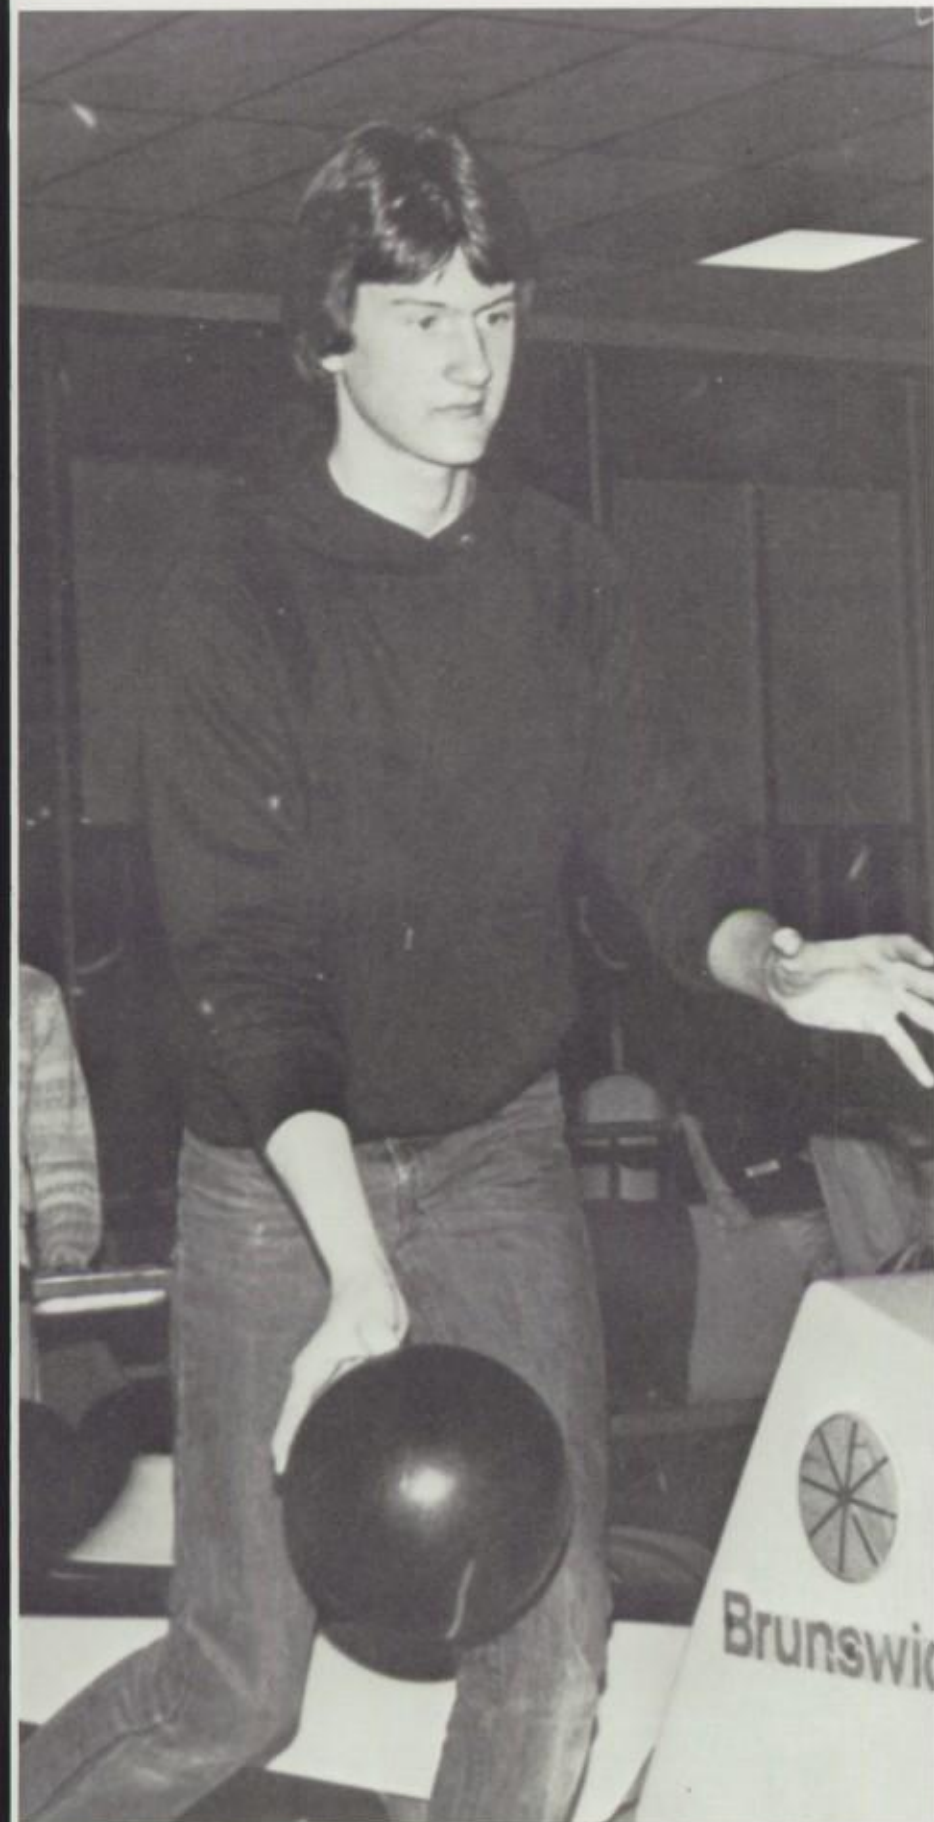

A Strike We All Look Forward To

Fun, fun, and more fun. This was the main ingredient for the Bowling Club. Every Friday as soon as the bell rang at 2:25 approximately forty-one students crammed into their cars and headed for McKnight Lanes.

Reasons for joining the bowling club varied. "It's something to do every Friday," said Lisa Eicher. Andy Yates stated, "It gives me a chance to improve my bowling score."

Serious competition also entered into the minds of the bowlers. People competed for the spots of the highest score, the highest team, and the most improved player in the hope of receiving trophies at the end of the year. Though spirits may have been down the last day, May 11th; the banquet perked everyone up.

With good form, Larry Wuenschel is about to release the ball hoping to bowl a strike.

Hills Of Snow And Trash

For students with a heavy academic load or a job demanding many hours, sometimes a sport of rigid organization was impossible. Clubs such as A.S.C.E.N.T. or Ski Club gave this such student the opportunity to become involved.

"I'd drop anything to go skiing. It gets your mind off schoolwork," said Mona Stauber. The ski club planned trips Friday evenings to Seven Springs or Laurel Mountains. Anybody was able to go even if it was a first time experience. Prices were $12.00 with your own skies or $17.00 without.

Although the A.S.C.E.N.T. Club did not cost anything, members dedicated each Saturday morning to recycling. Glass, newspapers, and tin or aluminum cans were brought by the community to the back of the junior high school to be recycled for use again.

"It's a lot of fun. After it is over you have the feeling that you've done something," said Amy Henry. It was clubs such as these that gave Shaler the reputation of offering a wide variety of activities for the majority of students to become involved.

A variety of expressions ranging from anxiety to sheer happiness show on the faces of several drill team members as they march in the Homecoming parade.

Living up the half-time show, drill team members not only make the show fun for spectators, but they have a good time themselves.

As she holds her umbrella steadily in place, Jacquie Pruskie deeply concentrates on her half-time routine.

Marching in front of the band, drill team members help to make the Homecoming parade a success.

A Routine Provides A Colorful Halftime

A Give any drill team member a pair of pom poms, and she could dance up a storm. For the twenty-four girls who comprised the drill team, dancing was not only enjoyed on weekends, but also five days a week, from the start of band camp to the last football game.

As a key part of the marching band, the girls performed regularly at home and away football games, as well as parades such as the Veteran's Day Parade in downtown Pittsburgh.

"I really enjoyed it, and I especially liked seeing everyone get into the school spirit this year," said Jacquie Pruski. Aiding the efforts of Rusty Roach, blue and white pom poms never stopped shaking as they cheered on the football team to victory. This same spirit prevailed as each member sold hoagies and candy bars for the spring band trip.

"I really liked the way they did different dances with and without pom poms," commented observer Margarite Mossesso. Instead of just staying in one place, the drill team made formations ranging from a long line for a ripple, to a "V" shape behind the band, to a circle surrounding the American flag.

Starting her routine off right, Terri Ballantine gives a radiant smile to the half-time crowd at the N.A. game.

Yeah! Yeah! Titans! The drill team and color guard members get into the action, by cheering for the home team.

While working together to put on a great homecoming half-time show, the band, color guard, and drill team reflect the true spirit and colors of our school!

But, when it all came to an end, and the drill team members stood nervously at attention for the last half time show, the girls could remember standing at attention in front of four judges with memories of clean white tennis shoes, and the smile that would become an essential part of the uniform each time it was worn.

School Aids To Help All

"What's happening around?" "Is my name on that absence bulletin?" "Is the nurse in?" Questions like these asked daily by faculty and students were answered efficiently by those students involved in service clubs.

Each morning began with Mr. Dave Shutter leading the pledge of allegiance then giving a few informative and entertaining comments followed by the voices of Al, Drew, Keith, Kelly, Teresa, or some other announcing staff member reading the sports and club news. Occasional misreadings or slight pauses for laughter helped wake up everyone before moving to first period.

Later in the day the absence bulletin was typed by Mrs. Ruth O'Connor and quickly delivered to all classrooms by a crew of office aides.

While in the nurse's office one was greeted by a friendly smile, or reassured during the blood bank drive by a nurse's aide. AV crew members led people to proper equipment as well as kept inventory on slide machines, tape recorders, and film strips.

A performance on stage would not be nearly as well produced were it not for the stage crew controlling the lights or the stage craft crew seeing that the curtain was opened on cue each performance.

Although these clubs may have not been noticed or recognized daily, without their aid Shaler High would not have been run as organized as it was.

Supply Demand Satisfy Needs

Food, Glorious, Food! So often the cry of so many people in so many places was also the call of so many students at Shaler Area High.

And ready to answer that call for the students and their friends were the workers in the Concession Stands at Football games and track meets and The Titan Shop workers in the Distributive Education center in the lobby of the high school. And it was evident by each smile while those french fries were being stuffed into the mouth that they were happy that the food sellers of the high school were doing their job.

The Concession Stand operated under the stands on both the visitor and home side of the stands and students put pizza, hamburgers, french fries, soft and hot drinks, candy, hot pretzels and other choices speedily onto the counters.

Indoors, food was very much in demand as Titan Shop workers continually sold life-savers, potato chips and gum. A large oven was purchased and the candy dealer visited daily.

As JoAnn Nilson put it, "The availability of food in the school is good for students getting the munchies."

Small Groups Form Big Shows

With blue and white banners waving in the wind, and the band playing along with them, the flag team helped add to the spirit of the half-time show. Although the team was small, with novel routines and a stronger interest in participation, the flag team went from four to eight in two years.

"Flag teams are really in now," said team member and senior Janet Kearney. Although the routines with flags were only seen during football season, the work of the girls continued on through the year selling hoagies and candy for the spring trip to Ocean City, Maryland.

Another small, but talented group of girls were the majorettes. The number was cut down to include only eight girls, but their twirling in unison kept the crowds tapping to the beat of the music.

"I really give them credit for putting up with all the cold weather on Friday night," said Diane Weigand. But their season extended from the heat of August until the warm weather appeared again in time for the talent show. Nearly every member of the flag team and majorettes participated in their final appearance in the talent show, before preparing for try-outs for the following season.

French Club members could be found many nights working on their float under the stars. This float won for the most colorful.

Listening is just as important as participating. These members listen attentively as the officers speak of upcoming events.

Speak Differently

What did a trolley car, a Christmas caroling trip and French cuisine have in common? The answer was the French Club.

The trolley was the Club's Homecoming float, and the caroling was just part of what the French did over the year. Also, the group planned to either take a trip to New Orleans or to Quebec.

A trip to New Orleans would be really great since we went to Canada two years ago, but a trip to New Orleans is probably too expensive for us," Said club member Brian Crane.

Although the French club members were not certain of the plans for the year, the students were certain of the friendships that they had made.

What brought together a handful of students, a group of Senior citizens, and a dash of Hispanic culture? Only the Spanish Honor Society did all that.

The Society sold tacos and other foods at Homecoming, for which the members planned a long time. They sponsored a pinata workshop for residents of the Episcopal Church Home in Lawrenceville.

"Both activities were a lot of fun," said Spanish student and Club member Dennis O'Donnell. Although the Society's plans were unclear for the second semester, they were planning an activity for Foreign Language Week, which came in March.

Beattie Technical School was represented in the Homecoming parade by the float, "The Terrible Towel."

Clubs At Beattie

"It's great to belong to a club. Not only does it look good beside your name in the yearbook, but it's a lot of fun too," said Kathi Kretschmaier. Students who belonged to the various clubs at Beattie found this out.

These clubs were V.I.C.A. (Vocational Industrial Clubs of America), D.E.C.A. (Distributive Educational Clubs of America), F.B.L.A. (Future Business Leaders of America), H.E.R.O. (Home Economics and Related Operations) and the Science Club.

Members were able to go on field trips related to each area. Students in the Science Club planned to visit a beer brewery and a water treatment plant. Clubs such as V.I.C.A. and D.E.C.A. were given the opportunity to go through the process of conducting monthly meetings in a professional, business-like manner.

Being a part of these activities also involved a lot of work, such as selling raffle tickets or candy. Each contribution helped make these clubs an enjoyable experience for all.

Cheerleading activities are not only limited to outdoor games but indoor games as well. Shown are the varsity cheerleaders.

During the homecoming game, cheerleaders can be found on the track giving support to the football team.

Crowd Support With A Kick

"Explode with power — Explode with might — Shaler Titans — out of sight!" shouted a peppy row of cheerleaders from the sidelines.

Cheerleaders represented the best of sports: the spirit, the lift, the "oomph" that sent our teams on to victory and stood behind them in defeat. With their blue and white outfits and smiling faces, the girls perked up the most depressing game. Talking and laughing between plays, on the buses (which carried the teams and band as well), or in the halls, they showed a camaraderie not always visible in competitive sports.

Behind all the fun, the gags, and the finished performances were hours of hard practice and sweat, not to mention time spent making up cheers and chants. All this effort was for a few minutes in the spotlight at football, wrestling, soccer and girls' and boys' basketball games.

It took a lot of organization to get 18 psyched-up girls to conform in one synchronized group. Responsible for this planning were Mrs. Sue Fischer, sponsor, and Cindy Miller and Sharon White, winter squad captains. They called the squads, informing them of what time buses left and whether skirts, the new white sweat pants, or blue shorts were to be worn.

Whether it was a football game with packed stands or a wrestling match where the attention of a few loyal fans was concentrated on two opponents, Cheerleaders supported the teams.

What do you think of the Cheerleaders? They show a lot of interest in our games... Diane Schmitt

After an interview Jeff Muschar intently studies the information in order to write an article.

Looking over articles for their next deadline are staff members Theresa Price, Jill Murphy, Chris Guarnero, Mr. John Petro, and Mary Kohler.

Oracle Has . . . New Format For More Success

Pittsburgh had the Press; Shaler had the Oracle. Approximately 40 students with journalism experience contributed their ideas to the school newspaper. According to Mr. Petro, the paper's advisor, writing articles gave the journalists a chance to express themselves, and provided entertainment and school news. The hassle of creating headlines, and the pressure of the deadlines may have been nerve-wracking at times; but the staff gained pleasure from the enjoyment of working with friends and knowing that they had completed a difficult job.

It may not have been realized by many, but the Oracle underwent a big change this year; the paper was actually typed and printed at the school. Lower cost, a new format, and a different size enabled the readers to find more enjoyment in the publication.

Though reasons for buying a paper varied from finding the results of the polls to reading the features "Titan Talk" or "What Would You Do If . . .", most students supported the Oracle for its fine job of reporting.

One part of putting the Oracle together is placing the negatives on the printing machine. Here Pat Tassos works on this important job.

With a big smile of anticipation Rusty Roach buys an Oracle from Jill Murphy as Theresa Price keeps track of the money.

Before the newspaper can be printed negatives of the pages must be made and Mary Kohler and Jill Murphy look at them.

Captions make up a large part of the yearbook and the writers work long hours to finish them.

In order to get ready for the Ad Drive, staff members paint signs and the wall chart to entice students to go out and sell ads.

A Book Full of Memories

Who would give up study halls and lunches, time after school and evenings, and even spend their Saturdays working in the activities center? The yearbook staff, that's who!

The Ad Drive was once again number one in the country with over twenty thousand dollars. Students sold ads and patrons to collect coupons which were turned in for prizes such as AM/FM radios or watches. The business staff spent complete Saturdays wrapping suckers and preparing centerpieces for the Valentine's dance. They even recruited football team members Bill McNamara and Gary Moser as cupids.

Layout and writing staffs were busy with deadline after deadline, preparing copy and cropping pictures to send away to the publisher. Staff members were always getting students' opinions and reactions to school life.

Where did the material go after it was written? It was given to the typing staff, where it was typed, adhering to special formulas and measurements, by energetic and skilled fingers.

For members of the photography staff, it was worth interrupting anything to capture a picture for posterity.

The 62-member staff headed by Editor-in-Chief Laurie Kozlowski, became more involved with work and with new friends than ever before. As Katie Knippe put it, "I really looked forward to coming to meetings to work together with the new friends made."

What is your opinion of yearbook? Nobody realizes the amount of hours put into making the book ... Kathy Sawyer

Editor-in-chief Laurie Kozlowski explains a point to the members of the writing staff during a yearbook session after school.

Vote On Issues

"Official. Organized." These were Karen Kremer's words to describe the Student Government and its meetings. At meetings held once a month, members tried to voice the opinions of interested and concerned students from around the school. The meetings were always opened by members of the Head Council with such phrases as "Will the meeting please come to order?" With active people such as Mike Munson and Jill Murphy, the group functioned rather efficiently.

The food service reorganization was one of the Council's biggest projects. Other things the Council tried to do this year were to keep students well-informed and to improve the relations between students, faculty, and administration.

The Student Council had a great year. As Karen put it, "It accomplished what it was supposed to do."

Places To Find Success

State Champions in Swimming three times, State Champions in Baseball, State Champions in Girls' Basketball, Individual State Champions in Wrestling three times, WPIAL Champions in Baseball, Swimming, Volleyball, Wrestling, Girls' Basketball, Soccer, and Tennis. Successes like these just don't happen; they are made possible by talented athletes that are well prepared and directed by a knowledgeable coaching staff.

Yet, the athletes and their coaches also need a place to practice, compete and ultimately demonstrate their ability to use those talents effectively in achieving such worthy recognition. At Shaler Area High for the most part the facilities were there. In the competitive areas there is the stadium at the Jr. High site that seats 5,000; then at the Intermediate High School site there is a 25 yard pool; while the new high school building offers the 1,500 seat basketball court, that serves also as a volleyball or wrestling arena; while outside there are six tennis courts and ample country area for both tennis and cross country.

In addition to the use of these facilities as competitive areas and practice sites they also serve to enhance even more the physical education class offerings daily.

What do you think of Shaler's sports facilities? Shaler needs a better soccer field... Doug Dickinson

The field and track behind the school are used by the sports teams, gym classes and neighboring residents.

Working out on the Nautilus equipment is important to athletes such as Rusty Roach.

The Wrestlers work-out on the mats and machines especially designed for them in the wrestling room.

The tennis courts are a popular facility for the gym classes, township residents, and tennis team members like Nancy Helm.

Soccer and football games, such as Homecoming, are held in the stadium behind the Jr. High School.

The many uses of the gym include racquet-ball, volleyball, wrestling, assemblies, and basketball.

Long Road

Run All The Way

The gun sounded. People pushed, shoved, and got elbowed. Others fell and slipped in the mud. Was it yet another Kaufmann's Warehouse Sale? No. It was a cross country track meet; the WPIAL qualifiers for state championships.

Three hours spent worrying cluttered up minds and pushed out all other thoughts before the meet. Then came the three miles of running, sprinting, and hoping for the top of that endless hill. And then — relief! The finish line came into view. The race was finally over!

"Cross country is tougher than you think, but the mental part is the toughest," said varsity runner John O'Keefe. "You have to run through a pain barrier."

John was one of Shaler Area High's representatives in the WPIAL qualifiers for state championships. The Titan team finished 8th in a field of nineteen; yet stand out performances by O'Keefe and Bob Goodwin highlighted a season that included occasional team disappointments.

No matter what the weather was, the team was on the track, on the large front parking lot of the school, or just running through the woods near Little Pine Creek Road; but out there practicing.

Inconsistent But Yet Successful

Who would rise at 7:00 a.m. and jog five miles around North Park Lake? Why a boy's soccer team member, that's who! Before the start of school, team members were already hard at work and showing devotion to this team sport and its fellow members.

Although this hard work prepared them well, the season itself had its ups and downs. At some matches the team played as if they were unbeatable, while occasionally they couldn't seem to get their act together.

The most memorable victory throughout the season came at the end against Erie Prep. Although Erie went on to become the district champions, Shaler proved to be too much for them. This win left the squad, especially the seniors, with a satisfying end to a fine season.

Another close game was the North Hills game in which fans from both sides enthusiastically applauded the efforts of both teams during an entire first half, although it ended scoreless. In the second half the Indians went on to score the only two goals of the game to win the game and enter the WPIAL playoffs.

Overall, the members of the Titan team felt that they had a successful season and a fun one, too.

Small Squad

But A Big Effort

"We really ran our ... off.", was a statement by Kelly Ruber, which showed that Cross Country wasn't easy at all. Though running events have primarily been dominated by males in the past, Shaler Area made its mark as eight females competed in interscholastic competition for the Titans in a sport that is only 8 years old at this high school. As sweat rolled down their faces and their muscles ached, the determined girls worked out in the hot summer sun and the cool breezes of the fall.

Summer provided the team with a chance to get a jump on the season and to start training. Practices continued into the beginning of school and consisted of weight lifting, hill workouts, sprint drills, and other routines that helped to build up those legs.

Then the season began and, although there were a few matches that were let downs, it was the matches like Ambridge that made all of those practices and all of that sweat worth it. The days in Cross Country were sometimes rough and a person at times had to be crazy to continue, but it was so satisfying each time one of those eight brilliant, smiling faces shone as the contenders crossed that finish line.

New Ambition

A Winning Formula

The saying, "Soccer is just a kick in the grass," was only heard from students who know little or nothing about the sport. For the girls' soccer team it meant much more. As a young team only in their second season, it meant taking all the first year mishaps and concentrating on consistency and preciseness. With the majority of the first string players from the prior season leaving, it meant working with a young team to become a competitive contender.

"Soccer practice was tough. We spent a lot of time running everyday to get in shape," said senior Sue Trgovic. The team began work in August two weeks before school started. Triple sessions included passing and kicking drills, goalie shots, and ball maneuvering. The girls could be seen practicing till 5:30 each day on the lower field at the high school, with Miss Pam Pahl (coach) screaming plays and perfecting movements.

"A game can really get rough," said junior Jenny Field, "and a lot of players were getting hurt." But student trainer and senior Nancy Storoz was ready on the sideline with gauze, tape, and bandages.

Fingers would stay crossed in games such as Elizabeth Forward, where the competition was so tough no one knew what to expect.

The team looked at each game as a separate challenge, put forth their best effort, and finished the season victorious in the majority of their games.

Team Spirit Leads To A Winning Record

A dedicated group of girls plan, organize, and work together for a common goal, and then put those plans into practice to produce a successful year. And all the time they have a lot of fun doing it. Sound like a sorority? Well, in a way it is; but more importantly, it was a team — a team of girls who played volleyball and played it well.

This sums up the way the Section Runner-up team in volleyball went through their season together. The record of 12-2 tells only a part of the story. With only one team in the section able to beat them, they were a team pleased with their strong offense.

A team lacking in height and experience found a way to show the rest of the league that their team support and planned strategy could compensate for the loss of most of their first team from the prior year. The section was won by, but not dominated by Knoch. In the two big matches with Knoch the Titans took them right to the end before falling a little short. Even Knoch's coach was heard saying that the Titans just never give up. The players were aware of their short-comings, but proud of their achievements.

Michelle Miller summed it up best: — "We were a lot better than we even expected what with our varsity losses. Miss Carol Martin (Coach) made those necessary adjustments to make us contenders."

And the students too felt they were contenders, as people flocked to the games in greater numbers than in any season of the past. The team was grateful for the support as voiced by team captain, Lynn Schreiber: "We were really grateful to all those students who came to our games; thanks." To see the volleyball team was not something that one had to be thanked for doing. With the type of performance the girls gave, it was worth the trip.

Concentration

For A Steady Aim

One school team you might not have heard too much about was the golf team. A small group of students, coached by Mr. Jeff Snyder, went about their schedule in the early fall without much notice. Guys like John Prince, Dave Berdych, and Pat Good played against many of the same section teams that other teams played against. Their biggest competition was North Allegheny, because, as one player put it, "the players were better."

Most of their practice was on an individual basis, but during matches both individual and team scores were recorded. They had the opportunity to qualify for the state championships on, again, an individual basis. But the real spirit of the team was best stated by Nick Panza: "Golf should be played as a team, and there's no 'I' in the word 'team'."

Another, not so well known team was rifle. Although this sport is not physically demanding much skill and concentration was required.

"You have to shoot 98 or higher to go to the matches," said Tom Zippel. And this means about 20 team members shot almost perfect scores. It was these scores which allowed Shaler to beat Butler and tie for first place in the section.

With no experience necessary to join the team, anyone with a positive attitude and a willingness to learn could produce a successful record.

First In Section

Armed only with rackets and sheer determination, the girls' tennis team burst into action. Much to the surprise of many in their section. The team finished off a remarkable season with a record of 8-0 in section matches. "When the season started, most of us were skeptical because of the previous year," observed Danette DiMarco. "But Mr. Chuck Mura gave us the confidence we needed to go as far as we did."

It was this confidence that carried the team through the season beginning in the early summer with double sessions of practices in August.

Yet these grueling workouts were well worth it, for the girls qualified for the W.P.I.A.L. championships after winning the sections. At the end of the season the team was ranked fourth in the state.

Colleen Szazynski and Leslie Reims qualified for the states in the doubles tournament and were rated third in Pennsylvania. Leslie also went on to win the section singles and qualified for the W.P.I.A.L. championships.

Much of the season's success was due to team spirit and enthusiasm. "By the end of the season, we became good friends. We encouraged each other," commented Lisa Greco. With that support, each member was able to enter the court and come out a winner.

Keys To Season Wins

Unpredictable. This was a suitable word that could have been used to describe the Titans football team. You never knew what to expect of them next, as they proved during the New Castle game.

The Titans were branded underdogs, but came out winners, as they handed the Hurricanes their only loss of the regular season. All of the points were scored in the first half of the game. The second half settled down to a fierce defensive struggle.

There was a minute and a half left to go in the game. New Castle threatened the Titan lead of 19-13. With four chances to score from the seven yard line, the Titan defense proved to be masters of the line of scrimmage as they successfully halted the Hurricane ground game to win the game.

The New Castle game was most representative of the kind of efforts that this Titan team was able to master up so many times throughout the season. It was the shutting down of Section Champion North Hills running game so that they had to rely upon their passing game; that last quarter surge to tie a tough Butler team and that big pass Kuzemchek threw to Jackson which set up the tying 2 points; the supportive running of Kotkiewicz and Snider; injuries to players who returned again and again and that line, that steady line — opening holes for Stennet on offense yet closing them each time an opposing runner tried to make his move on the defense.

Practice was a grueling, but a vital part of the football season.

The daily workout included hitting the sleds, drilling, sprinting, and scrimmaging. "It's really physical," commented Bill Bronowicz, "they just beat you."

Next year will be another season and with the resignation of Mr. Jerry Matulevic it will mean a new coach. The members of this team that went through the season of ups and downs together will remember most the fun and excitement of a common spirited effort regardless of the result of the win/loss record.

One/Team

Results in Victories

Effort was the key similarity between all Titan athletes. Though existing in every sport it varied in form for individual and team competition.

"With a team you have to count on everyone putting forth 100%," said basketball player John Mroz. Not only did the athletes need to be in top condition themselves, they needed to be conditioned to working together. The athletes can't just be good, they must be good together.

Just as the defensive line pulled together to hold back the New Castle team to prevent scoring. Just as the girls basketball team did not consist of five girls on the court, but as a team to complete a record of 26-5.

"It's a team effort, but you have to worry about your own match," commented wrestler Gary Bolin. It could be said that an athlete who participated in an individual sport had two things to worry about. The team effort and his own effort. In order for the team to succeed, each individual athlete must get psyched up for the competition. It was this psyching up that allowed Bob Kleinhample to win his own 185 lb. match and then win the match for the team against North Hills. It was this individual competition that sent Leslie Reims and Colleen Szazynski to the state championship.

And after long hours of hard work and dedication each athlete gave 100% effort no matter the type of competition.

Hours of practice pay off in an important match as Gary Bolin scores a takedown.

Crucial Moves

For A Year of Success

After Rusty Roach and his fans left the football stadium at the junior high school on Mt. Royal Boulevard, where would they carry their spirit next? Well, it seemed that Rusty led his crew right into the gymnasium at the high school on Wible Run Road to cheer on the wrestling team. There was never a dull match with the student body overflowing with so much enthusiasm. But the real spirit came from within the wrestlers themselves.

The Titans were ranked fourth in the early part of the season, but wins over Chartiers-Houston, Canon-McMillan and first place team, Hempfield, shifted the wrestlers to first position. A win over the biggest rival, North Allegheny, qualified the team for the team championships. Then, the Titans were upset by Hempfield in the second round.

"Everybody contributed to helping each other," commented Greg Zimmerman. Whether it was to stop a teammate from eating a candy bar so he could make weight, or just to give a few words of confidence, the wrestlers truly demonstrated a "team effort."

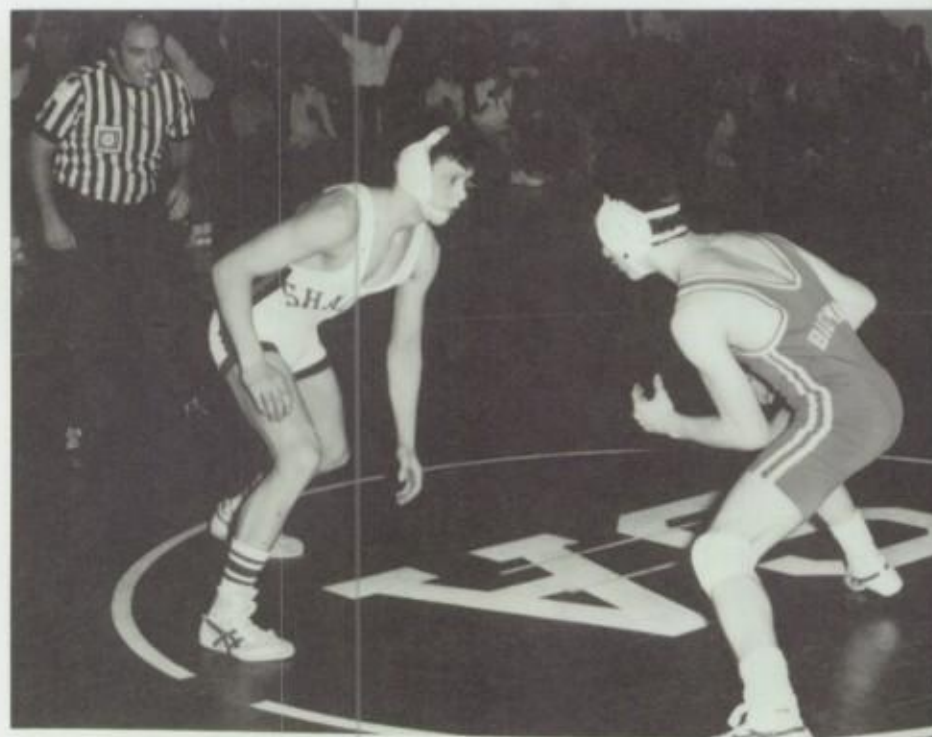

It was this team effort that helped Bob Kleinhample win his match at Hampton when the win or loss depended on the last contender; it also allowed the Titans to completely dominate every other team at the Grove City Tournament. "We had to get psyched up for each match. There was never an easy win," commented Glen Snyder.

As the team proceeded into the individual section championship, this spirit still prevailed. Ending the season and coming out with five section champs, a second place, and a third place, Shaler "meant business." They knew that with the proper attitude and self-discipline no goal was impossible.

Psyched For Every Game

How do you handle pressure? Some relieve tension by exercise and others by eating. But most will agree that the girls' basketball team had the right idea — have a party! Members of the team would gather at someone's house to spend the afternoon eating pizza and "psyching up" for the game. Then all of the players would go to the game together. "This really gets everyone into the team spirit," commented Barb Schofield.

Partying, as it turned out, proved to be a successful remedy for the dreaded "pre-game jitters," as the girls soared to a ranking in the top ten. This was much better than most fans expected, in light of the four starting positions had to be filled, and the girls weren't used to playing together.

In order to maintain the high standard the Shaler girls' basketball team has been noted for, it was necessary to begin early, at practices in spring of '81. As a result the season was one of the longest and most grueling of all sports. Considering their performances the girls had the satisfaction of knowing that all of their work paid off.

With a record 25-5, the girls proceeded into the WPIAL playoffs. A cold shooting night may have eliminated the team in the quarter finals, but they still qualified for the PIAA playoffs. But the success or outcome of these games did not seem as important as the support each team member gave to each other throughout the season.

Young Team

Better Than Expected

Excedrin headache number 82? This seemed to be the feeling of the coaching staff as the girls swim season got under way. It appeared as though there were no ends to the problems on the team.

At the time, setbacks like six seniors quitting, differences of opinion between the girls and the coaching staff, and concerns over practices held daily seemed to be insurmountable.

But when the water cleared, and the team pulled together, it became evident that these were just the growing pains that so many teams experienced. The growth was apparent in the successes under the watchful eye of coach Mrs. Ann Bernicker and her assistant, Barb Schrenker.

"Everybody worked hard at the meets and tried for their best times. We worked more like a team, not so much for individual goals," said Amy McLaughlin.

This was especially evident in the North Allegheny meet where although a loss was recorded, the majority of the girls achieved best times. One just needed to glance at the record board and see freshman Amy Beilski's name for more than one event and realize that this could only be due to hard work.

So once again, it was proven that no problem is unsolvable and with dedication toward a common goal the potential for success became a reality.

Spirit

In Team And Students

Defeated. Once again it was proven that first impressions can be deceiving. Taking a look at the scoreboard, one might conclude that the boys basketball team had a poor season.

While a championship team includes many victories, the success of this season was measured in other ways. Opposing teams may have scored more points than the titans, they walked off the court knowing they had faced tough competition.

Competitive. That's a better way of describing the team and it's efforts throughout the season. Often a loss was due to only a few points.

Spirited. Another appropriate adjective to describe how the team was motivated. At the game classmates demonstrated enthusiasm for the team effort by forming a separate section at rival games like North Hills, Fox Chapel and North Allegheny. Entitled Panza's Mafia, the students were there to enforce their belief in the saying, "If at first you don't succeed, try try again."

Appreciated. This word described the feelings of the team toward the students and the students toward the team. This can be shown by the quotes by Rusty Roach, "It's always nice to play at home when your own buddies are there supporting you," and Nick Panza, "We not only did it for the guys on the court, but also to show that we have a lot of school spirit."

Good Season Nearly Unnoticed

"The boy's what?" "I thought the swimming team drowned?"

But nothing was further from the truth since the team had the best season since the State Championship in 1979. With returning freshman as well as newcomers, a sense of team pride developed.

"We did a lot more yardage this year than we ever did before," commented Ron Carter.

But, was it worth it? It sure was when the only thing that kept the team from becoming section champs were the Seneca Valley and Butler meets lost by only two points.

However, the highlight of the year was the North Allegheny meet. Shaving down the night before, the guys began the meet by standing on the high diving board to listen to Ron Carter's "Psyche out the other team speech". Then he performed the famous water ceremony, pouring a gallon of Shaler water into the North Allegheny's water.

And it seemed to work as Steve Francis sprinted to a finish in the 200 yard freestyle to just out touch the opposing swimmer, and breaststrokers Paul Schonauer, Ron Carter, and Larry Gizzi took 1st, 2nd, and 3rd as well as all qualifying for WPIALS.

It was obvious that the boys swimming team hadn't drowned; they only drowned opposing teams while demonstrating that hard work & dedication was the key to success.

Dedication

For Full Potential

Face off! Checking! Wrist shots! Slap shot! Goalie. Center. Puck. Score. All are main aspects of hockey games. Shaler has its own special vocabulary and its own breed of skaters which include 21 members on varsity.

The hockey team had no school (financial) support. The turn on for hockey games was considerably lower than for other sports. "We had some good crowds at times, but we could have used more support," stated Greg Lagiovane.

The season started off well with the first six games. However, in early December a lack of practice and injuries to key players brought hard times to the team, resulting in a four game losing streak.

After this start with nowhere to go but up, the Titans entered a mid-season Christmas tournament, which turned out to be the highlight of the season.

The high point of this tournament was the fourth night when Shaler played tough back to back games against Fox Chapel and Hampton and won both games! The next night however North Allegheny held back a "come-from-behind" rally to defeat the Titans 3-2 in the championship game.

"We had a good season. There were high points and low points, but all in all everyone gave 100%. But, most important, we all worked together as a team," commented senior Tom Bedel.

TEAM Of Your Own

Most people thought of football, basketball, and baseball when they considered the word "sports," but what about hunting, aerobics and archery? These were sports too.

Shaler Area High School was filled with all types of sport-oriented people who took part in everything from track, in the spring, to wrestling, in the winter. Some students participated in inter-scholastic sports, while others were active in sport activities outside of our athletic curriculum.

One such student was Gary Rihn. He was a member of our Rifle Team, yet he enjoyed the sport of archery outside of school. "I feel that a bowman must really work to get his game," remarked Gary.

While Gary used his out-of-school sport as a means of getting away from it all, senior Lisa Eicher's sport took her into another school building. At Coummunity College of Allegheny County, she participated in aerobic dancing. "It's a great way to exercise and have fun," said Lisa. Lisa also commented that she not only learned new dances, but also the importance of nutrition.

Participation in out-of-school sports may not have emphasized the spirit of competition, but the benefits one received from self satisfaction and personal challenges were what motivated each individual to be enthusiastic about his or her sport.

Out on a rollerskating adventure are students from Shaler Area.

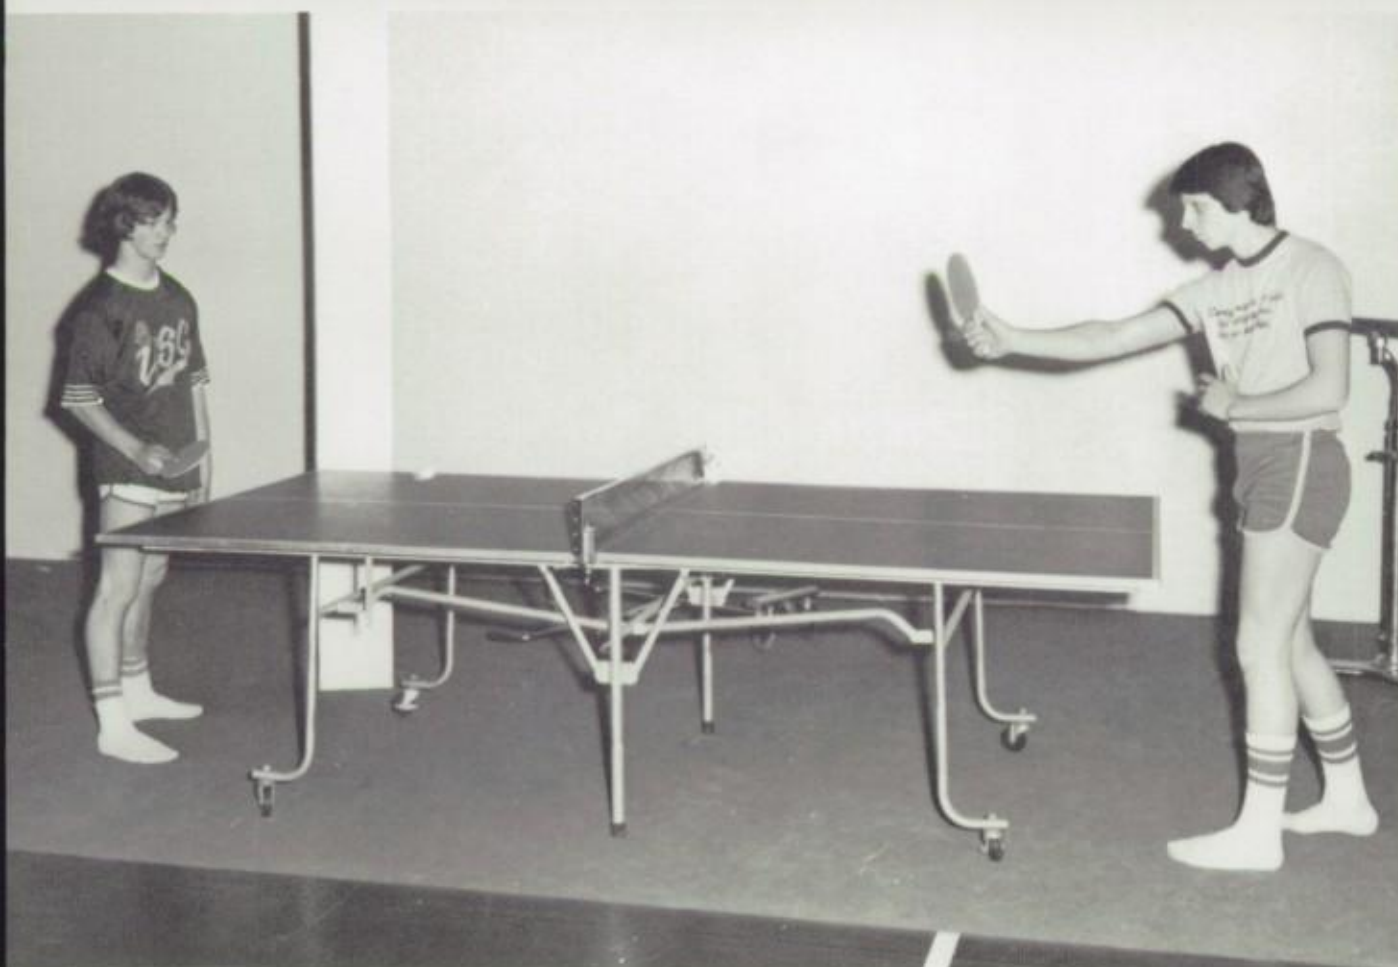

Before the actual aerobic dancing begins, muscles must be prepared by stretching. Warming-up is Patty Pfeil, Chris Patz and Kathy Radacoy.

The popularity of aerobic dancing is sweeping across the country. Lisa Elcher and Lisa Voegtly practice their dance routine they learned at Community College.

Strength from the arms of Paul Orr enables him to lift the heavy weights from their set position. Jeff Weber watches as the job is done.

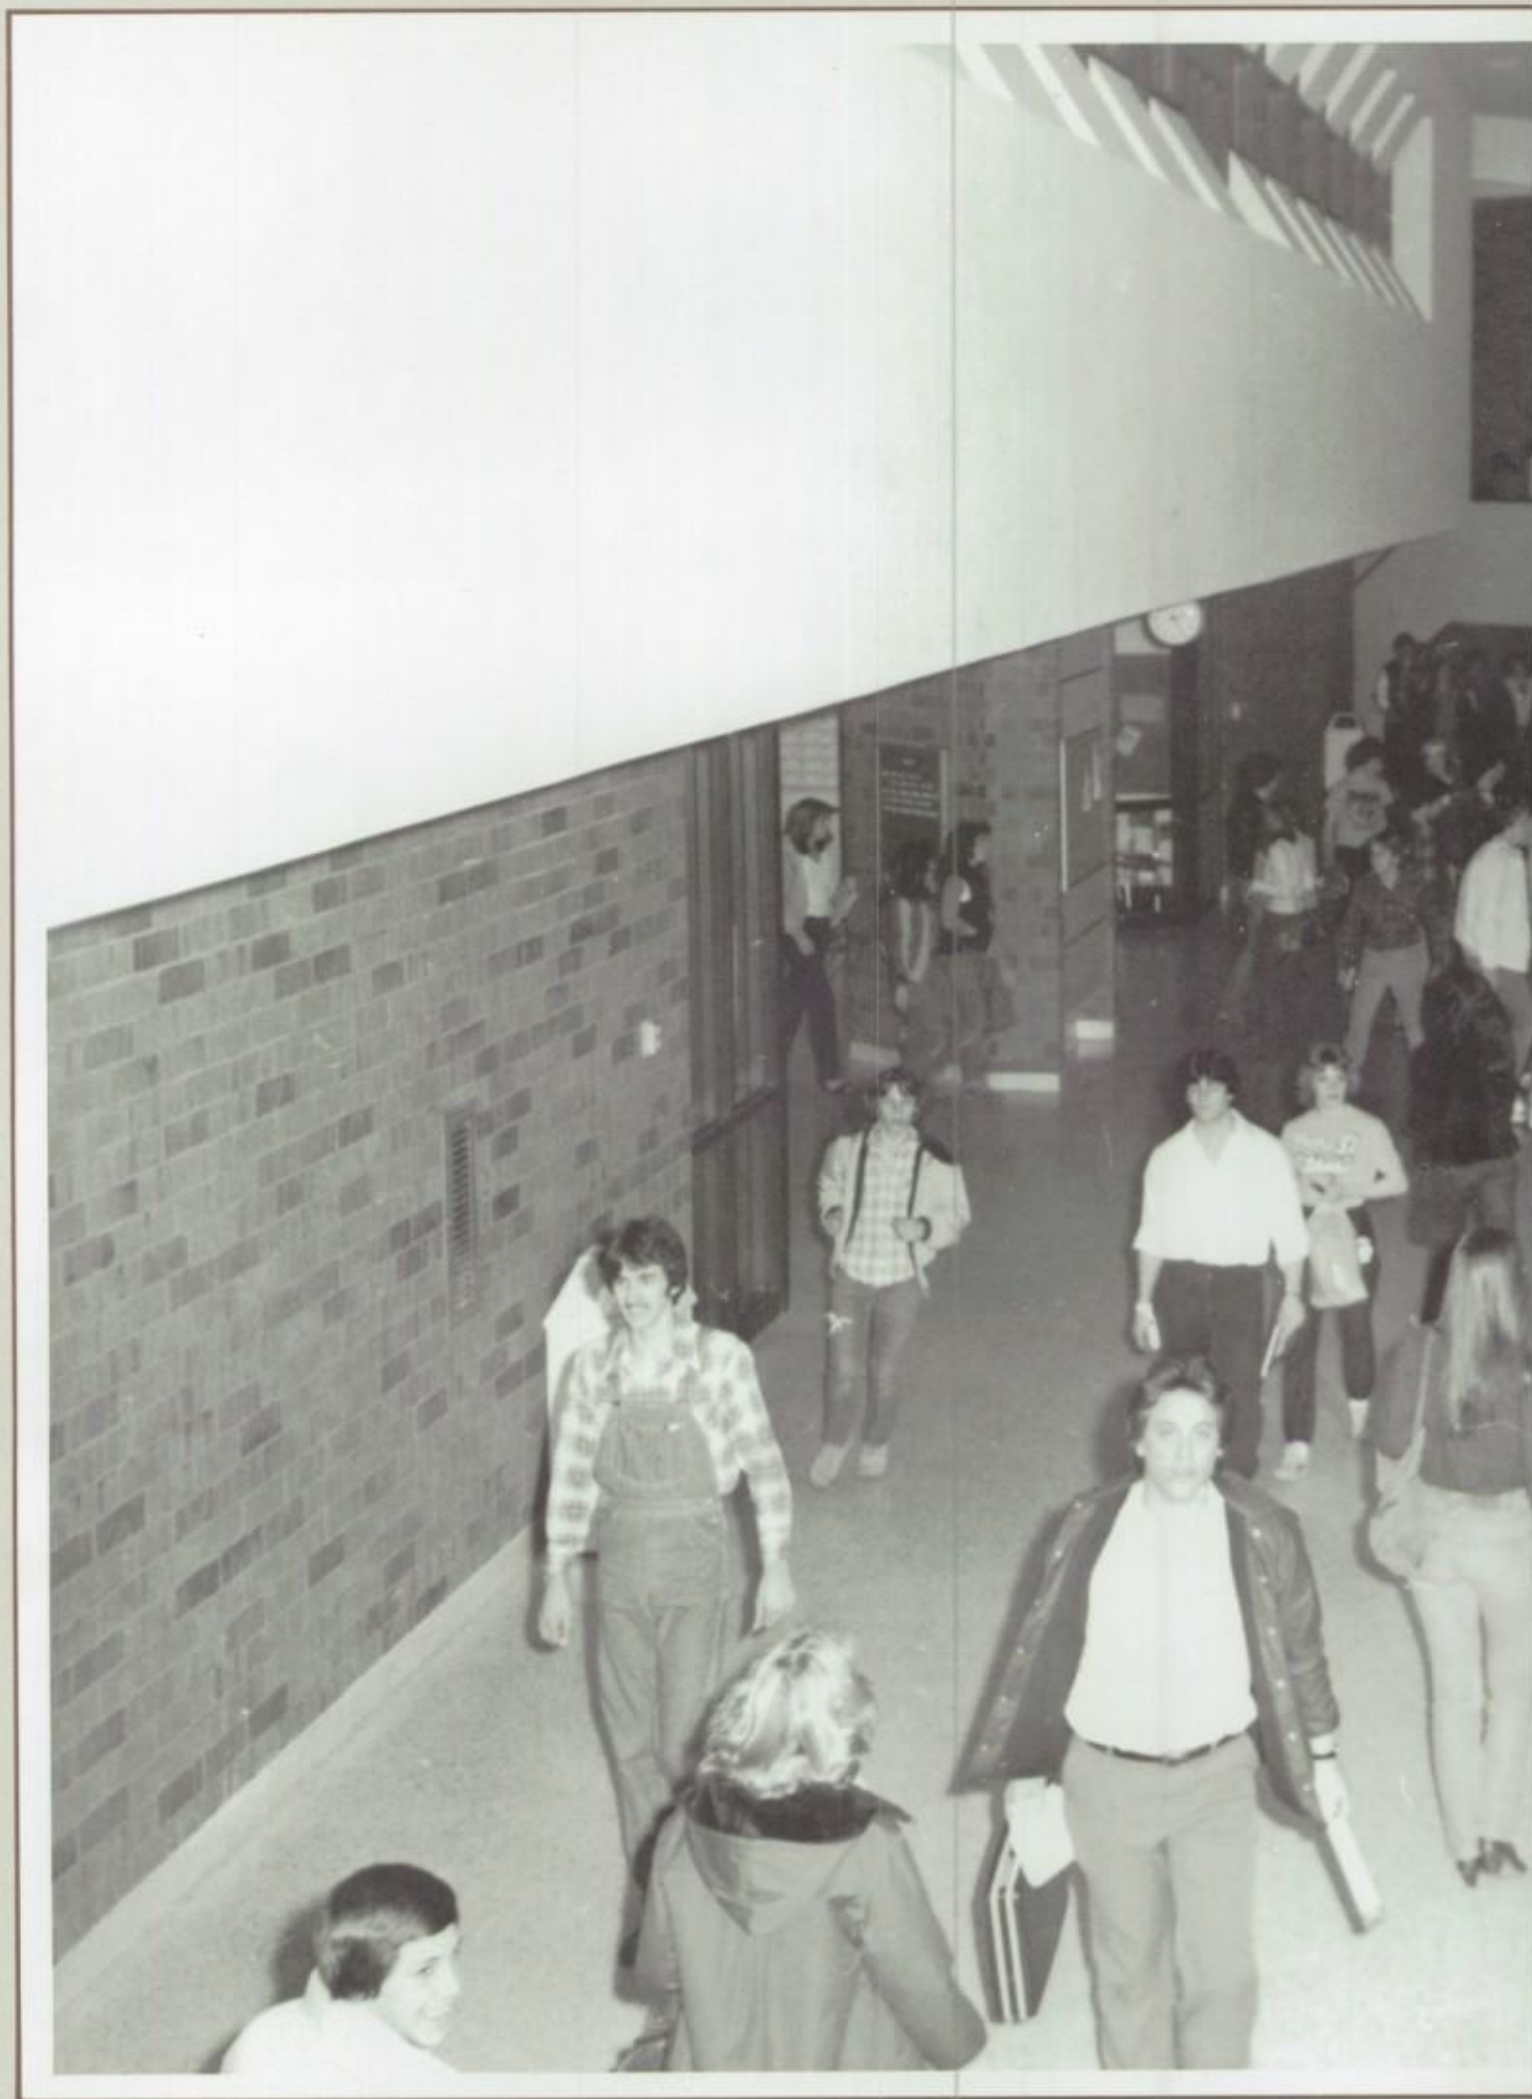

Ready, Aim, Fire! Stan Sharp sets off his rifle as a cloud of smoke filters through the air.

Nice, well mannered, understanding, well dressed and all around good . . . Shari Heck

I have a high opinion of the students of Shaler. They are friendly, helpful, and easy to get along with . . . Jean Vanasdale

Shaler has good athletes, musicians, and a lot of great personalities . . . Jean Conrad

They pull together to help each other. They have a lot of spirit — like Panza's Mafia — and they care about others — like in March of Dimes . . . Debbie Moraca.

Pix 1: People of Shaler Area hurry to lockers and buses to depart at the end of the school day. Pix 2: Between classes a favorite meeting place for Gina Fiore and Darryl McMarlin was her locker. Pix 3: The "jocks" as athletes were sometimes referred to by others often had lunch together to discuss games and events. Pix 4: The back of the school was the only place to smoke as proclaimed by a Shaler Township ordinance posted on March 1. Bob Brayer and Cindy Hull obey the statute while talking a bit after lunch.

Radio

The Theme of School Play

Laughter rang through the auditorium as the first combined Junior-Senior class play case presented "The Man Who Came to Dinner." Although this Pulitzer prize winning play was very difficult to do; both the cast and crew did a marvelous job. Although the audiences were small for the three performances, those who went thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Consequently, the play was a big success.

The play concerned the wiles of a famed radio announcer, Sheridan Whiteside (Matt Arend) who is forced to stay in the home of a factory owner in a small Ohio town due to an accident on their door step. During his stay, his secretary, Maggie Cutler (Linda Turner), falls in love with a local newspaperman, and decides to leave Mr. Whiteside to marry him. Afraid of losing his secretary, Mr. Whiteside calls upon a gorgeous actress to mash it all up. Later he regrets his action, and with some difficulty, sets things to rights and all live happily ever after.

In order to make the play a success it was necessary for the cast and crew to rehearse daily after school for a month beginning in early October. The last two weeks involved evening rehearsals and the last few nights went until midnight. To handle the organization of the show, director Bruce Schrumm assigned all the aspects of the play: the set, costumes, ticket distribution, publicity, etc., to cast and crew members.

Drawing crowds, getting laughs and working hard were not all there was to the play. All those involved with the performance had a great time, and had an opportunity to become close friends with their classmates. The Junior-Senior class play was truly a memorable event for those who saw it, and for those who worked with it.

Portraying Nigel Carlton, Brian Crane attempts to find out what is bothering Maggie Cutler, played by Linda Turner.

Insisting that his book is very good and worth reading is Dr. Bradley, played by Jeff Gierl. Mr. Whiteside, played by Matt Arend has trouble believing this.

Standing inside a mummy case is Lorraine Sheldon's way of saying "Merry Christmas" to Mr. Whiteside. The mummy case was given to Whiteside as a gift. Lorraine Sheldon was played by Jennifer Hahn.

Infuriated with Mr. Whiteside's behavior, Mr. Stanley played by Tom Zipple, asks him to leave the house as Mrs. Stanley, portrayed by Patty Adamcik, looks on.

PLAY CAST: Brian Crane, Patty Adamcik, Tom Zipple, Fran Kozlowski, Shawn Conway, Kris Ebelacher, Jeff Gierl, Veronica Staub, Andy Yates, Matt Arend, Joe Popovich, Caroline Reno, Laura Ebel, Renee Linn, Tony Markowitz, Joe Malley, Wayne Trout, Linda Turner, Jennifer Hahn, Jill Fitterer, Tina Giafrancesco, Sharon Kowalewski, Pam Gillespie, Andrea Christina.

Refusing to talk to Bert Jefferson, played by Wayne Trout, is Maggie Cutler, who is played by Linda Turner.

An '82 Year To Do What We Planned

The class of '82 made its last year a great one, throwing itself helter-skelter into the continuous series of activities that made this the best year ever.

Homecoming, always an exciting day, actually represented months of work and fun. Seniors were especially proud of those who rallied under the direction of Debbie Franks and Debbie DiBucci to produce the ferocious tiger float, representing the Pittsburgh Zoo, which took second place in the judging.

Another exhausting effort was the Spectrum Ad Drive, proving once again how effective a class can be under super organization.

On a night where school spirit was demonstrated again and again, Senior Sports Night, Matt Stennett and Lynn Schreiber were rewarded for their talent and enthusiasm by being crowned King and Queen of Fall Sports.

Cooperating with the junior class, seniors celebrated the holiday spirit at the Christmas Dance. Yet another example of school coordination was the talent show which raised money to benefit Cindy Lott (Class of '81).

Hank DiPasquale and Danette DiMarco were among seniors starring in the musical Bye-Bye-Birdie; many others, including student director Brian Crane, made this triumph possible.

The class of '82 was a diversified class and its activities reflected the diversity. From sports to dances, from productions to publications, seniors kept the Titan tradition rolling.

The senior float committee takes a break from their work on their tiger to have their picture taken.

About to give a surprise to Mr. Whiteside in the Junior/Senior play is Joe Malley.

The Annual blood drive is another way in which Seniors show their concern for others.

Each year the Seniors vote for King and Queen of Fall Sports. This year's winners were Matt Stennett and Lynn Schreiber who were crowned on Senior Night.

In the Senior Assembly, Bob Brayer, Chris Cubelic, Ray Sprow, and Jeanne Fornadley portray the happy American family.

Senior sponsors take time out from bowling to have their picture taken. They are Mr. John Petro, Mr. Ron Conte, and Mr. Paul Schweiger.

After being introduced to the crowd, Drill Team captain Maureen Killeen escorts her mother and sister down track Senior Night.

Lost in thought, Kriste Dalrymple waits for her long, eventful day of tests and homework.

"Why am I here?" might be what Pat Kissel is thinking to himself during homeroom period on a Monday morning.

It's Tough To Move On Mondays

"It's time to start your heart!", cried Jack Bogut as the alarm clock blared away. After listening carefully for any school cancellations, and hearing none, the old body staggered out of bed into the chill of the pre-dawn darkness. Breakfast was the usual, cold toast and cold cereal. All this eaten in a hurry in order to wait fifteen minutes in subzero weather for a bus that was never on time, even on good days. All these joys came with a (shudder) Monday morning.

"How can you expect us to think at this hour of the morning when it's cold," cried students. Not only did Mondays seem cold, but also they really were cold. The heating system operated with the help of the heat from students' bodies. Therefore, after a weekend of being empty, the building resembled a partially defrosted refrigerator with red brick. But gradually as the sun rose higher, the day became a little brighter. After all Mondays weren't that bad. They were only four days away from the weekend.

Although interior decorating is not offered as a course, Renee Kimtroff and Chris Metzger show that they have sparkling creativity.

A collage of their favorite pictures come to life as soon as the locker is opened and Chris Cubelic and Beth Kennedy seem excited as they look on.

Inside It's All Mine

What was behind the locker doors of Shaler? Pictures of guys with Calvin Klein's, boyfriends' and girlfriends' names, and sayings expressing different personalities lined the insides of lockers. People tore or cut out designs in hope of making the cold, drab locker a little more bearable. Now students had something to bring a smile to their faces between classes.

"It's a change of pace," said Jane Miller.

"It's better than looking at a blank wall," said Mona Stauber. The locker was something that helped the student express himself. It almost seemed as if there were a contest of the best decorated locker. As soon as books were put in, things were pasted up. At last the students had found something to help them escape the pressures of school during the day: the inside of their lockers.

Not Just A Game

But A Fun Evening

T.G.I.F. Four letters everyone liked to hear. After a long and exhausting week, Friday was warmly welcomed. From September 11 to November 6, blue and white pom poms, Titan hats and "Go Shaler" cheers filled the stadium. It became the high point of the week. As Rob Corry put it, "If you get into a boring class, you just shut your book and think about the game."

Well, when game day finally arrived, nobody could think about anything else. As the starting kick-off began, anticipation hung in the air.

Yet there was more to a Friday night football game than first downs and field goals. This was a great time to get together with friends and have a good time.

As the halftime gun sounded, the activity on the field changed its pace. It was a flurry of activities performed by members of the band, drill team and cheerleaders. This was also a good opportunity to visit the concession stand and sample pizza, hot dogs, french fries and especially hot chocolate to keep warm.

The thrill continued through the second half until the final seconds ticked away. The collective efforts of these dedicated students has made it a rewarding and eventful night for all those involved.

Discussing an important play during a Friday night game are assistant coach Tim Heim and Paul Carfagna as they watch from the sidelines.

Fans exhibit enthusiasm and show school spirit at a successful Friday night game. Friday football games proved to be fun for everyone involved.

Hightops were the favored footwear for most guys in school and Bill McNamara shows off his pair.

Pointing out to the rest of the class his leather Pro Ked hightops is Earl Frances.

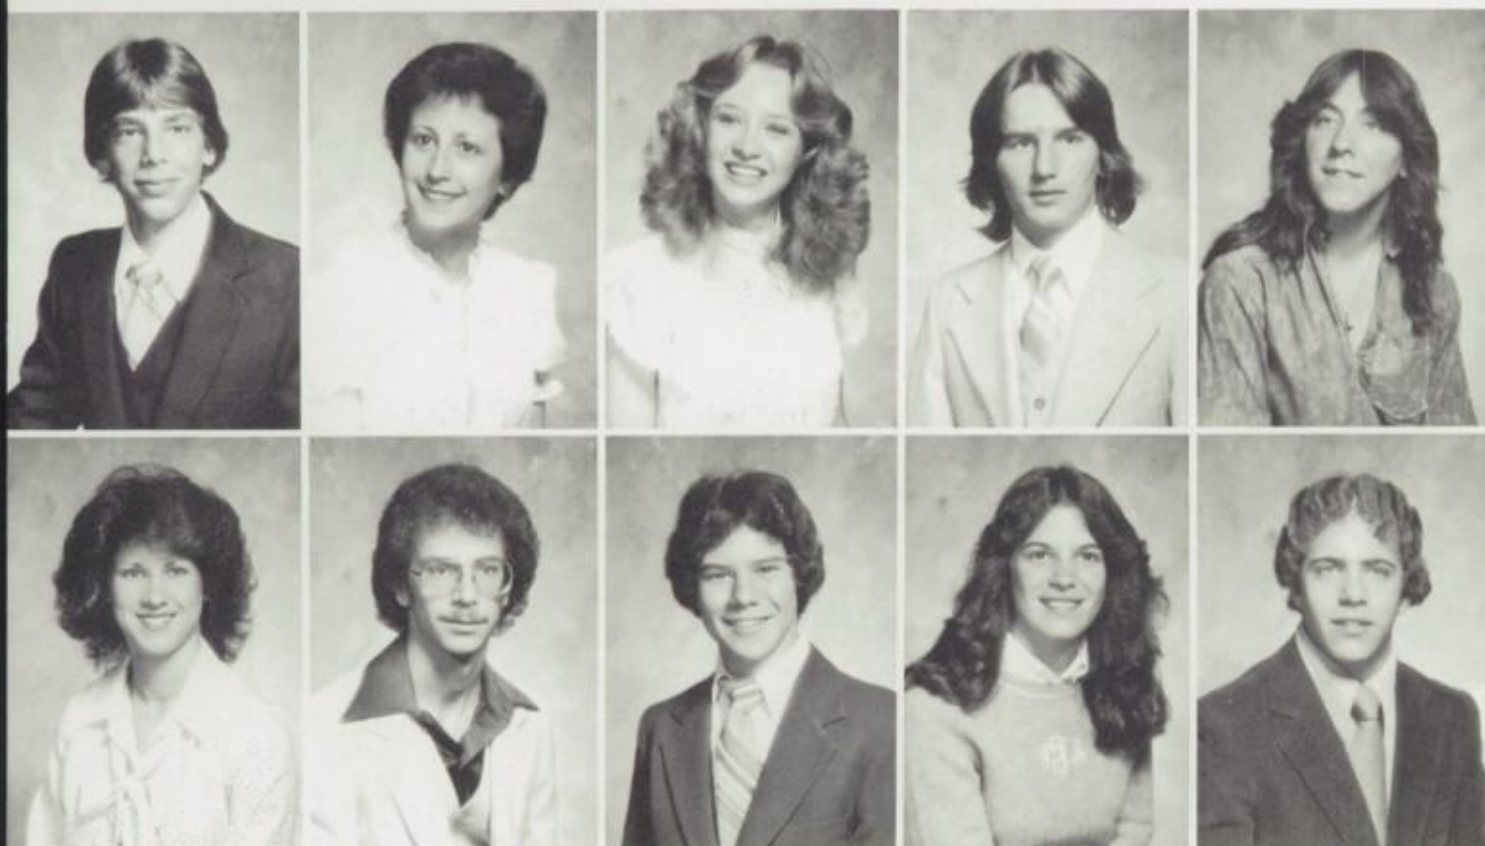

Feet Check On Many Seniors

What was never laced up, never clean, and full of holes, but always comfortable? High-top tennis shoes were, that's what. Good, dependable leather high-top shoes that were broken in sometime in their third year of use were really common sights on the feet of a lot of guys.

Why didn't anyone lace them up? That would have required too much extra effort. Besides, why should they have been laced up when they got taken off later anyway?

No, they never fell off. In fact, in addition to giving a feeling of style, they provided lots of fresh air and ventilation. They were a kind of a security blanket. After all, even if all the world had crumbled, folks still would have worn those high-top shoes.

Encore! Encore! Performers take a final bow as they helped to raise money through the Cindy Lott Talent Show.

Doug Dickinson and Drew Murtler served as MC's for the show. Adding to the music is Glenn Thorniley as he drums away.

A Show To Aid Alumnus

The true essence of Thanksgiving was reflected by the people who performed and attended the Cindy Lott Charity Talent-Thon held on November 27. The purpose of the show was to raise money to help pay for some of Cindy's expenses.

"It was such a nice gesture; I never expected anything," Cindy stated. She was recovering from a car accident that occurred last April, and was very surprised at the idea of a Talent-Thon.

Gina Scalamonga originated the idea, and with the help of Mr. Dave Shutter, sponsor of the show, the idea was put into action. Some returning acts from the previous talent show were Amy Elter, Bert McDermott, the instrumental group "Dynasty", Pat Whiteman, Kim Haithcoat, Mark Cassler, Jeff Lambert, and Gina Scalamonga.

All work was voluntary, and was donated by the maintenance men and policemen. With a lot of cooperation from the staff and past performers, the Cindy Lott Charity Talent-Thon became a successful event to be remembered not only by Cindy, but also by all who were involved.

Even in the dead of winter, Mike Perez and Mike Brantner brave the roads and the parking lot with their four-wheel drive pick-ups.

The front parking lot is the perfect place for the truckers to have their picture taken with their 4-wheel drive vehicles.

Truckin To And From School

Did you ever wonder what all the trucks in the front parking lot were about, or who owned them, or why those guys were into trucks? If you never did, fine. But if you did, there was a lot more to them than you might have realized.

The kids who had trucks put a lot into them, both in terms of time and of money. People like Ed Carney and Randy Hey put as much as $13,000 or $14,000 into their Ford or Chevy trucks. "They're fun to drive in the woods, and they're very dependable." One such truck, a Ford F350, even had rear wheel steering. This truck was one of the few in the country that had that feature. Four wheel drive was also a real advantage during the winter months, and most trucks had it. So, those weren't just your ordinary, everyday pickups sitting out in the parking lot, those were valuable and finely-tuned machines.

Work For Extra Cash To Spend Or Stash

To have the experience, to be independent, and mostly, to have the money were all reasons why students spent numerous hours being part of the working world. A variety of jobs offered students many choices ranging from gas station attendants to fast-food workers. Though some went home tired and ragged after work, others had a rather easy time.

"I'm a lifeguard; I just sit around all day," stated Amy McLaughlin. Sue who works at the Original Station Street Hot-dogs said, "It's easy because there are hardly any customers."

However, complaints and bad feelings about work diminished when the pay check finally arrived.

Between classes is a good time to call home about the report you forgot or to chat with an ill friend; Jan Callaghan smiles apparently receiving good news.

Many moods overtake telephone users during the day ranging from the happiness on Sue Zimmerman's face to the seriousness on Bill Bronowicz's face.

Hello Is Anybody There

Using the telephone may be fun most of the time but public telephones may be a real hassle as I once found out during a school day.

"Oh, I forgot; I'd better call my mom after I finish eating. There, now I can go see if I can have the car tonight. I hope she's not at lunch.

"Darn! The phone in the cafeteria is being used; I'll try the ones upstairs."

"Geez, I've never seen so many people in the lobby waiting for a phone. I hope it doesn't take long."

"What do you mean fifteen cents?! Hey, does someone have an extra nickel? Thanks."

"Hello. Mom? Oh, O.K. I'll wait."

"Hi, mom. I want to know if I can have the car tonight?"

"Please deposit another fifteen cents."

"Well, mom, is it yes or no?"

"You ca . . . " CLICK.

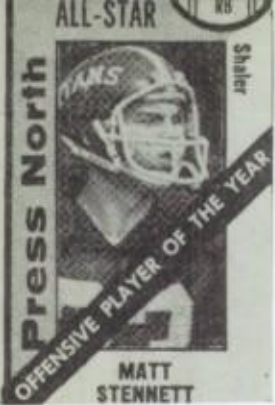

The efficiency of the phone company comes through again.

We're Proud He's of '82

If one picked up a North Hills News Record or a Pittsburgh North section, they might easily find a picture or article on Matt Stennett; the Matt Stennett that was being praised for his excellent yardage record of 1380 in a year, or 3556 over three years. Or maybe he was being congratulated as a member of Parade Magazine's All American Football Team.

"I think high school just prepares you for the college game. I'm really looking forward to playing well in the future," commented Matt. He was most honored for his running ability but played also at quarterback and in the defensive secondary.

Honors which Matt received included the Parade All American team as well as All Conference for three years and the first team, WPIAL both his junior and senior years.

Matt was not alone in bringing honor and publicity to Shaler Area. Others who brought recognition to Shaler Area through publicity included Leslie Riems, Colleen Szazynski both in tennis; Kyle Nellis in wrestling, Amy Bielski in swimming and Val Roessler in basketball. These students were only representative of the fine athletes who participated in all sports for the Titans.

Meeting Friends IN Two Schools

By the time students arrived at the new high school, most of them knew practically everyone. Making new friends during school was relatively unusual.

But those students who attended Beattie Tech were given an opportunity to meet with other students from surrounding school districts. Some of these schools included North Allegheny, North Hills, Hampton, and Deer Lakes.

For Shaler Students, this new found wealth of friends resulted in a severe case of "socializing" during class. Students compared schedules and average school days. This was also the perfect opportunity to demonstrate the "old school spirit" by claiming that the Titans were the best! As far as Shaler was concerned, no other schools even came close.

Even through the rivalries, students found common interests, and gained new friends who helped them get through another school year.

Sweaters and heels add a little more style to any outfit for as Laura Ebel and Nancy Heim demonstrate.

On Thursdays many students choose to dress up for the week as Cindy Moroz, Linda Kruth and Debbie Dougherty demonstrate.

Lookin' Good At Least One Day A Week

"I've been looking all over for a pair of those!" Don't you just love that color combination?" "I love her outfit!" "That dress is gorgeous!"

These common comments were frequently heard during the time before homeroom where everyone took notice to how everyone else was dressed.

Although the most popular attire worn at Shaler seemed to be old faded blue jeans, there were always the certain days that everyone liked to get especially dressed up. Frequently it seemed that day was Thursday. By the time Thursday rolled around a boost of morale was needed to carry one to the end of the week.

Outfits varied from slinky silk dresses with a slight slit, to wool skirts and sweaters with cowboy boots, to cords and a blazer. So getting all fixed up in the latest plaid skirt or knickers and blouse provided students with an incentive to wakeup in the morning.

Dressing up was not just something one did for those special occasions but also something many did for special days of the week.

Spending a relaxing moment sitting on the stairs are Cathy Stawecki, Kris Kalb and Sandy Bernardi as they talk and laugh among themselves on a Friday afternoon.

Reading must be a popular pass time on Fridays as Andrea Nelson and Scott Prior read the Oracle as Pat Carfagna looks on. Curled up with her favorite paperback on a Friday afternoon, Carolyn Steppling

Comfortable Dress At the End Of A Week

Thank Goodness It's Friday! Most people were glad to welcome this day because it seemed to have a more relaxed atmosphere. Homework was light, and dreams of going ice skating or of going to a movie were dancing in heads. Some kids even dressed in their oldest clothes, as if to reflect the casualness of Fridays.

Why dress down? "I did it because I felt more relaxed, and that's what Fridays were — relaxing," said one student.

Also on Fridays varsity sweaters, T-shirts and many other sport uniforms were worn. The teams wore their official outfits hoping to "psych" themselves and their classmates up for an important game.

The end of the week brought many students the "comfortable" look, making it obvious to everyone that dressing "down" played a major role in those ever popular Fridays!

The first step in giving blood is registering and answering different questions and then the actual process of giving can take place.

Special care and attention is given to the donors when they give the gift of life to others in the blood drive.

Aid Others IN A Special Way

"Me? Give blood? Don't look in my direction. I don't want any needle in my arm!"

The first thought of giving blood for the Central Blood Bank on December 2 and 3 was a little frightening. However, donating turned out not to be as bad as some students had thought.

On the date the students were assigned, donors reported to the racquetball area of the gym and were asked a series of questions about past medical history. Then, blood pressure, temperature, and blood type were taken. After that, came the big wait.

"Can I really do this? Do I really want too? Will it hurt? What if I faint?"

All of these questions were running through students' minds as they sat waiting. Fifteen minutes later they sat on mats drinking a soft drink of their choice and munching on cookies.

Donor Sandy Wittig said, "Giving blood wasn't really terrible. I got a feeling of satisfaction because I helped another human being."

It's Christmas

Let's Celebrate The Season

Who would have thought that the Pilgrims in 1620 set a tradition in high school? The delicious aromas of turkey, stuffing, homemade bread and rolls, along with mashed potatoes filled the halls as Mrs. Lucille Braun's students prepared a Thanksgiving meal for the holiday.

Who would have thought that the traditional signs of Christmas, such as tinsel and garlands would carry over from warm cozy living rooms to the high school? In the main office glistening bulbs and garland sparkled as one walked in.

The Activities Center also joined in on the fun; a clever design depicting a star decorated the window.

A familiar melody was recognized, but the words did not make much sense as Miss Kay Pechar's French class sang Christmas carols. Combinations of red and green clothing brightened the halls the last few days before vacation. Almost every one could be found wearing a trace of the traditional colors. The spirit of Christmas was part of the student as much as the student was a part of the spirit of Christmas.

The foods class enjoy an early in school Thanksgiving feast before leaving for the holiday vacation.

Bringing Christmas spirit to the school Activities Center is Elaine Helides as she places the finishing touches on a Christmas tree.

A shopping spree is an ideal way for Maureen Gorry and Amy McLaughlin to spend their Saturday.

The neighborhood 7-Eleven in Birchfield is a popular place for students to pick-up munchies.

A Place to Go Away From School

Although Shaler Area Senior High was secluded from the the traffic of Mt. Royal Boulevard, McKnight Road or Route 8, the people attending it weren't.

McKnight Road alone had almost every fast food place imaginable, with a new Wendy's erected in January. Pizza Hut was packed Friday nights after a wrestling match or basketball game. The Showcase Cinema North offered eight movie selections.

Roller skating and ice skating was popular year round at North Park. Shoppers could be seen at the North Way Mall as well as North Hills Village. For formal affairs such as Homecoming, couples enjoyed dinners at Montemurro's, Enrico's or Carmassi's.

This was just the beginning; with a new mall due in two years, the students at Shaler Area would have an even larger variety of things to do and places to be.

As Mr. Paul Schweiger explains the details of the prom, committee members carefully take note of his suggestions.

Various Expressions are shown by the different ideas of each member of the prom committee.

Plan Early For That Last Event

The Senior Prom? It might be hard to believe but the Senior Prom Committee began making plans as early as January.

Although the first meeting called by Mr. Paul Schweiger was not well attended, more than thirty people attended the second meeting on January 19. Linda Etter was chosen as prom chairperson and chairpersons were elected for tickets, publicity, theme and booklet organization, and band selection.

Ideas such as queen selection were already being discussed with varying opinions. Center pieces, decorations, and favors were decided upon with careful attention to detail. But with a dedicated committee and an early start, the Senior Prom was a successful evening which reflected the efforts of all involved.

The Way We Like It

Being in charge, sharing with friends, doing things together, waiting for graduation were all part of being a senior in 1982 or any year for that matter.

It was fun being involved or just waiting to do things together yet after it was over, it was a joy having the memories of it all.

Chemistry student Linda Kramer weighs precipitate and records the data.

After hours of working with clay, Jim Ollo takes time out for a well-earned break in the ceramics room.

Performing antics on the field during the Homecoming game is Jeanne Conrad, photographer.

In the chorus room, Robby Hinds, Janet Zilch, Ron Carter, Jeff Coco and Drew Martier discuss the day's class.

During a pep assembly, Rusty Roach adds a lot of enthusiasm and school spirit.

Before homeroom, Dave Anney stands at the balcony and watches the passersby.

Those adorable cubs, Adam and Eve, are happy to be cuddled by Sue Zimmerman at a zoo set-up at Allegheny Center Mall.

Intent on the program, Chas. Byrnes is typing into one of the computer terminals.

Studying hard and taking good notes are required of those who take physics. Bill Cross and Jeff Gierl set a good example.

Candid

In/Out of Class

There was always enough time for a photographer to snap a picture. Whether it was in the classroom, on the stairs, or just in the hallway juniors and seniors alike were always willing to stop for a picture. They were convinced that they weren't going to miss out on being in their yearbook.

Before entering his next class, Stan Sharp pauses to see what's going on out in the hall.

In the hall on the way to your next class is perhaps the best way to meet friends and chat a bit.

In Chemistry class, listening attentively is essential in order to learn how to do an experiment.

Perfection is the ultimate goal for George Matthews in his Mechanical Drawing class.

The challenge of battling an electronic game is taken on by Bob Bittner at the Boardwalk at the Northway Mall.

Brushing her hair so she can look her best for her next class is Donna Allnock.

A smile shines on the face of Carl Marrelli as he plays the bass drum.

Adding acting and vocal support are members of the junior class in "The Man Who Came to Dinner" this year's play joined the Senior and Junior class plays together.

The winning homeroom for this year's magazine drive is 11-15. They brought in a total of $1,973.35.

The theme of the Junior class float is the Pittsburgh Incline. The float was built at the home of Vicki Dittrich

Moving '83

On To New Successes

Moving from the Intermediate School (9-10) to the Senior High, the class of '83 exploded into action. The first big project was the Homecoming float. The class selected as its theme, The Pittsburgh Incline and workers were kept busy right up to the morning of the Homecoming making flowers, constructing forms, and just having fun working together.

Immediately after this task was completed, the juniors moved eagerly into their own magazine drive. From the morning of the assembly right up to the last few turn ins on straggler day, the juniors just kept selling those magazines until they had a grand total of $15,900. And, this was a grand total — the best of any class in this new building and the highest amount in 7 years. The class prizes and homeroom competition provided the incentive for success with Miss Ruth Duerstein's 11-15, leading the way.

Following the magazine drive, the juniors participated in the all-school play along side seniors. The hard work, memorized lines, and hours of demanding rehearsals for the 2½ hour play resulted in a performance that was satisfying for all who attended, and memorable for all those on stage.

And the juniors know how to use their leisure time to relax, too. The Junior-Senior Christmas Dance provided a fun way to relax with music, good food, and plenty of friends. But this dance didn't just happen. Juniors were assigned the roles of arranging and preparing many of the details of this special pre-Christmas dance.

At the only Junior assembly held in the fall both Mr. Dave Shutter and Mr. Paul Schweiger told the class of '83 that there were no fools in their class. By their efforts, their enthusiasm and their hard work they demonstrated that this was a true opinion of them.

Smiles are on the faces of the magazine drive's top sellers, Julie Segina and Karen Fink.

The prizes for the magazine drive provide background for Mr. Condeluci (Junior Principal) as he addresses the junior class.

The World In The Eyes Of '83

What do the sunny seas of the Bahamas and the high peaks of Swiss mountains have in common? They are just two of the places Shaler students visited on their summer vacations.

Julie Segina traveled throughout Europe to places including France, Switzerland, and Germany. In Yugoslavia, Julie visited her relatives for two and a half weeks. She enjoyed her stay in Europe and hopes to return again.

Another student, Sharon Doerfler, traveled to the Bahamas aboard a cruise ship called the M.S. Sunward II. During the five-day cruise, Sharon got the opportunity to scuba dive. Swimming among the fish in the Bahamas was much different than swimming among the crowds of people at Kiwanis pool.

These students and many others had unique experiences traveling to foreign countries during their summer vacations.

Snow in the middle of July is not uncommon in Switzerland as Julie Segina finds out. The mountain, Jungfrau, was Julie's first stop of a six week vacation.

Deep sea fishing is common in the Bahamas, and on her vacation Sharon Doerfler gets a chance to try it.

Lend A Hand And Learn A Lot

Aside from going to school five days a week, some students found a little time to volunteer to help others. It was a role that provided the students with no extra money but with the satisfaction of knowing that they had used their abilities to give needed support to others.

For three hours every Sunday, junior Linda Neely could be found filling water pitchers, making beds, and talking with the patients at Divine Providence Hospital.

"I like it. It's nice to help people when you can," commented Linda about her volunteer work.

Shawn Crosby, also a volunteer at Divine Providence Hospital, worked from 9:00 to 1:00 on Saturdays feeding patients and sometimes helping in the radiology department.

"This is preparing me for pre-med. It's good experience," said Shawn about being a volunteer.

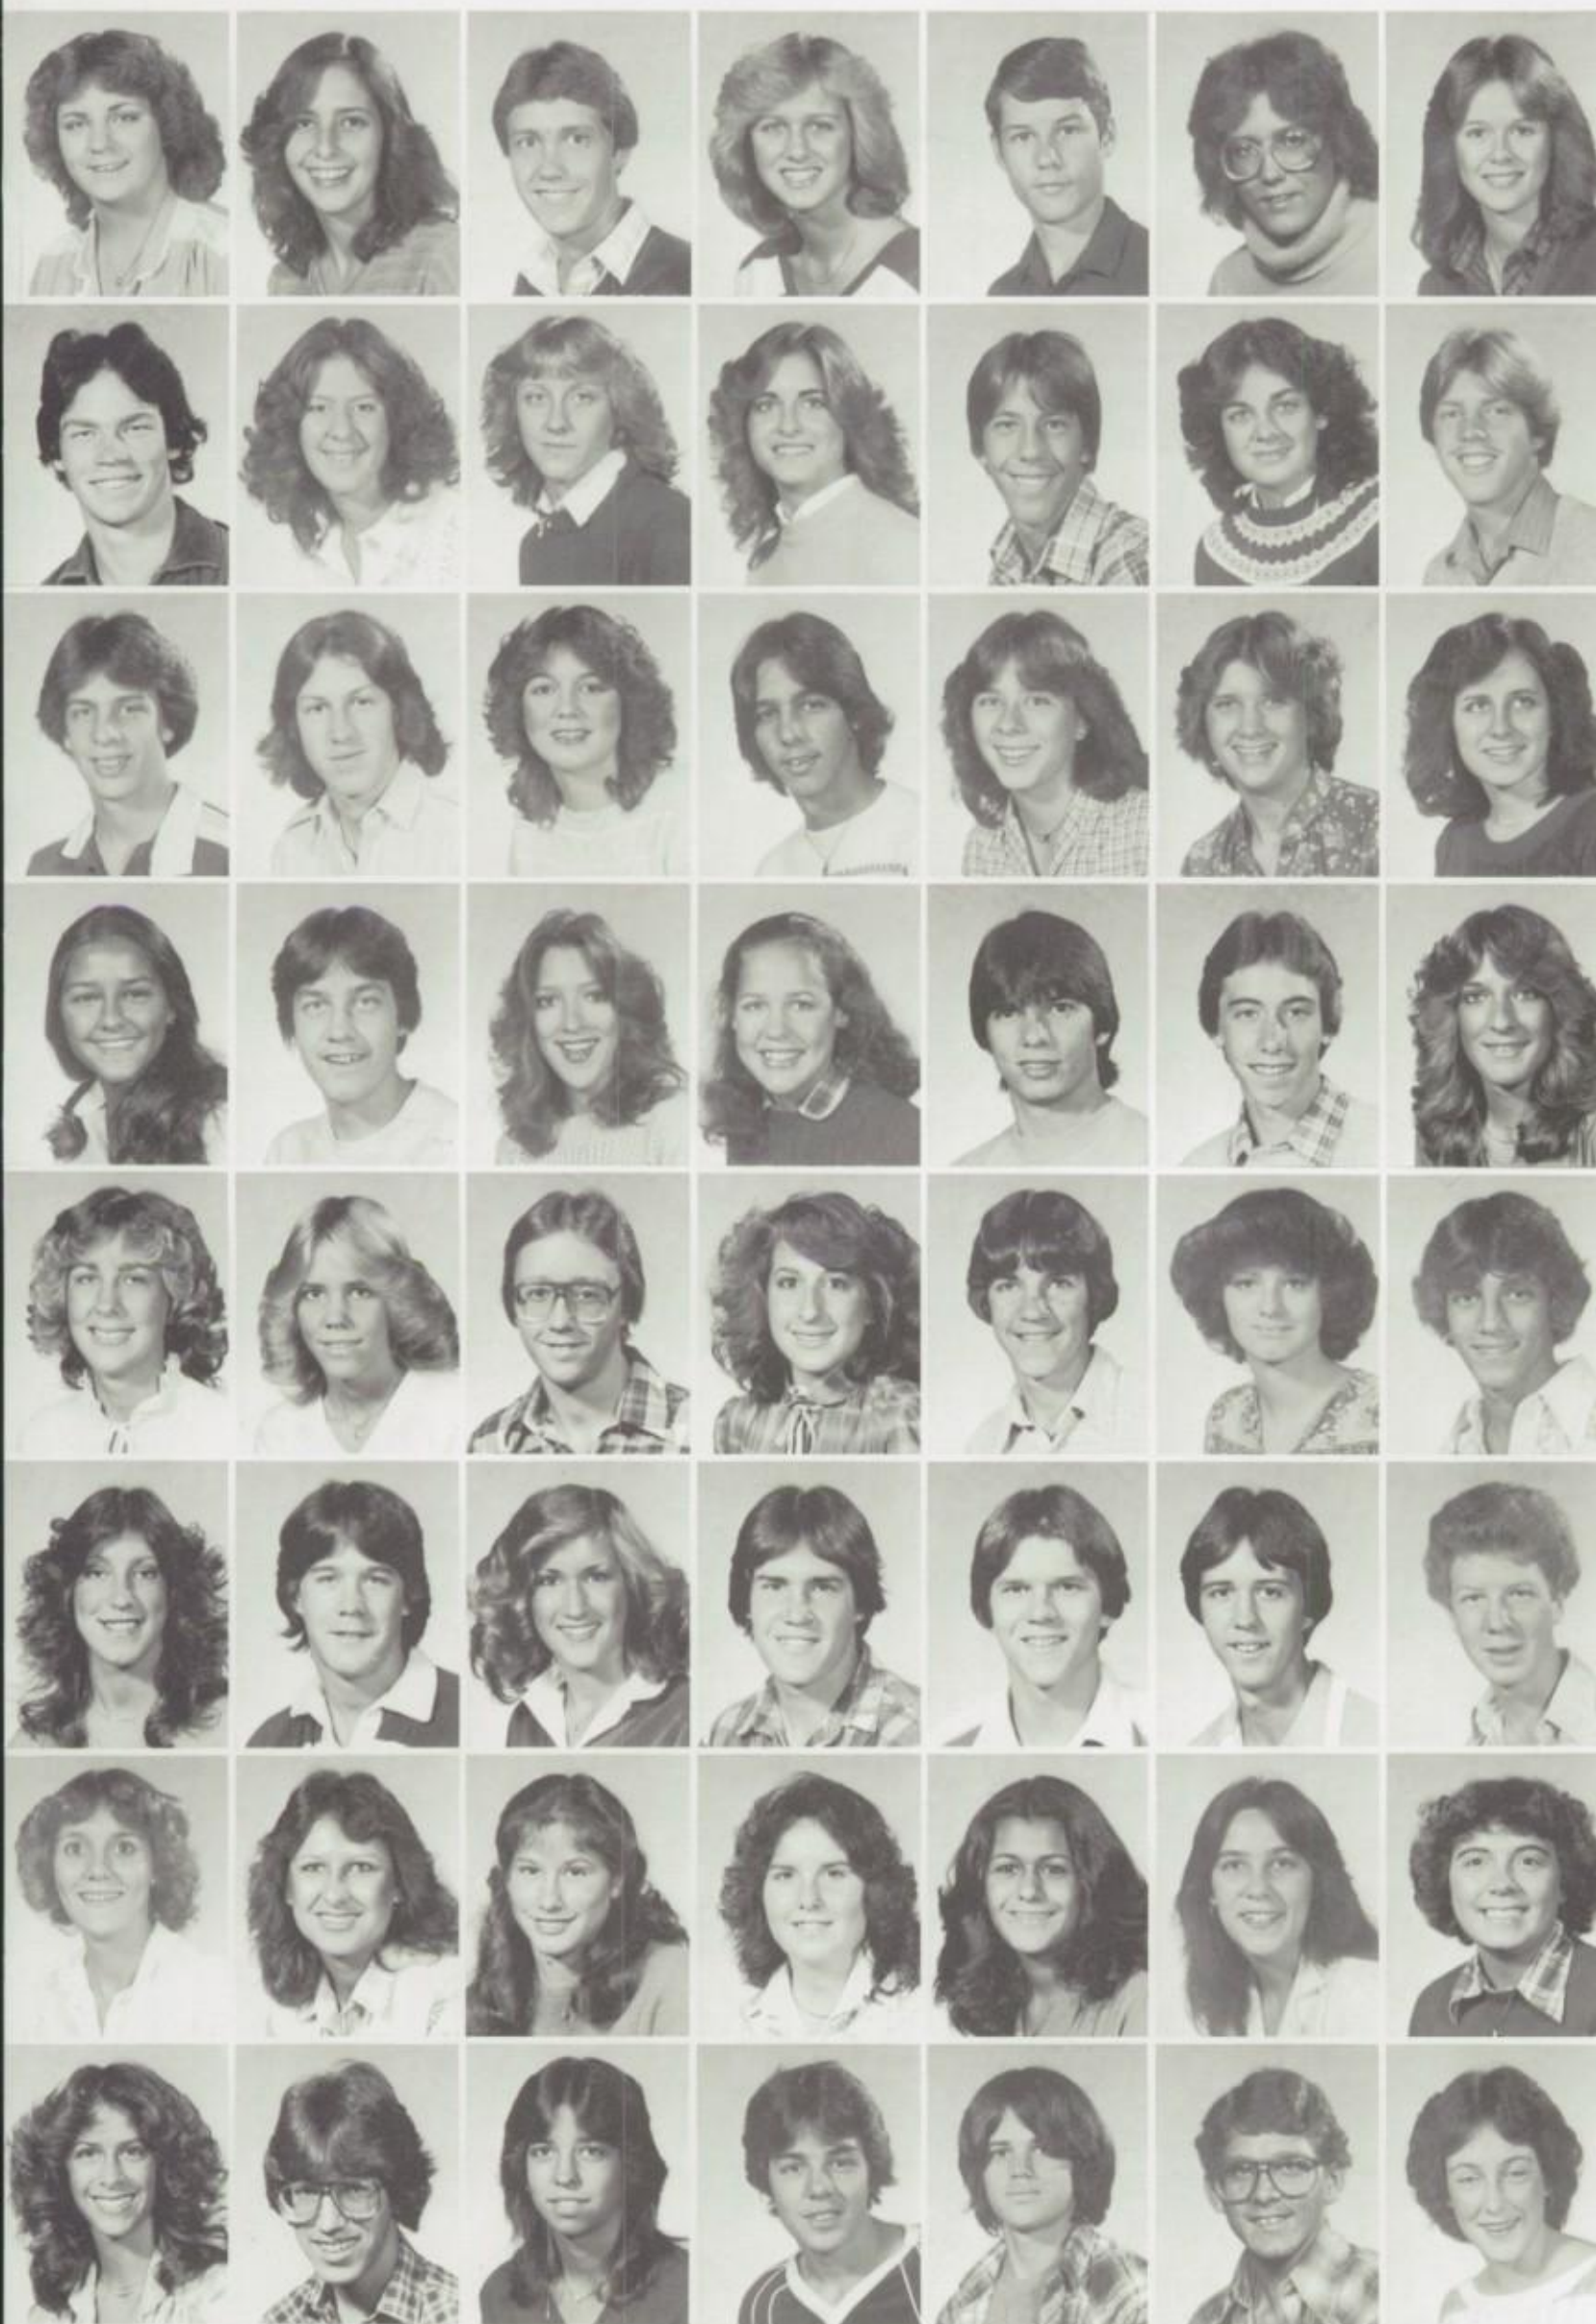

Also working as a candy stripper during the summer at St. Margaret's Hospital, Nancy Storoz spent every Monday morning sharing some of the work load of the nurses. Wayne Trout helped at North Hills Passavant in the physical therapy department. Although volunteering took up precious time for these high school students, it provided them with valuable experience that was enjoyable and is certain to be remembered often in the future.

Taking a time-out from their busy schedule are candy strippers Shawn Crosby, Nancy Storoz, and Linda Neely.

The registration desk is one of the many areas Linda Neely volunteers her services.

Excuses!

Believe It Or Not

List some common excuses that you have used for being late to class.

I thought it was 6th period instead of 5th. — Kris Wonderly

I went up the wrong staircase. — Sharon Holtz

I had heels on and couldn't walk fast. — Pam Flanders

I was in the bathroom and couldn't see the door through the haze of smoke. — Deb Moraca

I was stopped by a harem of girls and couldn't tear myself away. — Matt Stennett

I got stuck in a long line in the Titan Shop. — Sharon Kuntz

I asked directions from a senior. — Larry Gizzi

I took my time signing my autograph on the late slip. — John Kuzemchak

I was trying to finish my chemistry lab. — Ellen Gorczyca

My friend got sick and I had to help her to the Nurse's office. — Linda Kuntz

I got stuck in the elevator and I pounded and pounded, but nobody would let me out. — George Matthews

The bell rang early. — Steve Francis

A teacher held me up — Jackie Brockhoff

The halls were too crowded. — Hal Bolin

Patently waiting in the attendance office for a late slip from Mrs. Gerry O'Connor is Faith Schonburger.

Changes In Daily Routine

"What a disaster!" "I don't remember signing up for these classes." "The computer really messed up my schedule!" Thoughts like these were common when schedules came out. Students and Guidance personnel remembered several amusing things about schedule changes when asked in mid-November.

The counselors recalled that there were no major mistakes this time around, like a schedule with seven lunch periods. Mrs. Barbara Folino stated, "Most of the changes involved merely requests; someone, for example, wanted to change psychology to maybe speed-reading."

Students had somewhat mixed emotions about their schedules. Jeff Myers, a senior, said, "I thought that on occasion it appeared that the counselors were as confused as the students were." Some students had to remain in a class and accept books and materials until a change of schedule could be made. One student commented that, although his schedule had no errors (he was a lucky one), the long lines of students waiting for changes made talking to a counselor and then getting to class on time a real chore.

Fortunately, most changes were handled successfully; but many people wondered what the juniors and sophomores of this year had in store for them next year. Well, . . .

Reports Facing The Facts

Oh, those little blue slips of paper, how important they were. "Hey, how'd you do?" I don't believe it, she gave me a B!" "You got straight A's?!" Report card day again, and moans and shouts of joy filled the halls. After a nine week period ended, students waited in anticipation for about a week and a half while computers sorted and printed out those little marks and them made them available to every student on November 11.

Some students waited but did not receive a report as Mrs. Dorothy Baker from the library or some other teacher informed homeroom teachers that a fine needed to be paid before the report could be issued. This meant a mad rush to the library or the activities center to pay the fine and then back to homeroom with the permission slip for that report. Others from Beattie Technical School arrived late and had to report directly to the Guidance Department to pick up their reports.

Grades were particularly important to juniors because, for the first time, class rank was figured for the Class of '83, and juniors saw the value of a grade average that would be important for college entrance or employment opportunities. So, each student at Shaler Area High worried, hoped, and then was informed of the value of class work on those report days.

So he can receive his report card

Sean Conway pays his fine to librarian Mrs. Baker.

Discussing her report card with Linda Blaha in front of the office is Debbie Raible.

Drive To Learn

Impatience and anxiety overtook most Shaler teen-agers as they inspected their mailbox for their driving permit. As soon as one hand grabbed the permit the other hand attached itself to the wheel.

"Will I do well?" "I hope the others drivers don't notice that I'm only a beginner." Geez, it seems so different when I'm in the passenger's seat." The first time out was scary along with being challenging. Often people working or practicing on Saturday crossed their fingers and held their breath as a car went through the parking lot at the High School for practice.

Driving was as important as going to a Friday night football game or taking your girlfriend out to the movies. Students devoted many hours to practicing in the Mount Royal Cemetary, Kiwanis Park, and in the empty school lots. This monotonous practicing and dad's screaming paid off in the end as the state policeman stamped the back of that little pink card.

Trying her skills at driving is Jackie Brockoff with ad from sister, Shelly.

Work Needs Done

In Study Hall Or At Home

Whether it was spent studying in the library or sleeping in the cafeteria, study hall made up the best part of the day. If it was a day full of homework, forty-five minutes of hard work could clear the evening for going out. If a break-up was in the air, a note written in study hall could reconcile misunderstandings. And, if work has lasted overtime all week, a short nap in the morning made all the difference.

Not only did study halls provide an opportunity to collaborate on assignments, but also make plans for participation in many other activities. Extra help in difficult classes, or advice from the guidance office was available by appointment. The audiovisual room and activities center were meeting places for workers. GATE meetings were often scheduled for "free periods." And there was always that last-minute assignment to complete — with a little help from friends.

But study halls were not usually long enough to get everything done. For the most part, homework was done at home, in a kitchen (close to the refrigerator), living room (close to the TV), dining room (most comfortable), or bedroom (most private). If the eyelids became too tired and closed, then a bus ride to school might have meant a sloppy but completed homework assignment.

Resting Comfortably on her bed is the perfect atmosphere to study in for Becky Grau.

Working on a term paper can be a tough job, but Michelle Moan doesn't seem to mind.

Study halls are a good place for working, reading the news paper, or just having a good time with your friends.

During a study hall, Joyce McCusker works on a homework assignment in the Activities Center.

As office aids, Sharon Holtz and Chris Eicher help our schools' secretaries and use their study hall time wisely.

Escape Class Routine

A Getaway! That's the way some teachers think of these rooms in the school that are theirs alone — the faculty rooms. And it is only right that teachers would have a place to go to escape the routine of the classroom and the demands of student curiosity.

Rooms 206 and 307 doubled as areas to relax and also places to prepare for classes. Equipped with a sink, hot plate, refrigerator and pop machine it provided an opportunity to occasionally eat lunch or just stop by for a snack and little conversation.

The ditto, stencil and spirit master machines coupled with the typewriter invited teachers to type up and run off tests needed for next week. In addition, the recently acquired test correcting machine gave teachers an opportunity to save time on this important clerical responsibility.

Teachers had different reasons for going to the faculty rooms. Some never went there at all. But regardless of its use throughout the day, knowing that it was available was an encouraging thought on those days filled with constant demands and no easy remedies.

Time is finally found by Mrs. Baker and Mr. Rockwell to relax and have a snack during their busy work day.

Anxiously waiting to use the copy machine will work is Mr. Robert Siar.

Lunch is a good time for these teachers to get together and talk about things around the school and home.

Some teachers, Mr. Banks, Mrs. Pacetti, and Mrs. Henry, would rather eat in the faculty room than in the teachers dining room downstairs.

What do you think about SAHS teachers? Most of them make coming to school fun ... Chris Cubella

Get Away To The Fast Lanes

Strike! Gutterball! Spare! These were familiar terms and words heard frequently by members of the faculty bowling league. This league met every Wednesday for a relaxing and enjoyable evening of competitive bowling.

"I joined because I was harassed," said activities secretary, Mrs. Joyce Kundrod. Another member, Mr. Yedlicka joined because he "enjoyed bowling a lot."

Competitiveness between Mr. Frank Pecman's team and Paul's Angels carried over to lunch breaks as well as morning announcements. Although Mr. Pecman's team won the first half of the year, all the teams anxiously waited for the final victor at the end of the year. For, the best team always comes out on top.

While waiting for his next turn to bowl, Mr. Frank Pecman checks over the averages of his teammates.

A little laugh before her turn helps Miss Linda Peffer before she has to concentrate on knocking all pins down.

A look of astonishment appears on the face of Mrs. Joyce Kundrod as she bowls a strike while others look on.

A pause to say good-bye to Dad are Jeffrey and Jason Bender before they go outside to play.

A ride on the shoulder of his father, Mr. Carl Knaebel, brings a look of pleasure to the face of 4 year old Nathaniel.

Looking up from their playpen, 10 month old Benjamin and Jeremy Knaebel flash a smile that would warm anybody's heart.

2 + 2 + 2 Twin families

What do teachers Mr. Bender, Mr. Shutter and Mr. Knaebel have in common? They are all proud fathers of twins!

Jason and Geoff Bender are ten years old and in the 4th grade. How does Mr. Don Bender feel about having twins? "It's a lot of fun watching them grow," he says, "It's nice for them because they always have someone to play with."

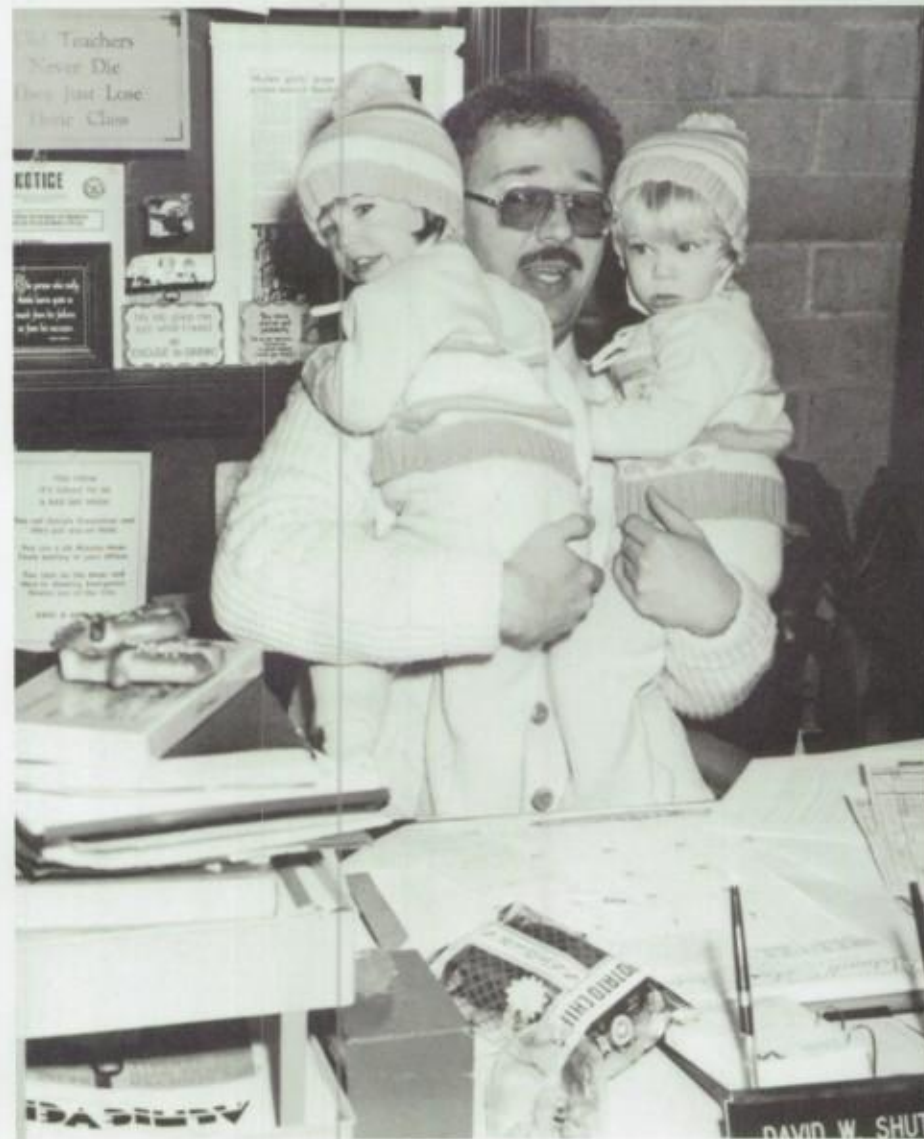

Mr. Dave Shutter's daughters, Janelle and Amber were born on Christmas Day. His wife wasn't expecting twins so it was a double blessing for them. "They're at the terrible two's now — driving my wife crazy" commented Mr. Shutter.

"With twins you certainly know the meaning of the word 'duplicity,'" were Mr. Karl Knaebel's thoughts. His sons Benjamin and Jeremy are only ten months old.

It's interesting to note that all the teachers with twins are social studies teachers. Not only that, but Mr. Shutter and Mr. Bender use the same room — Mr. Knaebel is just across the hall!

Two bundles of joy fill Mr. David Shutter's arms as he takes time to give a hug to his daughters, Amber and Janelle.

Leaders Of The District

Who is the superintendent? To most students he was just a name or picture seen in the student handbook or yearbook each year. But Dr. Vaughn Campbell was much more than that.

His career began in 1952 as a shop teacher; progressed to assistant principal, Director of Curriculum at the senior high school, then assistant superintendent, and finally, superintendent.

Over the thirty years of service that he has devoted to Shaler, Dr. Campbell has seen such major developments as special education for the physically handicapped and special classes for the learning disabled and building of the new high school.

Although he had little direct interaction with students and faculty, Dr. Campbell enjoyed talking to them whenever he could. "Kids are great; they just make your day," he said.

Dr. Campbell's lengthy involvement with Shaler Area has given him the insight to make proper decisions and to coordinate the program for the students and the faculty.

Finding it necessary to provide important background information for school related decisions, Dr. Campbell finds himself called upon to speak at board meetings.

With a three phase approach to community, teachers, and students Mr. Winkler asks the students in Mrs. Iurlano's English class their opinion of subjects taught at the high school. This state mandated opinion evaluation is a priority probe.

Do The Jobs Of Aiding Education

Ask anyone the question "who works at the school?" and the answer will most likely be "teachers." But do teachers clean the school? type the absentee? cook the food?

Whenever it's time for lunch the cafeteria workers are ready to serve you. "They always thank you for buying the food" said Beth Romac. "They're really friendly," was another observation. The cafeteria workers begin preparing the food when school starts and they are still working to clean up after the students have finished eating.

The janitors are not only here during school hours but also after that 2:25 bell rings. They work to keep the school clean during sports games, meetings, shows, before and after dances, and other activities.

Contrary to popular opinion secretaries do not just type — especially school secretaries. Secretaries can be found in the main office, the attendance office, the guidance office and the activities office. They write late slips and early excuse slips; secretaries can be found organizing and formulating letters sent out by the school or making important necessary phone calls; they take care of lost and found and help with student activities; the office workers take phone calls for students and tell students their class ratings; secretaries also send for students and send memos to teachers in other buildings.

Now if someone asks "who works at the school?" "teachers" may not be the first idea that comes to mind.

Ruzomberka, Mrs. Phyllis Maier. Pix 2: Front Row: Mrs. Judie Barry, Miss Barl Duss Row 2: Mrs. Ida Peterson, Mrs. Marna Bodnar, Mrs. Adela Van Atta

After years of service Annie Snyder poses at the retirement party given by her fellow workers.

The Pirate Parrot gives Mr. Jack Juran a heart-warming Homecoming hug.

Cafeteria "Pizza Hut" proved to be very popular among Shaler Students.

Before the arrival of students, Mr. Bill Pilgrim clears the front walk with the help of a snow blower.

Clundering the Ice to safe guard against slips, is Mr. Adolph Stimpel.

ADVERTISING

Pix 1: Route 8 was a popular area for business activity and yearbook advertising sales. It is also the main highway linking many of the Shaler Area communities. Pix 2: One of the ad drive's top sellers was Bill Coates who was certain to visit as many stores in the area as possible. Here he is sure to stop in every store in the Mr. Royal Plaza. Pix 3: Working at a business gave Bob Moore and Robble Hinds an edge on selling an ad there. Pix 4: After those ads have been sold Kathy Sawyer and Kim Kundrod has the responsibility to see that those ads were put correctly into the yearbook.

A view all our own

What is your opinion of the business field and would you desire to work in business somewhere in the area?

I'd really like to stay in the North Hills area because there are a lot of places to get good jobs. . . . Diane Vinski

If I had a chance I'd really like to open my own sporting goods store or restaurant in the area. . . . Sean Butler.

I would really like to work at a place like the Greater Pittsburgh Airport . . . Gail Fike.

I work at a job in the area because it really gives me a sense of pride in knowing that the things I buy come right out of the money I make . . . Veronica Cunningham.

If I had a chance to work in the business field I think I'd choose billboard advertising. It seems exciting. Mike Schranghamer

I work as a cashier at a store on McKnight Road and I really get to know a lot of people that way. . . . Kathy Bauer.

I'd like to own my own sporting goods store like a friend of mine does in this area. . . . Dave Guiste

I would really like to work in downtown Pittsburgh in an office . . . Melanie Mejasic

I like to change that everyday pace of a school schedule and get out early and I enjoy the people I work with on small jobs that I perform. . . . Peggy Claus

I like how so many people in this area were so willing to buy ads from us . . . Pat Varisco.

T-Shirt With An '82 Slogan

The slogan of the Class of '82s ad drive is proudly displayed on T shirts by seniors: Sandy Bernardi, Linda Etter, Chris Ebelacker, Julie Hesters, Dave Schramm, Sandy Letterle. Back row: Matt Trageser, Matt Stennett, Tim Jackson, Pat Carfagna, Jon Shider, Lynn Marsonek, and Bob Kagle.

At the Ad Drive assembly the first day of the campaign on September 18 members of the '82 Spectrum staff show their support for the senior's drive. The staff wore the T-shirts throughout the day to remind the seniors to sell those ads to support their view and their 1982 Spectrum.

Fun Senior Skits

A look 20 years into the future of the members of the Class of '82 was the theme of the skits performed in the first senior assembly on September 18. Skits included football players on national TV; Our "girls" in The Miss America Pageant; and cheerleaders still doing cheers in their own living rooms.

How Not To Sell Ads

Skits explaining in a comedy fashion how "not to sell" yearbook ads were included in the first yearbook assembly. The skits treated subjects such as how to dress, how to approach and how to talk to the advertisers in order to seek the ad support for the 1982 Spectrum.

Banners Lead Senior Homerooms

Homeroom banners painted and designed by senior students are displayed by representatives during the ad drive assembly. Those banners are shown in the Activities Center window during the two weeks of the ad drive to encourage senior spirit for the 1982 Spectrum's Ad Drive. Prizes were also given for the best banners with Petro's Porkheads finishing first. This banner was designed and painted by John Svoboda.

Active In Pittsburgh, Too

The University of Pittsburgh was the number two football team in the U.S.A. in the 1981 season. Titans Jill Looney, and Rita Schrantz were at the game to cheer them on. Pittsburgh has its annual Great Race that attracted three Shaler participants that included Kim Flickinger, Cindy Grumbaugh, and Linda Neely.

THANK YOU SHALER AREA HIGH SCHOOL

For the past fifty years, it has been our privilege to watch the young people of our community grow from baby rings to high school, engagement and wedding rings. We have shared their loved ones pride as they purchased a special gift to commemorate their birthdays, graduations, wedding and anniversaries.

On this our Fiftieth Anniversary, we thank you for your patronage and pledge to continue to bring you quality merchandise at reasonable prices along with friendly, personal service.

Your Own Personal Pages To Use In Any Way You Desire To Express A View All Your Own

This year when the yearbook was planned and published the Spectrum staff tried its very best to include all of the important events, activities, and projects for this school year. However, as hard as they tried they may not have included a person, an event or a memory that was personally important to you. It is with this in mind that the 1982 Spectrum editors and staff provide you with your own two pages for pictures of friends, events or classes and also space to caption them. You may if you desire just use these two pages for signatures and comments by good friends. It is up to you what you plan to do with these pages. Have fun doing these two pages; we enjoyed doing the other 282 pages for you.

In this section of the yearbook we list those individuals who offer support in the form of financial aid to our yearbook program. We also have pictured here at tables in the cafeteria our students who support all of our programs with their participation. Both groups are important to SPECTRUM.

(Reader's Digest)

It was important to the Spectrum staff to include as many students as possible in the yearbook. It was with this in mind that the following students who missed senior and underclass pictures were called to the lobby. They included: Picture 1: Front Row: Tim Oleniacz, Mary Crise, Jeanne Kohen, Jaura LaBarbera, Denlene Townsend. Row 2: Sean Heck, Tim Wagner, Robert Potts, Joe Kleber, Vic Edmondston. Row 3: Kevin McGovern, Mike Murray, Ed. Graham, Paul Gaus, Tom Kearney. Row 4: Steve Sheldon, Mike Schmelzer, Mark Mammay, Kathy DeMauro, Diane Sopkewicz. Row 5: Nick O'Tine, Bob Zimmerman, Bill Hewn, Tom Cunningham. Picture 2: Two Beattle Students who had missed their pictures were Michele Toomey, John Graetic.

Winter Concert

A trio of trumpets added that extra dimension to the fine band performance. Making up the trio was Mike Halich, Bob Ochsenhirt, and Joe Walsh.

Into his music and contributing to the blend of music provided by the saxophones is George Dorow.

Out in the front and setting the tone and pace for the Concert Band was Mr. Robert Woodring.

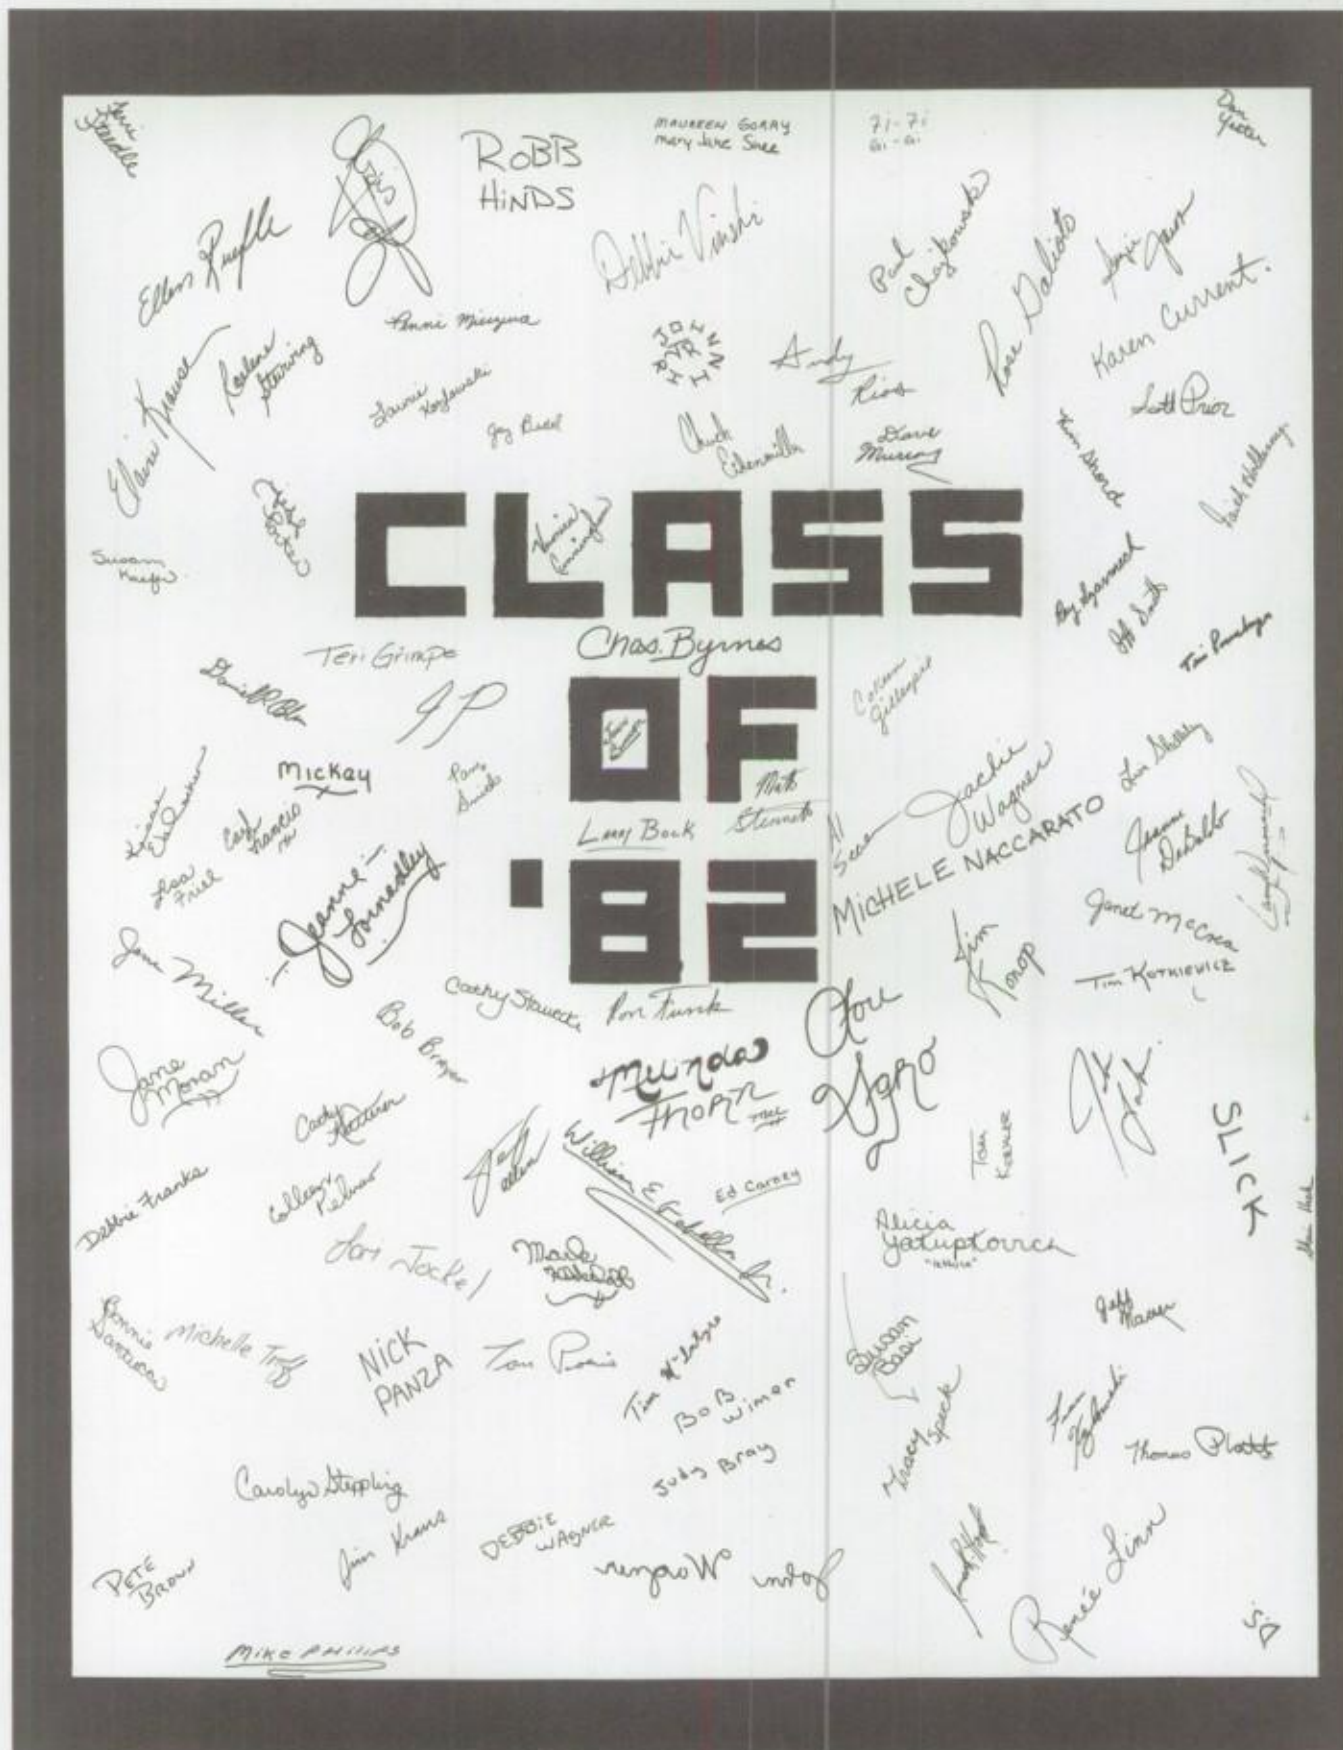

The total Concert Band presented their Winter Band Concert on January 28.

With one eye on the music and one eye on the director, Larry Wuenschel and Gary Mancuso follow the directions of Mr. Robert Woodring.

Taking a break after being named King and Queen of the Valentine's Dance — King Keith Nicola with Sue Klir and Queen Jane Fingal with Mike Tysarczyk.

Pic. 1: Debbie Moraca and Rose Galloto receive their suckers from Sue Fogle. Pic. 2: What better way to celebrate a Dance than to enjoy a slow dance.

Winter storms gave rise to a bit of cabin fever and it was time to escape the boredom of winter and find a way out. Valentine's Dance offered an excuse to leave home for an evening of entertainment, fun, prizes, a few laughs and a chance to be with friends. The dance sponsored by The Spectrum Staff attracted over 300 and proved to be a pre-spring success.

The dance included free gifts, large displays of "Love Is" characters, a dance contest, the crowning of a King and Queen and a visit by two unique cupids. It was a fun evening that made all forget winter.

Into Family Living

At the beginning of a life together in the family, is the wedding celebration. The class in Family Living organized, planned and presented their own mock wedding complete with the cake and drinks (punch) for all.

The groom, Alan Coates, placing the ring on the bride, Melanie Mejasic's finger is an important part of the wedding ceremony.

A toast to health and happiness is performed by Robbie Hinds for Alan Coates and Melanie Mejasic.

Posing for the traditional post wedding picture is the bridal party
 Karis Spivey, Carmen Youger, Veronica Cunningham, Robby Hinds, Melanie Mejasic, Alan Coates, Val Schubert, Lisa Lee.

Thank You For All You Did To Help

For giving their time and helping in the publication of the 1982 Spectrum, the following people deserve recognition:

The 54 staff members and 11 editors, writing adviser, and total staff adviser for their talent, time and sacrifices throughout the year and for supporting each other when deadlines approached.

Special thank you to the parents of staff members and especially of editors for their patience, understanding and support of all of the efforts of the staff.

Mr. Tim Ward, Hunter Publishing Company representative, for giving of his artistic talents and for his help on the cover, division pages and ad section.

Mr. Alfred Newill, Alfred Studios, for never failing to have pictures taken, developed and printed whenever they were needed and for all photography supplies.

Miss Cindie Oswald of Alfred Studios for her work in photography, for her support and encouragement and especially for her sincere friendship.

Mr. David Shutter, Activities Director, and his secretary, Mrs. Joyce Kundrod, for their understanding, cooperation and help in so many areas.

Mr. Edward Cochrane, Principal, and Mr. Sam Condeluci and Mr. Robert Stotsky, Asst. Principals for their support and concern throughout the year.

Those faculty members — Mrs. Ann Iurlano, Mrs. Ruth Corda, Mr. Francis Baum, Mr. Frank Segina, Mr. Lou Martig, Mr. John Petro — who aided us directly with work on the book.

All senior homeroom teachers and other faculty members for their support of the ad drive and all work done on the book.

Mr. Donald Deets and Mr. Anthony Rizza for recorded tape announcements made during each of our sales campaigns.

The high school secretaries and Miss Barbara Duss at central office for their secretarial and clerical aid on the yearbook.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davis and Miss Lois Klinefelter for the many errands and other jobs done for the staff.

Summer workshops teachers: Ms. Marian Breeden, Ms. Judy Coolidge, Mr. John Cutsinger, Dr. Mary Raye Denton, Miss Ann Hardie, Mr. Bobby Hawthorne, Mr. Les Howell, Col Charles Savedge, Mr. Don Sigmund, Mr. James Sweeney and especially Mr. Bruce Konkle and Miss Nancy Patterson — for all that they taught the editors throughout the summer workshops.

Student photographers not on staff who contributed prints to be used in the yearbook — Mike Munson, Marty Rodgers, and especially Jeff Muschar Student artists — Ron Carter and Molly McGinley for their aid.

Non staff members — Chris Clark, Chris Eicher, Scott Heck, Sharon Holtz, Jill Murphy, Sharon Kania, Dave Griffith, Jill Murphy, Bill McNamara, Gary Moser, and Linda Turner — who aided during study halls on the work to be done.

Those seniors who participated in skits in the yearbook assembly and those who painted banners for the ad drive.

Members of the Class of '82 who sold advertising to support the yearbook and especially Bill Meier who led all sellers with $1150.00

The universities of Oklahoma, Penn State, Michigan, and UCLA were disappointed when Matt Stennett smiled while signing his February letter of Intent agreeing to attend classes and play football for the University of Pittsburgh for the next four years. With Matt at the signing at school were his sister, Beth; his father, Pastor Thomas Stennett, Coach Jerry Matulevic, Mrs. Judy Stennett and his brother, Eric.

Sales is the field Colleen Gillespie worked at in school in the Titan Shop and as manager out of school.

Smiles of anticipation of a career that includes marriage is evident on the faces of Terri Steedle and Lynn Reuss as they plan to marry shortly after high school graduation.

The Occupational Skills Program permits these students to take a half-day schedule of classes then move immediately to their full time jobs.

Financial aid is the information that Paul Niklaus is concerned about as he speaks with a representative from Carnegie Mellon University on College Night. Many students had to leave high school early in order to take advantage of financial aid provided by Social Security.

A Changing View

While attending classes up on the hill between Anderson and Wible Run Road, it seemed that one's lifestyle was permanent, safe, and unchanging. Yet as the senior year came to a close it was evident that this way of life would change.

Though leaving high school meant no more school bus rides, homeroom periods, Activity Center meetings or morning announcements with Mr. David Shutter — stepping down from the hill provided new opportunities. Plans for the future for the members of the Class of '82 differed as much as their opinions of high school life. While some students continued with formal education in colleges, technical and business schools, others joined the work force or armed forces.

Through the month of March, April, and May there were still some concerns, however, about life in high school.

"Will the girls' basketball team win states?" "What part will I play in the Talent Show?" "I hope I get my term paper done on time." "I wonder if I'll get a date to the Senior Prom?" Though these concerns seemed important, more decisions about the future started to take over students' minds.

Concerns such as "Is basic training really that tough?" "I wonder who my dorm roommate will be?" "With the economy today, I wonder if I'll be able to get a job?" were heard through the halls of Shaler.

Moving from 381 Wible Run Road was more than a change of address, it meant a change of attitude and views.

The Marines are awaiting Walt Kozlowski, and he is eager to move to Paris Island for his basic training as he reads brochures about this branch of the service.

Research will be a way of life in the future for these three Beattie students; Sharon Aigner, Dianna Kendra and Carl Geyer.

As the year draws to a close, students continue to express opinions about different aspects of school life. Keith Nicola, Michelle Miller, Rob Corry, Jeanne Fornadley and Randy Hey talk in front of the auditorium about their school day.

Leaving the familiar environment of Shaler Area High School gave us an opportunity to develop our own ideas.

During High school:

It was easy to criticize the new smoking ordinance when everyone else did.

It was simple to cheer for winning sports teams when you were sitting in the middle of Panza's Mafia.

It was expected to say we had seniorious when everyone else did.

It was hard to say that we enjoyed school when everyone else couldn't wait for graduation.

It was difficult to say that we'd rather watch soccer when many others liked football.

We felt strange to say the pledge of allegiance when many others didn't even stand up.

For 180 days approximately 8 hours a day and a number of hours after school we exchanged ideas and opinions with people who influenced our view of school life and even of ourselves.

As a result of this opportunity to share views, we can borrow those we continue to accept, reject others and develop opinions which we carry with us into the future — opinions which will provide for us truly.

At view all our own
